

Not Rejected Just Unwanted

Chapter 6

JONATHON'S POV

I texted Elijah to bring Raine's truck to the pack house, since she told me earlier that her keys are still in there so that made it a lot easier. I glanced over at Raine asleep against the window, her lip was finally starting to heal along with the bruises scattered across her face. Why did those kids jump her like that? Just thinking about it pisses me off! Anyone who looks at her can tell she's a kind person. I mean, just look at how she couldn't even see straight and she was gonna attempt to walk to the school doctor and drive to the pack doctor just so I wouldn't miss school. Then there was the thing that was boiling inside my head. Why doesn't Elijah want her?

She's nice and caring, so it can't be a personality thing. Hell he -like me- never even talked to her before. And it couldn't be a looks thing because she's beautiful. Then I remembered, Rose. That's why he's gonna reject her. I told him dating her was a bad idea, hell dating anyone before you find your mate is a bad idea. Rose is good looking, yes, but she is a horrible person. When he's not around she does a complete 180 and turns into a complete bitch. She starts fights with anyone she can and uses the fact that Elijah is her boyfriend against anyone who gets in her way.

I've tried telling Elijah, but she has him wrapped around her finger. I don't know how someone like Rose got such a good guy like Elijah. I let out a sigh before turning into the drive way. I parked the car and turned to look at Raine again. These next few days are going to suck for her. The mate bond has been established so now every intimate thing Elijah and Rose do will bring her a lot of pain. Then she'd go through heat and that will be hell for her without her mate. I unbuckled and walked over to her side of the car. Carefully opening the door, I unbuckled her and contemplated waking her up. I took one look at her sleeping face and decided against it.

I had just picked her up and got her out of the car when I saw her black truck pull up. Elijah got out and made his way over to us. "Give her to me, now." He said trying to control himself.

"Go inside Elijah." I said tightening my hold on Raine.

"Not without her. You're not allowed to touch her."

"What gives you the right to make that decision?!" I said angrily.

Raine started to stir in my arms "Jonathon? What's going on?" she mumbled sleep still evident in her voice. I moved my attention away from Elijah and my eyes softened at the sight of her trying to bury her head further into my chest. I leaned down closer to her ear quietly saying "It's okay, just sleep." She nodded and fell asleep again almost instantly.

I looked back at a now VERY pissed off Elijah. He has no right to be mad, he doesn't want her. How can he tell Raine -on her birthday no less- that he, her mate, doesn't want her, then come here getting all pissy cause she's in another mans arms?! I took a deep breath trying to calm myself down to a point where my voice wouldn't wake up the sleeping girl in my arms. "You need to go calm down. We'll discuss this later." I said ending the conversation and walking away before he could say anything. I then walked up stairs to my room because I know for a fact she hasn't moved into the pack house yet. Once we turn 17 we move into the pack house, so we can be with our mates away from our parents, who live on the lower floors.

I carefully opened and shut my door before walking over to my bed. I slowly laid her down and covered her up before attempting to leave her to sleep. I only walked a couple steps before her small hand grabbed mine.

"Please stay." she asked her voice cracking a tiny bit "I don't want to be alone right now." her grip on my hand tightening.

"Are you sure?" I asked wanting to make sure that this is what she wanted.

"Please?"

I nodded walking to the other side of the bed. I took my shoes off before crawling in beside her. She turned over facing me once again burying her head in my chest. It wasn't long until her breathes evened out telling me she was asleep. Soon after fatigue came over me, so I placed a small kiss on the top of her head before nodding of myself.

I decided right then that I was going to protect this girl, no matter what happened.

Chapter 7

JONATHON'S POV

I didn't sleep long before I was woken up from Elijah. UGH! I was too tired to understand what he had said the first time. Whatever, if it's important someone will come and get me. I let out a tired sigh before turning to look at Raine. Her bruises were almost gone and her lip was closing up which was good. Hopefully her ribs are healing just as well. A few strands of her dark brown hair had fallen into her face, so I gently tucked them behind her ear. All of a sudden my door slammed open and Elijah stormed in.

"Jonat-" he started before he spotted Raine. "What the hell is this?!"

"Shhh! She needs to sleep so she can heal!" I whisper yelled as Raine started stirring burying herself deeper into me.

Elijah's eye's were switching between brown and black as he was trying to control his wolf. I remembered that he and I need to talk. I carefully moved Raine so I could get out of bed. Once I was successful I turned towards Elijah signaling to the door. He followed me to the training room, so we were away from curious eyes and ears. I shut and locked the door before leaning on it.

"What's your deal Elijah?" I asked "You chose Rose. You have no right to be acting this way."

"I know, okay? I know I don't! It's just-"

"Just what? You don't want her but you don't want anyone else to have her?"

He just looked at me with frustration swirling around in his eyes. I scoffed at him "That's bullshit and you know it."

He let out a sigh "She's my mate Jonathon. Whether I want her or not doesn't change that."

I was about to respond when there was a knock at the door. "Elijah? