

Jagged 1611

Chapter 1611

"Gentlemen, Your Excellency the President has issued an order to let our fleet set off immediately to go north to reinforce the Royal Navy and fight against the German Navy." After the White House meeting, Admiral Harold Stark hurried back to the Navy The War Department, said to the admirals gathered here.

Obviously, President Roosevelt has already made a decision to send the navy to reinforce the British navy. This is already a foregone conclusion, and no one can stop it. Therefore, the generals of the U.S. Navy can only find a way to follow the orders and ensure that the U.S. Navy can win the next battle.

Admiral Harold Stark had just finished speaking, and the generals of the US Navy could not help but frown.

"General, the British can't be sure that the main force of the German navy is in the waters east of Greenland, right? If this is a trap set by the Germans, once our main force is transferred away, the consequences will be disastrous." Nimitz said the admiral.

Although the U.S. Navy failed in the naval battle of the Azores, Admiral Nimitz, as the commander of the fleet, was not held accountable. The top and bottom of the U.S. Navy and even high-level U.S. officials believe that Admiral Nimitz is impeccable in command. The main reason for the failure is that the strength gap between the two sides is too great. Otherwise, the U.S. Navy would not have been defeated.

"Yes, General. This is too risky. Once our main force goes north and the German navy raids our east coast, our losses will be great." Admiral Ernest King also said.

Admiral Harold Stark nodded: "Everyone's concerns are not unreasonable. However, Your Excellency has decided to let the Army Air Force and Navy's shore-based aircraft be responsible for the defense of the east coast."

"General, I don't deny that the Army Air Force is very powerful. But it is very difficult for them to defend against the attack of the German Navy. Even if we have the help of air search radar, it can only detect a distance of 300 kilometers That's all. For the carrier-based aircraft of the Germans, it only takes more than half an hour or even less than half an hour to fly the 300 kilometers. At that time, even if the Army Air Force mobilizes troops, it will be far too late." Admiral Nimitz said with a serious face.

The east coast of the United States has too many important things. Among other things, once the shipyards on the east coast are attacked by the carrier-based aircraft of the German Navy, it will deal a heavy blow to the US Navy.

"I understand everyone's concerns. However, this is the decision of the President. We can only obey! In addition, the current situation is very unfavorable to us. Our strength alone is not enough to defeat the Germans. Therefore, We must unite with the British Navy." Admiral Harold Stark said.

The generals of the U.S. Navy fell silent for a moment. Everyone knew that the U.S. Navy, which suffered heavy losses, had lost its ability to fight against the German Navy. This made them have to join forces with the British Navy. If the British Navy suffered heavy losses this time, they would be completely unable to withstand the German Navy. At that time, the entire east coast of North America will face the attack of the German navy.

"One more thing, Admiral Marshall believes that the German Navy's target is likely to be Newfoundland. If the Germans occupy Newfoundland, then we will be even more dangerous." Admiral Harold Stark continued Said.

Suddenly, the expressions of the generals of the US Navy became more serious. They all know the importance of Newfoundland. Once Newfoundland fell into the hands of the Germans, they would be even less able to keep the Germans out of North America. The powerful German Army will land in North America more easily. At that time, whether it is the United States or the United Kingdom, it may be very difficult to resist the German attack.

"Can you be sure that the Germans have dispatched the Marine Corps or the Army?" General James Richardson asked.

Admiral Harold Stark shook his head: "I can't be sure now. But we have to guard against this. The defense of the British on Newfoundland is very weak. Therefore, we cannot give the Germans a chance. "

The generals couldn't help but nodded, and the British ignored the defense of Newfoundland. This made it necessary for them to dispatch the navy to buy time for the British to send army reinforcements to Newfoundland.

"Order the fleet to assemble. Tonight, our main fleet will go north. Join the British Navy in the waters south of Newfoundland, and prepare to deal with the Germans!" Admiral Harold Stark ordered.

"Yes, general." All the generals replied.

At 8 pm on October 14th, a large number of warships of the US Navy left the military port on the east coast and began to sail north. Among these warships, almost all the remaining assets of the US Navy are included. Nine "Essex-class" aircraft carriers, four "Independence-class" light aircraft carriers, and a large number of cruisers and destroyers are all here. It can be said that the remaining warships on the east coast of the United States, except for a small number of cruisers and destroyers, there are not many ships.

In order to resist the attack of the German navy this time, or to further defeat the German navy, the U.S. Navy has done its best.

At the same time, the main force of the British Navy was also gathering. Six battleships, four battlecruisers, eight aircraft carriers, and a large number of cruisers and destroyers were all assembled in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. After the main force of the U.S. Navy goes north, they will join the U.S. Navy, and then look for the German Navy for a decisive battle.

If only relying on the British navy's own strength, then they obviously don't have the guts to go to the German navy for a decisive battle. Because the British Navy knows that if the German

Navy really comes together with the main force, the strength of the British Navy alone is not enough for the German Navy to squeeze its teeth.

It is impossible for the main force of the U.S. Navy to go north to hide. After all, shipping on the East Coast of the United States has historically been very busy. Even if they were strangled by German submarines, there are still a large number of ships traveling between the east and west coasts of the United States or the east coast of the United States and South America.

And this also gave the German intelligence agencies the opportunity to plant spies.

A merchant ship sends a coded telegram after catching sight of the actions of the U.S. Navy.

A few hours later, the German fleet in the Atlantic already knew that the main force of the US Navy had gone north. There is no doubt that Americans and Brits have taken the bait. Everything is moving in favor of Germany.

Chapter 1612

In the mid-Atlantic waters, more than a thousand kilometers east of Bermuda, a huge fleet is cruising here. In order to ensure the safety of the fleet, anti-submarine frigates and destroyers patrol the periphery of the fleet. The sonar soldiers were even more engrossed in listening to the underwater sounds to ensure that they would not be mixed in by American submarines.

You must know that many U.S. Navy submarines are also operating in the Atlantic Ocean. It's just that their submarines are far less advanced than those of the German Navy. Compared with the German Navy's anti-submarine means, there is a huge gap. This also made the U.S. Navy's submarine force suffer heavy losses in the Atlantic Ocean, completely unable to compare with the German Navy.

Even so, the German Navy did not relax at all. Among other things, in case their tracks are discovered by the submarines of the US Navy. Then, the plan of the German Navy may fail. The key to the success of this plan was the raid on Bermuda. Once the Americans were prepared, they strengthened the defense of Bermuda, or assembled a huge fleet in the waters west of Bermuda. Then, the actions of the German Navy will be difficult to succeed.

Admiral Rolf Karls has not rested on the aircraft carrier Zeus. Although it was late at night, he was still discussing the battle plan with the combat staff. Hopefully, all the loopholes will be found before the fight really begins. So as to ensure that when the plan actually starts to be implemented, it will be impeccable.

"Your Excellency, Commander, a telegram has just been sent from the country, and the Americans have already taken the bait. A large number of warships of the U.S. Navy have already gone north. At the same time, the main fleet of the British Navy is also gathering. Obviously, they were frightened by the home fleet." Lieutenant General George Friedberg, Chief of Staff of the Fleet, said with a smile.

