

Jagged 934

The German army successfully dug out dozens of tons of gold from an ancient temple in Kerala, southwest India, which greatly inspired other troops. General Ludendorff, Commander of the 8th Army, and General Francois, Commander of the 4th Army, both issued orders requiring the various ministries to search for ancient temples and then excavate the wealth of those ancient temples.

For a while, hundreds of thousands of German troops were dispatched in battalions and companies to search for ancient temples in India and then excavated them. Some ancient temples did unearth gold or other treasures. But there are also ancient temples where nothing is found.

This behavior of the German army aroused strong dissatisfaction among Indian indigenous people, and the Congress Party and the Green Party Alliance also took the opportunity to stir up trouble. For a time, demonstrations and even riots against the German army broke out all over India. Some radical Indian natives even besieged the German army that destroyed the ancient temple. Of course, in front of the German army armed to the teeth, these Indian natives could not take advantage of it at all.

Both Generals Ludendorff and General François gave orders that once attacked, the German army can fight back with all their strength. And this caused heavy losses to the indigenous Indians. Many Indian natives died under the guns of the German army.

With their lives threatened, those Indian natives dared not oppose the German army anymore. However, the hatred for the German army was buried in their hearts. It was for these reasons that Germany was reluctant to rule India directly. In that case, they will face endless attacks from Indian natives. By then, the German army will be exhausted. If India is handed over to those lords to rule, these problems can be avoided. After all, it will be those native lords, not Germany, who will deal with those Indian natives at that time. Germany only needs to obtain fixed taxes from those land owners every year. As for how those native lords deal with those natives, it is not something that Germany needs to consider.

The actions of the German army in India also made those country owners very worried. They worry that the situation in India will get out of control. Therefore, Mir Osman Ali Khan, on behalf of the sovereigns, requested the German government to stop destroying ancient temples.

At this time, the ancient temples in India were almost destroyed by the German army. The German government then gave Mir Osman Ali Khan this favor and ordered the German army to stop the operation.

You know, the German army obtained 3,000 tons of gold from India during this operation. These golds are the wealth accumulated by the major temples in India for thousands of years. They buried these treasures in the underground palace of the temple. Unexpectedly, it is now all cheaper than Germany.

The land lords were in Berlin and did not leave until after the division of the land was completed. After they return to India, they will start to receive new territories. At the same time, with the help of the German army, the stability of India will be ensured. Germany will also provide these landowners with weapons and military instructors to help them train their troops. The German troops will not withdraw from India until the situation in India is completely stabilized.

After that, the German army had to launch an attack on Southeast Asia and Australia. The German military operations will not come to an end until these two colonies are captured.

On September 2, 1916, Kaiser Qian Tian held an imperial meeting. After the German army took India, it can be said that the German colonial system has basically been formed. Although Nanyang and Australia have not yet been won, it is foreseeable that these two colonies will be won soon.

Qian Tian held this imperial meeting with only one purpose, and that was to summarize the achievements and existing problems in Germany at this stage. The current German Empire, although it has successfully become the world hegemony. Possesses the most powerful military strength in the world. However, behind the powerful, there are still many problems. If these problems are not resolved, then it may not be so easy for Germany to win the Second World War in the future. After all, although Germany is the hegemon, other countries are not weak. What's more, if Germany wants to maintain its dominance, it has to defeat all those powerful countries.

Whether it is Russia entrenched on the plains of Eastern Europe, the remnants of the United States and Britain on the other side of the ocean, or the island countries in the far East, they are not so easy to deal with. Although Germany is very strong now, those enemies will inevitably unite after being threatened by Germany. It is foreseeable that if Germany wants to defeat those countries, it may have to defeat them who are united. This will make Germany face great difficulties.

After all, although Germany's strength is strong, it is not yet strong enough to surpass the combined strength of these countries.

"Everyone, thanks to everyone's efforts, the soldiers of the empire risked their lives to fight. The German Empire won the World War and dominated the world. Now, our colonies have stretched from Africa to Asia. It can be said that, Most of the colonies in the entire world belong to the empire. The empire has successfully replaced Britain and become the empire on which the sun never sets." Qian Tian said.

The military and political ministers of the empire all looked proud. Indeed, before the start of the last world war, everyone never thought that Germany would win the world war. In other words, it will win so thoroughly. Now Germany, Megatron world, makes them a little unbelievable. Many people even worry that this is a dream, and after waking up, it will become an empty dream.

"However, there are still many problems in the current empire. I think, as the military and political ministers of the empire, everyone understands it very well. You can deal with other problems as you see. Here, I want to mention the most serious one. The problem is also the greatest weakness of the empire! If the empire cannot solve this problem well, then it may be very difficult for the empire to win this war!" Qian Tian said with a serious face.

The expressions on the faces of the other military and political ministers were also very serious. Since Qian Tian said it so seriously, they knew it must not be a trivial matter. All along, Qian Tian's vision has never missed it.

"What I want to talk about is the population! Although the empire has become the world's hegemon, the population of the empire is too small! Now, the total population of the empire is only more than 50 million. Although, among the many powerful countries in the world, more than 50 million The population is not too small. However, if the empire wants to dominate the world, it is far from enough. If this problem cannot be solved, the empire's dominance will probably be like a flash in the pan, and it won't last long! In the next twenty years, the empire must solve this problem. This is related to the future of the empire," Qin Tian said.