

Jagged 819

"Call for air support, let the guys in the air team teach the British on the opposite side a good lesson!" A German major and battalion commander said with a dark face.

The area they attacked was a small park in London. In the center of the park is a hill. The British dug a large number of fortifications on the mountain, even bunkers deep into the mountainside. This made the German artillery unable to do anything to them. In the previous attack, they had left more than a hundred corpses in this park. This naturally made the major battalion commander very angry.

As a last resort, he sought reinforcements from the Army Air Corps.

"Yes, Battalion Commander!"

The communications soldiers immediately reported the problems they encountered to the division headquarters, and the division headquarters asked them to wait a while, and then contact the Army Air Force, which was responsible for bombing the park.

In the park, a British major proudly watched the retreating German army with a telescope.

"Hmph! The Germans claim to be number one in the world, so they are still defeated by us now? It's a pity that they retreated. If they continue to attack, we will surely fill the entire park with German corpses!" Ying Ying The major looked smug.

"Sir, although the Germans were repulsed by us, they will definitely not give up easily. Next, they will definitely launch a stronger attack!" A captain and company commander was a little worried.

"Hmph! The more Germans come, the better! The more they come, the more we kill." The British major officer said nonchalantly.

This British major is obviously very confident in their fortifications. The fortifications that go deep into the mountainside can even withstand heavy artillery. Coupled with the fact that they deployed a large number of machine guns on the mountain, this was enough to make the Germans smash their heads in front of their positions.

However, soon the British major will know how naive his thoughts are.

In less than twenty minutes, a plane from the German Army Air Force flew over the park. Eight F2 fighters covered 24 H1 bombers and arrived here. And, in order to deal with the fortifications dug by the British on the mountain, each H1 bomber carried only one bomb. These bombs are heavy aerial bombs weighing up to 500 kilograms.

If this place is located on the coast, it can be solved directly with the large-caliber main gun of the battleship. But unfortunately, the British placed a large number of mines at the mouth of the Thames River, making it impossible for German battleships to approach. Therefore, all fire support has to rely on the Army's own artillery and Army Air Force.

"Plane! The German plane is coming, quickly hide in the bomb defense hole!"

"Damn Germans, do they think they can destroy our fortifications by plane? It's just a dream." The British major hid in his headquarters and cursed.

The German H1 bomber began to lower its altitude. Bombs were dropped at a height of only five hundred meters from the ground.

Aviation bombs weighing 500 kilograms roared and smashed towards the fortifications of the British army.

The British soldiers hiding inside the fortifications saw that those planes dropped only one bomb. But when every bomb was extremely huge, his complexion suddenly became ugly.

"Why are the bombs dropped by the Germans different from before, much bigger than before? I don't know how powerful they are?" Many British officers and soldiers had such thoughts in their minds.

"Boom!"

There was a deafening explosion, and the whole hill seemed to tremble. The fortifications built by the British army on the mountain were immediately blown up. When the smoke cleared, a huge crater appeared on the mountain.

"God! How could this be?" The British major was dumbfounded, as if he couldn't believe it at all.

Immediately afterwards, other bombers also dropped bombs one after another.

Explosions continued to sound on the mountain, and the fortifications built by the British army were destroyed one by one. Even those fortifications built in the mountainside were not spared. Even if it was not blown up, it was collapsed by the violent explosion. The British army hiding inside suffered heavy casualties.

"Attack!"

The originally suppressed German army seized this opportunity and launched an offensive.

The British army, which suffered heavy losses under the bombing of the German Army Air Corps, could not resist the attack of the wolf-like German army at all, and was quickly wiped out. It took less than half an hour from launching the attack to taking the park.

The German offensive in the city of London was very violent, but also very smooth. Although, there are many British troops resisting. But these British troops are often hiding in the defensive offensive, trying to consume the vital strength of the German army with the help of fortifications. But they were often bombed indiscriminately by the German army, and they were easily defeated under heavy losses.

"Crunch, crunch!"

The German tanks are on the narrow street, and a squad of infantry is fighting behind the tanks.

At the corner of the street, a British 'Hound Dog' tank was hiding there.

The performance of the "Hound Dog" tank is a little weaker than the German Panzer 1 tank. However, in street fighting, the 37mm tank gun of the "Hound Dog" tank can also cut through the armor of the No. 1 tank as easily as a knife cuts tofu.

The armored forces of the British army also know very well that because of the gap between the performance of the tank and the quality of the tank, if it is in a field battle, they are not the opponents of the German army at all. Therefore, they simply deployed tanks in urban areas as a defensive force. The tank gun of the tank can destroy the German tanks, and the machine gun of the tank is even more powerful against the infantry.

The No. 1 tank of the German army did not realize the danger and continued to advance.

"Boom!"

When the distance between the two sides was reduced to 100 meters, the British "Hound Dog" tank opened fire.

An armor-piercing projectile bombarded the frontal armor of the German No. 1 tank. Under the action of huge kinetic energy, the armor-piercing projectile easily penetrated the armor of the German No. 1 tank. At the same time, the ammunition inside was detonated.

The entire tank was hit into a fireball.

The German soldiers following the tank quickly lay down on the ground.

The machine guns of the British tanks began to fire, and the bullets flew over their heads 'whoosh, whoosh', making the German soldiers dare not raise their heads at all.

"Boom!"

There was another gunshot, and the British tanks fired again. This time it was replaced with a high-explosive bomb, and the shell exploded in the German queue, killing two German soldiers on the spot.

However, this tank of the British army did not last long. Soon, the German anti-tank guns moved up and destroyed it with one shot.