"Very well, since the Americans have taken the bait, then our plan has been more than half successful. Act according to the scheduled plan. Launch an attack on the military installations on Bermuda early in the morning the day after tomorrow to cover the landing of the marines!" Luo General Golf Karls said.

According to Admiral Rolf Karls, it is already unrealistic for the Americans to prevent the German navy from capturing the Bermuda Islands when the main force of the U.S. Navy has already moved north. According to the information obtained by Germany, the United States has only deployed one regiment of Marines on the Bermuda Islands. With such a force, it is obviously impossible to resist the attack of a German marine division.

With the combat effectiveness of the German Marine Corps, with the strong fire support of the Navy, it will be a matter of certainty to wipe out a regiment of the US Marine Corps. In addition, another marine division of the German Navy will also be stationed here after the capture of Bermuda. In this case, Germany has assembled two marine divisions on the Bermuda Islands, nearly 40,000 people. For an archipelago of only 70 square kilometers, such a force is undoubtedly very dense. Unless the U.S. Navy regains command of the sea in the waters surrounding Bermuda, and then invests a huge force regardless of losses. Otherwise, it would be almost impossible to regain the Azores.

"Your Excellency, Commander, with our strength, there is no doubt that there is no problem in capturing the Bermuda Islands. However, the pressure on your Excellency Marshal Lütjens may be greater." Lieutenant General George Friedberg said .

Admiral Rolf Karls nodded: "Yes, but I believe that the local fleet will be able to handle it. After we assist the Marine Corps to capture Bermuda, the main force can also go north to assist the local fleet. Heavy damage to the U.S. Navy and the British Navy. If the main forces of the U.S. Navy and the British Navy can be eliminated in one fell swoop, then there will be no suspense in this war. Our army will easily land in North America. The next step is the army It's about those guys. Our army can crush Russia with a torrent of steel. I believe they will be able to succeed in North America as well."

"No one can withstand the attack of the Imperial Army!" Lieutenant General George Friedberg also looked confident.

"Tomorrow morning, I will have a meeting with General Herman Boehm. In the upcoming battle, the command of our two fleets must be highly unified." Admiral Rolf Karls said.

This time, the Atlantic Fleet and the Mediterranean Fleet are operating jointly. This also makes the command of the two fleets must be unified. Otherwise, there will inevitably be confusion.

"Okay, Commander, I will arrange it." Lieutenant General George Friedberg said.

"This time, we must win! After the US Navy and the British Navy are completely defeated, I may be able to get the Marshal's Scepter!" Admiral Rolf Karls secretly said to himself.

The strength of the Atlantic Fleet is not inferior to that of the local fleet, and even in the naval battle of the Azores, they made more contributions. But Lütjens, the commander of the home fleet, is the marshal, and Rolf Karls is still an admiral now. Undoubtedly, Admiral Rolf Karls also very much hoped that he could go one step further and obtain the marshal's scepter.

Although the emperor of the empire was not stingy with the marshal scepter. However, in order to obtain the marshal's scepter, one must have enough military exploits. And defeating the U.S. Navy and the British Navy became an important guarantee for Admiral Rolf Karls to win the Marshal's scepter.

At the same time, the fleet commander Marshal Lütjens on the aircraft carrier Poseidon, the flagship of the local fleet, also received a telegram from China.

"Your Excellency, the Americans and the British have already taken the bait. Their fleets have begun to assemble. And the Atlantic Fleet and the Mediterranean Fleet will definitely start soon. Once they do, the Americans will find themselves I was fooled. At that time, we may be under a lot of pressure." Lieutenant General Carl Witzel said.

Marshal Lütjens nodded: "Yes, this will be a crisis for the local fleet. However, I believe that with the strength of the local fleet, it is enough to survive this crisis safely. Even, I hope We can also use this opportunity to defeat the U.S. Navy and the British Navy in one fell swoop!"

Marshal Lütjens has always believed that the local fleet is the boss of the German Navy's many fleets. Then, they should naturally make the greatest contribution in the decisive naval battle. This is why Marshal Lütjens asked the local fleet to perform the task of luring the enemy this time.

Chapter 1613

Admiralty, Toronto, Canada.

Sir Dudley Pound, Secretary of the Navy, Admiral John Tovey, Commander Atlantic, Admiral Andrew Cunningham, Deputy Commander, Admiral Harold Stark, Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Ze, Commander of the Atlantic Fleet, Admiral Ernest King, and others all gathered here.

The main force of the U.S. Navy is heading north, but the speed of warships is obviously not comparable to that of aircraft. Therefore, it will take time for the main fleet of the US Navy to arrive in the waters south of Newfoundland.

But the high-level officials of the two navies need to have a meeting first. Only in this way can it be ensured that the fleets of both sides can truly cooperate in this naval battle.

"Your Excellency, haven't you figured out the size of the German fleet yet?" Admiral Harold Stark asked. This issue is also of greatest concern to the U.S. Navy.

"Your Excellency, we have dispatched many reconnaissance planes, seaplanes and submarines to the southeastern waters of Greenland. However, the Germans were too heavily prepared. Our planes were shot down by their fighter jets, and the submarines were also shot down. It sank. Up to now, there is no definite news at all. I can only learn a few words from the telegrams that I know that the German fleet is very powerful." Sir Dudley Pound said somewhat helplessly.

After discovering that the German fleet appeared in the waters southeast of Greenland, the British Navy has not stopped collecting intelligence on the German fleet. However, unfortunately, it has not been able to succeed so far. A large number of reconnaissance planes and seaplanes were shot down by the German Navy's carrier-based fighter jets before they approached the German fleet. Some submarines that attempted to approach were sunk by anti-submarine frigates and destroyers of the German Navy. This made the British Navy only know that the German fleet that appeared in the waters southeast of Greenland was very powerful. But how big the fleet is, they don't know.

All the generals of the U.S. Navy could not help but frown. There was no way to obtain accurate information, which would make them encounter many obstacles in the next battle. At the same time, they were always worried that this would be a conspiracy by the Germans.

"The Germans were obviously prepared for this. That's why our reconnaissance planes, seaplanes and submarines were all killed by them." Admiral Nimitz said.

"Yes." Everyone nodded again and again.

"Your Excellency, has your country increased its troops to Newfoundland?" Admiral Harold Stark said.

Unable to figure out the size of the German fleet, it can only strengthen the defense of Newfoundland. In this case, even if Newfoundland is attacked by the Germans, it will not fall soon.

"We have already started to reinforce Newfoundland. The Army plans to send another five infantry divisions and one armored division to Newfoundland. In this case, even if the Germans want to land in Newfoundland, they will definitely collide there. It's bloody. However, it will take time to send more than 100,000 people to Newfoundland. And the Germans, will they give us enough preparation time?" Sir Dudley Pound said.

