

It's Too Late To Get A Divorce by Coreal White Chapter 88

Chapter 88

Hence. Alita's heart ached, an ache so resistless that even with the best disguise, it was still futile

She pressed her tongue forcefully against her teeth and pursed her lips tightly, trying to block the sourness and pain surging from the depths of her heart. She didn't do this for him. It was just a pity for the lost time.

Jaydon noticed her restraint. A soft part of him wanted to hold her. But when he thought about how she had hurt him in the past, his heart hardened again

"Miss Thompson, do you also think it's good? Then let's go see it together another day. Memories of the same place covered by a younger girl, I like that feeling. How about you, do you like it?" He looked at her fixedly, speaking softly. He wanted to hurt her, but he hurt himself first instead.

Both of them felt sorrow in their hearts.

Alita tilted her head back, forcing back the tears from falling, but they still fell.

She smiled, casually wiping them away. "The wind is really strong. Every time this season comes, my eyes always feel uncomfortable. Mr. Lewis, please don't mind. It's because of the weather."

She took a tissue and wiped her eyes, her emotions gradually subsiding during this process. She replied, "You asked if I liked it. I don't know how to answer. Because from a woman's perspective, everyone has been young and will gradually grow old. Of course, no one likes that feeling. Men run after younger girls, so what about the leftover women? But in the end, it's about whether you feel happy."

Jaydon chuckled and said, "Miss Thompson, your words make sense. Did you also express your true feelings?" He lowered his head, brushing off the non-existent dust on his pants. His gaze became lifeless.

Alita didn't deny it. To some extent, yes. After all, I'm not a young girl anymore. But I have confidence in my future. A woman can live a splendid life relying on herself, not necessarily depending on a man."

With that, she smiled again. "Apologies, I digressed. Let's get back to discussing the wedding. The current situation is that you and Miss Jenner have diverged on the wedding venue. So discuss it and let me know your decision. After you decide, I'll go to the site to take a look."

Jaydon raised his head. "Let's take a look at both places. Only with a comparison can there be a choice." WwW.nOveL\(1\)wOrM.cOm

Alita concealed a sigh. "No problem! However, you'll need to cover the expenses yourself. If we go to the forest, I insist on purchasing insurance first."

"Of course!" Jaydon faintly smiled, his gaze fixed on her eyes, lingering for a long time.

Alita took a sip of her coffee and shifted her gaze. She didn't want ambiguity. She didn't want to care. They had separated, so they should do it cleanly and thoroughly.

In the distance, Evelyn, holding her bag, fluttered over like a butterfly.

The discussion continued from 1 pm to around 2 pm. Alita stood up and left. Evelyn said the environment there was good and wanted to stay longer

With her bag in hand, Alita walked out of the outdoor cafe without looking back

While Jaydon fed Evelyn cake, his gaze followed Alita's departure. In one year, he missed her and hated her, yet she still left so freely

His heart hurt as Alita gradually went away.

Alita drove far away. Her nerves were still tense. She stopped the car, leaned on the seat, rested for half an hour, and then started the car again. Back at the company. Alita held a meeting.

"Seriously? A wedding in the forest? This princess is too much. We don't have any forests here, and even if we did, it's find a place that suits her taste"

"Besides, cars can't enter the forest. If the bride walks in, she would be a mess long before reaching the venue.

"Boss, I think we can't agree to this. Can't we negotiate more?"

Alita took a sip of water and said, "Everyone! I've already agreed."

"What?" Every

ou guys don't have to worry too much. Although the princess mentioned going to the forest, the prince said the wedding should be in a church," Alita said lightly. Facing the choice between the two locations, she would rather go to the forest.

Wild animals were not scary. What was frightening was overturning and destroying beautiful memories.

Karen folded her hands and murmured, "God bless, let the pr

"But generally speaking, the prince tends to yield to the princess. I think the possibility of going to the forest is higher," Crystal with little enthusiasm

Alita clapped her hands. "Regardless of their choice, we must plan this wedding well. I believe that as long as we work together, we can overcome all difficulties. Do you have confidence?"

"Yes!" The team responded weakly.

"Louder! Do you have confidence?" Alita's voice was loud and confident.

Her courage and confidence inspired the young team. They responded with a resounding "Yes!"

