

Jagged 752

"Gentlemen, the arrogant Germans are killing in the Far East. Their fleet is brazenly attacking island cities. Countless island civilians died in their shelling. This is a trampling on the entire civilized world. The Republic of America, I can't bear it any longer. I hope that the government can issue an announcement immediately, condemning the cruel behavior of the Germans!" President Woodrow Wilson said.

"Your Excellency, it is not difficult to issue such a proclamation. However, we have to be prepared! Once we issue such an announcement, it means that we have already torn face with the Germans. Although it has not yet arrived The situation of military confrontation, but the relationship between our two countries will be completely affected." Secretary of State Bryan reminded.

"Yes, Your Excellency, this will make our relationship with the Germans even worse. However, we and the Germans are already destined to be enemies, so what is there to worry about?" President Wilson said.

"Gentlemen, it is impossible to achieve peace between us and the Germans. The Germans want to be the world hegemony, the real hegemony. They will try their best to suppress other countries. Unfortunately, the United States of America is the second Therefore, I can be sure that we will inevitably become the target of their suppression. In this case, why can't we take the initiative to attack? In that case, perhaps our chances of winning will be better." President Wilson continued .

"I support His Excellency the President's opinion! We have now started to prepare for war with all our strength. Of course, we are not as strong as the Germans in terms of military strength. But, don't forget that the Germans are not only our enemy. Their enemies are almost all over the world. The whole world. Making too many enemies will be the biggest mistake of the Germans. In future wars, they will suffer from it!" War Secretary Garrison said.

"I agree with Your Excellency the President!" Secretary of the Navy Daniels also said.

"Well, if this is the case, then I have no objection. Let's do it!" Brian said.

"Gentlemen, be optimistic. Although our enemy is very powerful, the United States of America is not weak. At least our current industry is stronger than the Germans. Unless they can fully integrate their occupied areas in Europe. Otherwise, it is impossible to surpass us in industry. And it is not so easy to integrate those occupied areas. Therefore, the Germans have nothing better than us except for their military strength. In If they make too many enemies, they will definitely lose to us in the end! As long as we can defeat the Germans, then we will be able to become the future world hegemony!" President Wilson said.

President Wilson is a very ambitious person. He deliberately wants to make the United States a world hegemon. Originally, this world war would be a good opportunity for the United States. However, it is a pity that the Germans were too tough. The United States has not had the opportunity to do it personally, and the Germans already have an absolute advantage. Under such circumstances, the Americans had no choice but to put away their ambitions and wholeheartedly make trouble for the Germans. But unfortunately, even if they exhausted all their intrigues, they still could not prevent the Germans from winning the war.

However, President Wilson will not give up easily. He hopes that one day he can lead the United States to achieve the goal of dominating the world.

On August 17, the U.S. government issued a harshly worded announcement, condemning the massacre of the people of the island nation by the German Empire in the Far East. The U.S. government declared in its early announcement that the behavior of the German Empire was discrediting the entire civilized world. Ask other countries and peace-loving people all over the world to put pressure on the German Empire and let the German Empire stop its atrocities.

U.S. Secretary of State Bryan even summoned the German ambassador to the U.S. to protest to the German government on behalf of the U.S. government. However, the German ambassador replied that this is Germany's internal affairs and the United States has no right to interfere. As for the war that broke out between Germany and the island country, it doesn't matter to the United States. If the United States wants to get involved, it is very simple, just declare war on Germany.

The tough attitude of the German ambassador made it impossible for US Secretary of State Brian to say a word. If he could, he would have asked the government to declare war on Germany. But he knew that declaring war was no child's play. Once the war between the two countries really breaks out, the consequences will be very serious.

Therefore, it is impossible for the US government to put pressure on Germany.

It was countless idle people who were hurting their eggs. After learning about the US government's announcement, they were affected and began to put pressure on Germany. Ask Germany to stop military action against the island nation.

Even some of them are Germans. They seem to have forgotten that the ongoing war has also brought a lot of pain to Germany. The victories that the German Army is winning are good for every German citizen.

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill also took this opportunity to make a speech, accusing the cruelty of the Germans. Claiming that if Germany wins the war, it will be a disaster for the whole world, calling on the world to unite and deal with the Germans together. However, there was no national response at all. They may be able to provide moral support to Britain. However, they will never really go to war with the Germans. Because they know that it is no different from courting death.

It was the people and soldiers of the British mainland who were encouraged and expressed that they would fight desperately against the Germans.

Austro-Hungary is an ally of the German Empire, but in this matter, the * seems to be sitting crookedly. Crown Prince Karl publicly stated at a banquet that the actions of the German Empire had indeed discredited the civilized world. Germany will soon become the victor in this world war, and has already gained too many benefits, so it should not kill for it.

Of course, Crown Prince Karl's statement cannot represent the opinions of the entire Austro-Hungarian Empire. After all, although Emperor Franz Joseph I of Austria was seriously ill, he was still persisting and could drag on for a while. Therefore, the will of the Austrian Emperor Franz Joseph I is the will of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. No matter what happened to the crown prince Karl, he had to wait until after the death of the Austrian emperor and after he inherited the throne, he could gradually change the relationship between the Austro-Hungarian Empire and the German Empire.

However, this can also show that the relationship between Germany and the Austro-Hungarian Empire has indeed come to an end.