Obviously, this problem is more serious. Now that the German fleet has appeared in the waters southeast of Greenland, it means that they are not far from Newfoundland. If the German fleet really intends to launch an attack on Newfoundland, then, I am afraid that within two or three days, the battle will start. On the British side, it is obviously impossible to send a large number of troops to Newfoundland in such a short period of time. As for the U.S. Army, it is thousands of miles away. Even if they want to join the battle, it will take a longer time.

"Our fleet will arrive tomorrow at the latest. At that time, the two countries will form a joint fleet and go out to the eastern waters of Newfoundland to prepare to meet the German fleet. At this time, your country must seize the time to send additional reinforcements to board the fleet." Go to Newfoundland," said Admiral Harold Stark.

Sir Dudley Pound nodded: "There is no problem. Our fleet has also assembled and is ready to sail to the predetermined sea area at any time."

"The last question is the command of the combined fleets of the two countries. Although, the combined strength of our two fleets is not much weaker than that of the German navy. However, if we continue to fight on our own, it is very likely that we will be defeated. The Germans defeated them individually. Therefore, the United States believes that the fleets of our two countries must be commanded jointly." Admiral Harold Stark continued. In fact, this question is what they care most about.

The generals of the British navy looked a little unnatural. The intention of the Americans is undoubtedly obvious, and that is to hope that in the next battle, the British fleet will obey the command of the American fleet.

The generals of the British Navy are undoubtedly very proud. While the navy of the British Empire ruled the world's oceans, the Americans were still playing with small sampans. Even if they lost a complete defeat in the last world war, the generals of the British navy are naturally more suitable than the Americans to command the fleet to fight against the Germans. What's more, if the command is handed over, wouldn't they have to obey the orders of the Americans next? What if the Americans use them as cannon fodder?

Dudley? Pound Sir also frowned. Although, they have long expected that the Americans will make requests in this regard. However, handing over the command in this way still made them a little unwilling.

"Your Excellency, our two countries are now facing a life-and-death crisis. Therefore, we must cooperate with all our strength. Only in this way, if we gather all the strength of our two countries and fight the Germans with all our strength, we will have a chance of winning. I promise, in the battle against the Germans, they will be treated equally and absolutely will not be treated differently." Admiral Harold Stark said. He knew what Sir Dudley Pound was worried about.

Sir Dudley Pound nodded: "Well, in this battle, the British fleet is willing to obey the command of the American fleet!"

Sir Dudley Pound knew that this was undeniable. After all, the strength of the American fleet is stronger than that of the British fleet. The shipbuilding industry of the United States is also far stronger than that of the United Kingdom. If the two countries want to unite against Germany, of course Britain will take the lead. Sir Dudley Pound was worried about Admiral Harold Stark's guarantee. However, in order to ensure that they can resist the German navy's attack, or even defeat the German navy in one fell swoop, they must let go of their prejudices and work together.

Chapter 1614

"Your Excellency Prime Minister, we have reached an agreement with the Americans. Starting tomorrow, the Atlantic Fleet will accept the command of the Americans until the end of this battle." Sir Dudley Pound reported to Prime Minister Churchill.

Prime Minister Churchill nodded, although the command of his own fleet was handed over to the Americans, which made Prime Minister Churchill feel a little uncomfortable. However, in order to ensure their own safety, they can only do so now. Who made it impossible to compete with the Germans by relying solely on the strength of the United Kingdom? Otherwise, they wouldn't be so complacent.

"Who will command the battle against the Germans this time? Is it General Nimitz?" Prime Minister Churchill asked.

Sir Dudley Pound shook his head: "The American commander is Admiral Ernest King."

After hearing this, Prime Minister Churchill couldn't help frowning. Obviously, in his opinion, Admiral Nimitz is more qualified to command the fleets of the two countries. Although, Admiral Nimitz failed in the naval battle of the Azores. However, this also allowed Admiral Nimitz to further understand the situation of the German fleet. In this case, in this naval battle, their chances of winning will undoubtedly be a little greater.

"It seems that the factional struggle within the US Navy is also very fierce! After Admiral Nimitz failed in the naval battle of the Azores, it is difficult to get the opportunity to command the fleet again." Prime Minister Churchill said.

Sir Dudley Pound nodded: "Yes, may God bless us. I hope our fleet can defeat the Germans in this naval battle!"

Prime Minister Churchill also prayed to God for countless times. However, he knew that if he wanted to keep Britain, it was obviously unrealistic to just pray to God. In the end, he still had to rely on their own strength!

"Let the army speed up and send more troops to Newfoundland. If the Germans really want to take Newfoundland, we will face a bitter battle there." Prime Minister Churchill said.

"Yes, Your Excellency Prime Minister. The Marine Corps will also send two additional brigades to Newfoundland. By then, we will have hundreds of thousands of troops in Newfoundland. It will be completely useless to resist the German attack." Question," said Sir Dudley Pound.

"I hope so!" Prime Minister Churchill was obviously not so optimistic.

When the U.S. Navy and the British Navy reached an agreement and were preparing to fight the German Navy with all their strength. The plan of the German Navy is being implemented in an orderly manner.

The German Navy's home fleet continued to march from the eastern waters of Greenland to the waters of the Newfoundland Islands. It's just that after nightfall on October 15, they will return and return to the waters southeast of Greenland to distance themselves from the US and British fleets. After all, relying solely on the strength of the local fleet, it is undoubtedly very difficult to fight against the combined US and British fleets. Their task is more to attract the attention of the US and British fleets and buy time for the Atlantic Fleet and the Mediterranean Fleet to capture Bermuda. As for whether there is a chance to cheat the Americans and the British in the future, it depends on the further development of the situation.

The fleet composed of the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet and the Mediterranean Fleet continued to sail towards Bermuda. The combination of the two fleets undoubtedly has a very strong strength. The number of aircraft carriers alone has reached 13. Moreover, the number of "Lord God-class" aircraft carriers has reached five, plus four "Constellation-class" aircraft carriers and four "Deutschland-class" aircraft carriers, they already have enough strength to challenge the US Navy and the British Navy.

In terms of capital ships, the two fleets combined have a total of 15 ships. During the naval battle of the Azores, many capital ships were injured. But in the following three months, these injured capital ships were quickly repaired. Even if it is an old battleship, it still has powerful combat power. Especially when performing ground strike missions, those 380mm main guns are extremely powerful.

On October 15, after the sun sank to sea level, the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet and Mediterranean Fleet were less than 400 kilometers away from Bermuda. But the fleet continued on. Even if the United States has set up a naval base on Bermuda. But their sea search radar can only detect thirty to forty kilometers. Although the air search radar can detect 300 kilometers away, but it is night, and the aircraft carrier of the German Navy will not take off the carrier-based aircraft. As long as it is not discovered by the submarines and ships of the US Navy, the traces of the German fleet will not be exposed.

"Your Excellency, Commander, it is estimated that we will arrive in the waters near Bermuda at around 5 o'clock tomorrow morning." Lieutenant General George Friedberg said.

Admiral Rolf Karls nodded: "It is enough for the aircraft carrier formation to stay in the waters about 100 kilometers southeast of Bermuda. The battleship formation will directly attack the important facilities on the islands to ensure that the Marine Corps By the time of landing, all obstacles had been cleared."