"Very good!" Alita smiled satisfactorily. She wouldn't let difficulties stop her and was determined to overcome the

After the meeting, she returned to her office and worked busily. Time flew by, and it was almost time to leave work.

Stretching lazily, she planned her life after work

She would go shopping at the department store, buy beautiful clothes, enjoy a leisurely dinner at her favorite restaurant, eat however much she wanted, then watch a movie. When she got home, she would take a shower and have a good night's sleep. Her single life

After tidying up the files on her desk, Alita walked out of the office, took the elevator downstairs, left the company, and drove as planned to the department store. Shortly after she left, a silver-gray sports car followed her from a distance WwW.nOveL\(1\)wOrM.cOm

When Alita arrived at the department store, the car followed her there too

She leisurely browsed through the store, buying whatever she liked. In less than an hour, her hands were full of shopping spoils.

Entering the jewelry section on the fourth floor, she casually strolled in. The dazzling diamond rings in the display cabinet caught her attention.

Walking over and leaning against the counter, the reflections from the diamonds seemed to pierce through her heart, so bright and dazzling.

Then, a white figure approached her slightly, and she had no idea.

"Do you like that one?" Suddenly, a male voice startled Alita. She turned her head towards the source of the sound and was shocked.

"Samuel!"

She took a few steps back as if she had seen a ghost.

"Long time no see! Samuel stepped forward and embraced her. It had been his habit to greet her like this for a long time

Alita pushed him away without anger, just calmly saying, "Please don't do this anymore. We are not that close anymore,"

After that, she stepped out of the jewelry store. Samuel, who had brought warmth to her in the past, was ultimately a disappointing man. After a year, she no longer felt any anger toward him. Even if they were to meet again, she only wanted to keep her distance.

Samuel followed Alita out and walked beside her, putting his arm around her shoulder. "We can start over and get to know each other again." WwW.nOveL\(1\)wOrM.cOm

Alita responded with a mocking smile, shaking off his hand. "I know you well enough."

"I think you don't, Samuel said with a warm smile.

Alita stopped in her tracks. "Speak, what do you want?"

Samuel stood face to face with her and extended his hand. "Hello, I'm Samuel. Can we be friends?"

"Idiot!" Alita rolled her eyes at him, carrying a bunch of things and brushing past him.

She would not befriend a cunning and despicable man again

She left the department store and drove to a Ugla restaurant. Recently, she had developed a liking for beef curry. She had visited the place several TITSER

Choosing a window seat with a view of the night outside, she noticed Samuel nitting across from her at a separate table

This guy just would not give up!

Alita suddenly lost her appetite. She had known that after Jaydon found her, Samuel would come after her, but she didn't expect it to be so soon.

She ordered beef curry, curry crab, and dessert, which was enough for herself. She noticed that Samuel didn't order anything. He just asked for a glass of water and kept covering his nose with his hand, looking very uncomfortable.

Suddenly, Alita remembered that he didn't like spicy dishes. He especially hated beef curry, which also had a strong spice smell.

With a sly smile, she called the waiter and whispered a few words.

Ten minutes later, the waiter brought beef curry to Samuel's table. "Sir, this is courtesy of the Ind can finish them all, she will be friends with you."

As soon as Samuel caught a whiff of the spice, his stomach churned, and he quickly took out a handkerchief to cover his nose.

He looked at Alita, who was smiling at him, enjoying her food on the o other side.

This mischievous girl. She deliberately came here, knowing that he detested spicy food.

Alita playfully raised her eyebrows and thought, "Bastard, I won't let you off this timer

"If you don't eat, we can forget about being friends," she said with a chooky smile because she knew he would never eat it.

Covering his nose, Samuel stared at the food in front of him. Just looking at it made him want to vomit.

But if he didn't eat, this naughty girl would have a reason to reject him. If he ate it, she could only be friends with him.

He glared at her, put away the handkerchief, and, holding his breath, elegantly picked up a spoonful of beef curry and put it in his mouth.

Alita, sitting across from him, widened her eyes. Samuel actually ate it.

"The taste is not bad!" Samuel smiled warmly at her, eating with large bites while struggling with the spiciness and nausea.

His handsome face turned red from the spiciness.

"You're not allowed to throw up, or it won't count." Alita saw that Samuel was forcing himself and quickly raised shouted.