"Yes, Your Excellency Commander." Lieutenant General George Friedberg replied.

"In addition, strengthen anti-submarine. Before we launch an attack on Bermuda, our whereabouts must not be exposed. Otherwise, the Americans will be prepared." Admiral Rolf Karls emphasized.

"Yes, Your Excellency Commander." Lieutenant General George Friedberg undoubtedly knew this.

The German fleet is constantly moving towards the target. Anti-submarine dreadnoughts and destroyers are cruising around the periphery of the fleet to ensure that no American submarines will get in. In this case, they will be able to approach Bermuda quietly.

At 3:30 in the morning on October 16, the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet and Mediterranean Fleet had arrived in waters 100 kilometers away from Bermuda.

At this time, the fleet separated. The aircraft carrier formation remained in the waters southeast of Bermuda. The capital ship formation continued to advance. They need to sail to the offshore of Bermuda, and then directly attack the military installations on the island with naval guns.

Although the U.S. Navy has also deployed shore-based aircraft on Bermuda. However, it is night now, and those shore-based aircraft of the US Navy cannot take off at all, let alone pose a threat to the German Navy's capital ship formation.

Of course, after the formation approaches the Bermuda Islands, it will still be discovered by the US military on the island. After all, the sea search radar on the island is not vegetarian. However, the German fleet is already ready to act, so naturally it will no longer be afraid of exposing its whereabouts.

Chapter 1615

There are 15 capital ships of the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet and Mediterranean Fleet, including five 'Bavarian-class' battleships, three 'Makensen-class' battlecruisers, four 'Helgoland-class' battleships and three A 'Moltke-class' battlecruiser.

Although, these warships are old warships that have been in service for more than 20 years and nearly 30 years. Even after modernization and modification, the performance of the battleship has been greatly affected and restricted. Compared with the newly built capital ships of various countries, there is a certain gap. However, no one can deny that these capital ships still have very strong strength.

During the naval battle of the Azores, the capital ship formation of the three major fleets of the German Navy achieved brilliant results by besieging the capital ship formation of the US fleet. Of course, these capital ships of the German Navy also exposed a lot of problems during the battle, that is, when facing the "Montana-class" battleships with extremely abnormal armor defenses, they would be in a dilemma. But even so, it cannot deny their powerful combat power. At least, these capital ships are fully capable of performing this attack mission. The 380mm main guns they are equipped with will have a devastating strike effect on those military targets on the Bermuda Islands.

At 5 o'clock in the morning on October 16, the battleship formation of the German Navy was less than 40 kilometers away from Bermuda. This distance is about to be discovered by the island's sea search radar.

However, the commanders of the capital ship formation of the German Navy didn't care about this.

"Your Excellency, Chief of Staff, tell the capital ship formation of the Mediterranean Fleet. After arriving in Bermuda, we will split up. We are responsible for launching an attack on Bermuda Island. The military installations on St. David Island and St. George Island will be handed over to them." Lieutenant General Weikes said.

"Okay, General." Major General Lazer nodded.

Although there are 7 main islands in Bermuda, the Americans did not build all the islands into military bases, but only built three larger islands, namely Bermuda Island, St. David Island and St. George Island. That's all. On these three islands, there are not only ports, but also coastal defense fortresses, airports, military camps and air defense positions, etc. After the U.S. Navy's disastrous defeat in the Azores naval battle, the U.S. Navy also plans to start further construction of the Bermuda Islands to further strengthen the defense here so that it can fully play its role as a gateway against the German Navy.

However, before the construction of the U.S. Navy had time to start, the German Navy was already preparing to attack Bermuda.

In order to ensure the defense of the Bermuda Islands, the US Navy built a lot of radars on the Bermuda Islands. There are not only air search radars, but also sea search radars to ensure that they can detect approaching enemies in time.

"Ah woo!"

An American soldier standing in front of the radar screen yawned.

This job was originally a boring job. Especially when you are on the night shift, it will undoubtedly be even more boring.

"Hey Carl, can I have a cup of espresso? I'm dying," said the Radarman.

"Okay, David. However, we can change shifts in two hours. Then we can sleep comfortably." The radar soldier named Carl said.

"Yes, my vacation is coming soon. I will apply for a vacation back home. If I continue to stay in this place where the birds don't shit, I will soon get moldy." David said.

For these officers and soldiers of the US Navy, stationing in Bermuda is indeed like being sent to the frontier. Many officers and soldiers on the island want to return to the mainland to garrison. In that case, not only will it be safer, but there will also be a lot more entertainment. It will not be like on the island now, except for duty, it is to sleep with the head covered.

"Returning to China? How is that possible? Now is the time of war, especially after emergency combat preparations have been issued, it is almost impossible for us to go back to China for vacation." Karl shook his head again and again.

Speaking of this, David couldn't help becoming dejected. He also knew that Karl was telling the truth. During the war, their interests all need to make way for the war. This makes it almost impossible for them to return home.

"Damn the Germans, they have already occupied the European continent, isn't it enough? They also want to further occupy the American continent." David said through gritted teeth.

"The Germans want to dominate the whole world. Their emperor's ambition is to have the whole world submit to him!" Karl said with a smile. In order to arouse the will of the people against Germany, the US government will also vilify Germany. There is no doubt that their propaganda has worked. Many Americans, especially young Americans, are very hostile to Germany.

"Damn German, * German Kaiser! If he appeared in front of me, I would definitely use a gun to beat him into a honeycomb, and then screw his head off." David said.

"Haha!" Carl couldn't help laughing.

"David, you are simply overthinking yourself. How could the German Kaiser appear in front of you? However, maybe the Germans will send a fleet to attack us. Then you can get what you want. But, in my opinion, you At that time, the possibility of being blown to pieces by the German naval guns may be even greater." Karl laughed.

At this moment, one after another light spots appeared on the radar screen. At the same time, the alarm sounded.

"Beep! Beep!"

Carl and David stopped joking, but ran in front of the radar display screen.

When the two of them saw the light spots on the radar display screen, each of them couldn't help but change their faces.

"God! How come there are so many warships approaching?" Carl exclaimed.

"Our warships have all gone north to reinforce the British. These warships are definitely not ours." David also said.

So, it is not a US warship, and it is rapidly approaching Bermuda again. The identity of these warships is undoubtedly obvious.

"God! These are German warships. The Germans are coming, and they are about to launch an attack on Bermuda!" David looked terrified.

Don't look at him just now saying that he wanted to screw the Kaiser's head off, but now that the German fleet is coming, he is almost scared to pee. Obviously, they all knew that once the German navy attacked the Bermuda Islands, it would be impossible to defend it with the strength of the US Navy on the Bermuda Islands.

Chapter 1616

"General, emergency, emergency!" The adjutant's voice sounded anxiously outside the door.

Brigadier General Jonathan, Commander of the Bermuda Islands Garrison, was woken up, but when he opened the door with an angry face and knew what happened, his anger disappeared completely. Instead, there was deep panic.

"General, the radar has detected that a large number of German warships are approaching the Bermuda Islands at high speed. It is estimated that they will arrive after half of them disappear, or attack us." The adjutant said anxiously.

"God! How did the German warships appear here? Aren't they in Greenland?" Brigadier General Jonathan exclaimed.

However, without the adjutant answering, he already understood what was going on. Obviously, this was a trap from beginning to end. A trap for America. The target of the Germans was not the British Navy, but the Bermuda Islands. The Germans used a fleet to attract the main force of the United States, while the other fleets began to attack Bermuda.

"Damn Germans, this is a trap, we are all fooled." Brigadier General Jonathan said through gritted teeth.

"General, what should we do now?" The adjutant was so anxious that he was about to cry.

Apparently, even fools know it. After facing such a situation, the US garrison on Bermuda will undoubtedly be very dangerous next. The United States Marine Corps has only one regiment strength on the island. Coupled with other coastal defense forces, air defense forces, and airport guards, there are only more than 5,000 U.S. troops in the entire Bermuda Islands. It is obviously impossible to rely on these people to resist the German attack. Although, they still don't know how many troops Germany will send to attack Bermuda. However, the Germans planned this operation so carefully, and they must have dispatched a large number of troops.

"Immediately send a telegram to the country to tell them that we have been fooled. In addition, let the country find a way to reinforce us. Otherwise, Bermuda will not be able to defend it!" Brigadier General Jonathan said.

"Yes, General." The adjutant immediately sent a telegram.

At the same time, the sirens on Bermuda also sounded. Countless American soldiers who were still sleeping in the dreamland were awakened. After they heard the siren, their faces changed drastically. However, well-trained, they quickly put on their clothes and rushed to their posts. Everyone knows that the battle is about to begin. They might die in battle, but as soldiers, that's their job.

U.S. Department of Naval Operations, Chief of Naval Operations Harold Stark Admiral has not left the Department of Operations during this time. After returning from Toronto, I plunged into the office, eating and living here. He knows very well that the next period of time will be a very critical moment for the US Navy and the entire United States. Therefore, instead of going home, he chose to stand ready. In order to be able to respond to various situations in a timely manner.

"Bang bang bang." There was a knock on the office door.

Admiral Harold Stark immediately got up from the camp bed, put on his clothes, and immediately went to open the door.

"What happened?" Harold? Stark Admiral asked.

"General, Bermuda has sent an urgent telegram. A large number of German warships are approaching Bermuda. The Germans will soon launch an attack on Bermuda." The secretary said.

"What? Bermuda Islands?" Admiral Harold Stark suddenly changed his face.

"Damn it, this is indeed a trap set by the Germans. Their real target is not the British Navy, nor Newfoundland, but the Bermuda Islands!" Admiral Harold Stark understood all this at once. up. But now, it is obviously too late. The main force of the U.S. Navy has already gone north to the waters near Newfoundland. It is more than two thousand kilometers away from Bermuda. Even if you go south immediately, it will take more than two days to arrive. And can the defenders of Bermuda survive for two days? That is obviously unlikely. What's more, if the U.S. Navy goes south rashly, no one can guarantee whether it will fall into another trap of the Germans. Once it is attacked by the German navy, which is waiting for work, the consequences may be even more unimaginable.

"Call the White House immediately and tell them about the situation. In addition, notify the Army Staff. Prepare the car, and I will go to the White House immediately." Admiral Harold Stark ordered.

"Yes, General." The secretary also knew that the matter was urgent, so he went to prepare immediately.

Admiral Harold Stark simply washed up, and three minutes later he got in a car and rushed to the White House.

When Admiral Harold Stark arrived at the White House, President Roosevelt also appeared in the office with the help of the waiter. Secretary of War Henry Stimson, Frank Knox of the Department of the Navy, General Marshall, Chief of the Army Staff, and others also arrived one after another. However, the expressions on everyone's faces were very ugly. Because they all knew that Bermuda was about to be attacked by the Germans. Obviously, this means that they were once again fooled by the Germans and fell into the German conspiracy.

Admiral Marshall's face looked a little embarrassed. The reason why President Roosevelt ordered the main force of the navy to go north was because he suggested that the Germans might launch an attack on Newfoundland. It is precisely because of this that President Roosevelt made up his mind. But now it seems that all of this is nothing more than a conspiracy of the Germans.

They sent a fleet to appear in the southeastern waters of Greenland, just to divert the tiger away from the mountain. The real target is Bermuda.

"Gentlemen, it is obvious that the Germans have once again used conspiracy and tricks. And we have been fooled again. Now, the Germans are about to launch an attack on Bermuda, what should we do?" President Roosevelt said blackly asked the face.

"Your Excellency, I am very sorry, because of my misjudgment, this led to such a difficult situation, and I am willing to take responsibility for it." Admiral Marshall did not choose to excuse himself.

"No, General Marshall, the judgment you made at that time was also for the safety of the United States. After all, if Newfoundland fell into the hands of the Germans, the consequences would indeed be even more unimaginable. We were all too careless. Let us fall into the trap of the Germans." President Roosevelt shook his head.

President Roosevelt did not intend to hold Admiral Marshall accountable. In fact, a talent like Admiral Marshall is very rare. He didn't want Admiral Marshall to take the blame and resign because of this. In that case, the power of the United States will be further weakened, which will be even more unfavorable to them.

Chapter 1617

While the President of the United States and the top military officials are regretting being fooled by the Germans, the German navy's attack on Bermuda is about to begin.

Before arriving off the coast of Bermuda, the battleship formation of the Atlantic Fleet and the battleship formation of the Mediterranean Fleet had already separated. The battleship formation of the Atlantic Fleet headed straight for Bermuda. The capital ship formation of the Mediterranean Fleet rushed to St. David Island and St. George Island.

On the battleship 'Bavaria', Lieutenant General Weikers was looking at the Bermuda Islands in the distance with a telescope. Even though it is still dark, the island in the distance looks like a monster lying on the sea. However, there is not much time until dawn now. Besides, the German intelligence agency has already figured out the situation in Bermuda very clearly. The German Navy is also well aware of the deployment of military facilities on the island.

"General, in five minutes we will sail to a place less than fifteen kilometers away from Bermuda Island." Chief of Staff Major General Lazer reported.

Lieutenant General Wilkes nodded: "Order the ships, get ready. Five minutes later, the shelling will start. Prioritize the destruction of the American airport, air defense facilities and radar stations on the island. Those guys in the aircraft carrier formation don't want them to be here. When the carrier-based aircraft took off, it was discovered by the American radar, and the Americans deduced the location."

"Okay, General." Major General Lazer nodded.

"After dawn, take off the seaplane to correct the results of the bombardment. Make sure that all the military facilities on the island are destroyed by us. The 1st Division of the Marine Corps will be here soon. We must occupy the islands in the shortest possible time." Lieutenant General Weikes said.

"Yes, General. We will definitely be able to complete the capture of Bermuda soon." Major General Lazer said.

Five minutes later, the five "Bavaria-class" battleships and three "Mackenson-class" battlecruisers of the capital ship formation of the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet have arrived in the sea area only fifteen kilometers away from Bermuda. These huge battleships have already turned their hulls horizontally, aiming their sides at the coast. The main guns were aimed at the coast of Bermuda.

"Fire!" The gunner of the battleship "Bavaria" first gave the order to start the attack.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!"

The three triple-mounted 50-caliber 380mm main guns of the "Bavaria" battleship began to roar. Heavy shells roared and hit the beach of Bermuda Island.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!"

A violent explosion sounded on the beach of Bermuda Island, and the shock wave swept around, engulfing the sand and gravel on the beach, and shooting around. When the gunpowder smoke dissipated, huge craters had been left on the sea.

The firing of the battleship "Bavaria" seemed to be a signal. The other capital ships also started shelling one after another.

For a while, the sound of cannons rumbled on the sea. The eight battleships of the battleship formation of the Atlantic Fleet of the German Navy began to pour shells into Bermuda crazily.

Shells hit the island one after another, leaving huge craters. At the same time, the military facilities of the US Navy on the island were also destroyed bit by bit under the fierce shelling of the German Navy.

The airport on Bermuda Island has become the target of the German Navy's key attack. At the same time, because the airport has a larger area, it is easier to be hit. This also enabled the capital ships of the German Navy to accurately drop shells on the airport.

"Boom!"

A 380mm artillery shell hit the airport runway. After the shell exploded, a huge crater appeared on the runway. The entire runway was almost blown in two. This made it impossible for the planes on the airport to take off.

Another shell hit the hangar, directly causing the aircraft parked in the hangar to be torn to pieces in a violent explosion.

Under the heavy shelling of the German navy, the entire airport is suffering a heavy blow. A large number of buildings were under heavy shelling by the German navy, and the airport was gradually being turned into ruins.

"God! It's over, our airport is over." A US military pilot looked at all this in pain. Their planes were destroyed before they could take off. This is undoubtedly very painful for every pilot.

If it is daytime, these planes may still take off at risk. Even those SBD2 dive bombers and TBD torpedo attack aircraft can use the aerial bombs and aerial torpedoes they carry to severely teach the incoming German fleet. However, it is not yet dawn, and they have no ability to fight back when the artillery shells at the airport have been destroyed.

The U.S. Navy still deploys a lot of fighter planes on the Bermuda Islands. The total number of fighters, dive bombers and torpedo attack aircraft exceeded one hundred. It's just that these planes are useless now and will be destroyed.

"Fight back! Fight back now!"

Inside the coastal fortifications, Brigadier General Jonathan ordered loudly.

The U.S. Navy has built some coastal defense forts on the Bermuda Islands. Large-caliber coastal defense guns are also deployed in these coastal defense fortresses. There are even 406mm coastal defense guns. It's just that the number is small, and it does not pose too much threat to the capital ships of the German Navy.

"Boom! Boom!"

The coastal defense fortress of the US military opened fire, but it was undoubtedly very difficult for the coastal defense artillerymen who were on the battlefield for the first time to hit moving targets on the sea. Unless God forbid, they're just wasting shells.

"Boom!"

A 380mm artillery shell fell from the sky and hit a radar station. The tall radar dish was torn apart in the explosion. The radar soldiers standing guard inside hurriedly escaped. However, the island is too small. It was as if the entire island was under attack by the German navy, and they had nowhere to hide.

Also attacked by the German navy were barracks and defensive positions on the island. Although, the U.S. Marine Corps has reinforced those defensive positions. However, in front of the large-caliber naval guns of the German Navy, these defensive positions are still no different from paper.

When the capital ship formation of the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet ravaged the U.S. military installations on Bermuda, the capital ship formation of the German Navy's Mediterranean Fleet also launched attacks on the U.S. military installations on St. David Island and St. George Island. . Although they have to deal with the two islands at the same time, their strength has to be dispersed. However, both St. David Island and St. George Island are much smaller than Bermuda Island and have fewer military facilities, which allows the capital ship formation of the Mediterranean Fleet to deal with it calmly.

Chapter 1618

"Boom!"

A 380mm armor-piercing projectile hit a coastal defense fort on Bermuda. The violent explosion made the entire coastal fortress tremble, and even a huge crack appeared. The coastal defense artillery inside were even more shocked.

"Damn it, did those guys cut corners when building the fortress? Otherwise, how could the fortress be damaged so easily?" Brigadier General Jonathan could not help cursing.

"General, the firepower of the Germans is too fierce. They have at least eight capital ships equipped with large-caliber main guns firing at us. Our firepower is too weak, and we can't resist it at all!" An officer said with an expression on his face. have no choice.

Brigadier General Jonathan certainly knew that the strength gap between the two sides was too great. But now, besides fighting to the end, do they have other options?

"Keep fighting! Even if the Germans eventually occupy Bermuda, we will make them pay a heavy price. We will let the Germans know that it is not so easy to defeat us!" Brigadier General Jonathan said firmly.

Although, the war experienced by the US military is not as good as that of the German army. Their combat capabilities and military literacy are not as good as the German army. However, in terms of confidence, the US military will not be much worse than the German army.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!"

The eight capital ships of the German Navy's Atlantic Fleet are still firing fiercely. The military facilities on the entire island of Bermuda are being destroyed bit by bit. I don't know how many American officers and soldiers died in the fierce German shelling. It can be said that the U.S. troops on the island have suffered heavy losses before the German marines have started landing.

As time passed, the sky gradually brightened.

"Take off the seaplane and provide correction for the bombardment!" Lieutenant General Weicks ordered.

Two seaplanes were released from the heavy cruiser and quickly took to the sky. With the guidance of these seaplanes, the bombardment of the German Navy became more accurate.

Under accurate guidance, military installations of the US military were destroyed one after another. Radar stations, airports, military barracks and fortifications were blown into ruins under the heavy shelling of the German army.

"How long will it take for the 1st Marine Division to arrive?" Weicks asked.

It is daylight now, and soon the sun will rise. The German Navy launched an attack on the Bermuda Islands, which means that the Americans already know the real attack target of the German Navy and know that they have been fooled. Therefore, the time left for the German Navy is also running out. They must take Bermuda in the shortest possible time. Then use the Bermuda Islands as a base to face the U.S. Navy and the British Navy here, and even further build it into a bridgehead to attack North America.

"General, the 1st Marine Division is expected to arrive in an hour." Major General Lazer said.

Lieutenant General Weicks nodded: "Let all the heavy cruisers join the bombardment. Try to further damage the defenders on the island before the Marine Corps arrives. Only in this way can the Marine Corps be able to attack in the shortest possible time. Capture the entire Bermuda Islands with minimal cost."

"Yes, General." Major General Lazer immediately went to give the order.

After receiving the order, the 7 heavy cruisers in the formation also joined the attack. The 210mm main gun of the heavy cruiser may not be able to deal with the strong coastal defense fortress. However, other military facilities still cannot withstand the 210mm main gun shells fired by the German Navy.

"Boom! Boom! Boom!"

The heavy cruisers one by one also joined the bombardment, and the three triple-mounted 50-caliber 210mm main guns on each heavy cruiser roared. Orange flames shone at the muzzle, and shells whizzed and smashed towards Bermuda.

"God! Are the Germans going to use artillery shells to sink the entire Bermuda Island?" David, who was hiding in the anti-gun cave, complained.

"Who knows what the Germans think. If they really want to sink Bermuda Island, then we will die." Carl's face was still full of horror.

Their radar station has been destroyed by German naval artillery fire. The two of them were lucky not to be killed when they were hit by shells. Then he hid in the anti-blasting hole for the first time.

"No matter what, we are probably doomed. The main force of our navy is heading north, and we don't have many troops in Bermuda. How can we resist the German attack?" David has a clear understanding of the reality. Know.

Carl was also silent. For them, there may only be two results in the future. One was killed by the Germans in battle. The other is to become a prisoner of the Germans.

"General, the military facilities on the island were almost destroyed by the Germans. The troops stationed on the island suffered heavy losses. The German shelling was too violent, and we couldn't resist it at all." The adjutant reported to Brigadier General Jonathan .

"Tell everyone that we must persevere. The country will soon send reinforcements to reinforce us. As long as the reinforcements arrive, we will be able to resist the German attack." Brigadier General Jonathan said.

"Yes, General." The adjutant nodded.

Although, I know that this is just a lie. However, in order to stabilize the morale of the army, this is the only way to deceive.

At 7 o'clock in the morning, the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps arrived in Bermuda.

One amphibious assault ship, two dock landing ships, four tank landing ships, and more than ten merchant ships, carrying nearly 20,000 officers and soldiers of the 1st Marine Corps Division.

"General, report from the fleet that they have completed the attack on the military installations in Bermuda." On the LQ-1 amphibious assault ship, an officer reported to Major General Oublitt, the commander of the 1st Division of the Marine Corps. .

"Very well, order the troops to prepare for landing! This time, it is the first battle after we have equipped a series of new equipment. I hope that we can successfully capture the entire Bermuda Islands in one go!" Major General Albright ordered.

"Yes, General." The regiment and battalion commanders of the 1st Marine Division in the office replied one after another.

Less than ten minutes later, the attack of the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps began. Two dock landing ships and an amphibious assault ship sailed to the waters more than ten kilometers away from Bermuda Island.

On the deck, helicopters are taking off. These helicopters include armed helicopters with rocket launchers and large-caliber heavy machine guns, as well as general-purpose helicopters and transport helicopters.

After the helicopter took off, it began to fly to Bermuda Island. At the same time, one after another landing craft also sailed out of these landing ships, quickly approaching the coast.

Chapter 1619

Elbo Beach, a flat beach on Bermuda Island, although there is no pier, it is very close to Hamilton, the largest city on the island, only a few kilometers away. If German marines successfully land here, then an attack on Hamilton can be launched. After taking Hamilton, the remaining troops of the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps will be able to go ashore continuously through the port. At that time, the German army will easily sweep the entire Bermuda Island and the Bermuda Islands.

The US Marine Corps has only one regiment in the entire Bermuda Islands. Except for the 3rd Battalion, which was deployed on St. David Island and St. George Island, the rest of the troops were concentrated on Bermuda.

Elbo Beach has also become a beach that the US Marine Corps focuses on defense. On this beach, the US Marine Corps has deployed a battalion of troops.

It's just that the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Regiment, 3rd Division of the US Marine Corps stationed here suffered heavy losses during the previous heavy shelling by the German Navy. Their defense zone was like being plowed by the German artillery fire. Not only were the fortifications completely destroyed, but casualties were also very high. Of the three infantry companies, two had suffered more than half their casualties. The remaining company also lost a lot. The battalion headquarters company and the firearms company also suffered a lot of losses. Not only were a lot of equipment destroyed by the artillery fire of the German Navy, but the casualties were also very high.

"God! What is that?" A U.S. Marine Corps soldier drove a helicopter flying towards them in the sky, dumbfounded.

Although the German Army has already invested heavily in helicopter operations on the Russian battlefield. However, on the Atlantic battlefield, Germany used this weapon for the first time.

"Those new German planes? But why don't they have wings?"

"Idiot, that's a German helicopter! Open fire, shoot down their helicopter. Otherwise, we will die!" A company commander cursed loudly.

"Da da da!" Several machine guns on the ground began to fire at the helicopters in the air, trying to shoot down these helicopters.

But the first battles are armed helicopters with relatively thick armor. It is very difficult for ordinary machine guns to penetrate the vital points, and it is very difficult to shoot down these armed helicopters. Unless it is a heavy machine gun with a caliber of 12.7 mm, or an anti-aircraft gun. Otherwise, it would undoubtedly be very difficult to shoot down these planes with ordinary machine guns and rifles.

"Shhhhhh!"

A helicopter gunship opened fire, and the suspended rocket launcher began to fire rockets.

Intensive rockets fell on the US military position, covering almost the entire position. Many American soldiers were torn to pieces in the explosion.

Amphibious assault ships of the German Marine Corps, each capable of carrying up to 40 helicopters. Including 12 armed helicopters, 12 utility helicopters and 12 transport helicopters respectively. There are also four helicopters in reserve. The dock landing ship can carry up to six helicopters, which are two armed helicopters, two general-purpose helicopters and two transport helicopters.

The amphibious assault ships and dock landing ships of the German Navy took off all the armed helicopters in the first batch. A total of 16 armed helicopters are enough to slaughter the US troops on the entire beach.

Follow-up general-purpose helicopters and transport helicopters are also taking off one after another. These helicopters are equipped with heavily armed soldiers. They will cooperate with the Marine Corps on the landing craft to break through the US defense line on the island in one fell swoop.

"Sir, the position of the 3rd company has been severely attacked by the Germans. They have dispatched a large number of helicopters. The 3rd company has suffered heavy losses and is about to fail." An officer reported to the battalion commander.

"Damn it, do the Germans really want to land from us? Order the 3rd company and hold it no matter what. Let the 2nd company rush to reinforce immediately. The battalion headquarters company and the firearms company deal with the German helicopters!" Major Battalion Commander ordered.

"Da da da!"

Faced with the German helicopter attack, the U.S. military suffered heavy losses. However, they also did not give up resistance. In particular, the battalion headquarters company and the firearms company are equipped with rockets and heavy machine guns. Among them, the battalion headquarters company is equipped with 3 anti-tank guns, 4 machine guns and 8 rocket launchers. The firearms company is equipped with 6 81mm mortars, 11 heavy machine guns and 7 rocket launchers.

"Da da da!"

Two 12.7mm heavy machine guns are attacking a German helicopter. The two heavy machine guns were concealed and were not discovered. Otherwise, it would have been destroyed by German helicopters with rockets.

Dense bullets enveloped the helicopter like a torrential rain. The 12.7mm heavy machine gun bullets were so powerful that they easily damaged the helicopter.

"God! We were hit, pull up immediately and get out of here!" The helicopter pilot yelled in horror.

However, it was too late.

"Boom!"

An explosion sounded, and flames quickly enveloped the entire helicopter inside.

This is the gas tank was hit, causing a fire.

The entire helicopter fell directly to the ground like a fireball.

"Haha, we shot down the German helicopter!"

"Long live, long live!"

The American soldiers on the ground cheered.

Before, when the German helicopters massacred them, these American soldiers not only suffered heavy losses, but also their morale plummeted, almost on the verge of collapse.

Now, they actually shot down a German helicopter, which undoubtedly only cheers them.

However, they seem to be happy too early. The war has only just begun, and the U.S. military just shot down a German helicopter. It is still very early before they defeat the German army.

"Damn, go to hell, Americans!" Another gunship immediately launched an attack.

"Shhhhhh!"

The rocket roared down, quickly wrapping the two heavy machine guns of the US military inside. In the violent explosion, the two heavy machine guns were blown into parts, and the machine gunner was completely torn to pieces.

"Da da da!"

Facing the attack of the German helicopters, the U.S. troops on the ground also continued to fight back. They attacked these helicopters with heavy machine guns, light machine guns and even rifles. But the effect is very limited.

Countless American soldiers were hit and killed by German helicopters with rockets or machine guns. These German helicopters have even dominated the battlefield. The U.S. military suffered heavy losses under the attack of German helicopters and was completely targeted for massacres.

When the armed helicopters showed their skills and massacred American soldiers, the follow-up general-purpose helicopters and transport helicopters also rushed to the battlefield.

Chapter 1620

"Da da da!"

The aviation machine gun of the helicopter is firing crazily, killing the American soldiers on the ground. Countless American soldiers were torn to pieces by German helicopters. Even those American soldiers who were not killed hid in the fortifications and did not dare to stand up again.

As the follow-up general-purpose helicopters and transport helicopters also arrived over the battlefield, the German firepower became even stronger. This also made the U.S. troops on the battlefield completely suppressed by the Germans, and the entire battlefield was under the control of the Germans.

"Start landing soldiers!" The commander of the German army gave an order.

Armed helicopters and utility helicopters patrol the battlefield, attacking the U.S. troops on the ground. And those transport helicopters began to descend after confirming that the ground was safe.

When these transport helicopters landed on the ground, the doors opened. The heavily armed marines filed out from the helicopter and entered the battle.

"Oh my God! The Germans landed in such a way!" an American officer exclaimed.

"Fire and destroy the German helicopter!"

"Phew!"

A rocket launcher opened fire, and a rocket trailed a long flame and rushed towards a transport helicopter that had just released the soldiers.

"God! American rockets, take off!"

However, it was too late. The rocket hit the transport helicopter. The weak armor was torn apart in the explosion, and the helicopter's fuel tank was ignited in the explosion. The entire transport helicopter burned into a burning fireball. The crew members were burned alive inside.

"Damn, pay attention to safety, suppress those Americans!"

"Shhhhhh!"

The German armed helicopters also began to attack, using the remaining rockets to destroy the American officers and soldiers hiding on the battlefield.

General-purpose helicopters are also firing. Although these general-purpose helicopters are not as powerful as armed helicopters, in addition to the aviation machine guns equipped, a crew member opened the hatch and fired at the ground with the heavy machine guns installed there.

The dense bullets were shot at the ground like a torrential rain, and those American soldiers who tried to stand up were shot and fell to the ground without dying. The rest of the American soldiers had to hide again, not daring to stand up again.

The German marines who had completed the landing began to attack the U.S. troops on the ground with the assistance of helicopters. Of course, those American soldiers were very brave and tried to resist. However, under the firepower from the ground and the air, these US troops could not resist at all.

A few minutes later, the marines in the landing craft also washed up on the beach. On the battlefield at this moment, the US military has been completely suppressed. This made it impossible for them to intercept the German marines from the sea.

As more and more German marines successfully landed on the beach, this made the US troops stationed on this beach completely desperate.

After being surrounded by the superior forces of the German army, the remaining US troops chose to surrender to the German army. The entire beach fell into the hands of the Germans.

After occupying Elbo Beach, the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps began a large-scale landing. Landing craft and helicopters, to and from the landing craft and transport ships, sent a large number of marines to Bermuda.

At the same time, several tank landing ships also appeared on the beach. Although, these tank landing ships cannot drive directly to the beach. But they can drive not far from the beach.

After the bulkhead in front of the tank landing ship was opened, amphibious tanks began to sail into the sea and head for the beach.

When other heavy weapons of the Marine Corps cannot go ashore, these amphibious tanks will become a sharp weapon for the German Marine Corps to capture the entire Bermuda Islands.

Each tank landing ship can carry 18 heavy tanks. Four tank landing ships can carry a full tank battalion.

When the 1st Amphibious Tank Battalion landed, the German Marine Corps began a new round of offensive. The German marines set out from Elbo Beach and advanced in two directions, north and south.

With the assistance of its own naval gunfire, helicopters, and tanks, the US Marine Corps could not resist the German attack at all. In addition, the U.S. military is already at a disadvantage in terms of military strength, and now it is even more suppressed in terms of weapons and equipment. The outcome of this battle seems to have been decided.

"General, we can't defend anymore. The Germans' offensive is too fierce. They have received fire support from a large number of warships on the sea, as well as helicopters and tanks. Our losses are very large, and we can't resist their attack. It's gone." A US colonel reported to Brigadier General Jonathan.

Brigadier General Jonathan's face was pale, even though he had expected that under the fierce attack of the German army, it would be impossible for them to hold the Bermuda Islands. However, he did not expect the failure to come so quickly.

"How long can we last?" Brigadier General Jonathan asked.

"General, in terms of the attack speed of the German army, we can last for up to two hours. Of course, St. David Island and St. George Island may be able to last longer because no Germans have landed yet. However, We have only one battalion of troops on St. David Island and St. George Island. Once the German army lands in large numbers, they will be defeated soon." The colonel said.

Brigadier General Jonathan nodded, he knew that the strength gap between the two sides was too great. This made them unable to persist in the face of the powerful German army.

"Colonel, let your people continue to fight. Of course, if you really can't fight anymore, you can make your own choices." Brigadier General Jonathan said.

"Yes, General." The colonel nodded, and he understood what Brigadier General Jonathan meant.

Under the fierce German attack, the U.S. troops on Bermuda did not last long. Just an hour later, the U.S. forces on Bermuda surrendered to the Germans. The Germans completely occupied the island.

Subsequently, the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps concentrated its forces and launched landing operations on St. David Island and St. George Island respectively.

The US military has fewer troops on these two islands, and it is even more unable to withstand the German attack.

Soon, the U.S. troops on these two islands were defeated and surrendered, making these two islands also fall into the hands of the German army.

It only took a few hours from the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps to launch the landing operation to occupy the entire Bermuda Islands. Moreover, the 1st Division of the German Marine Corps suffered very small losses during the battle. It can be said that this landing operation went very smoothly.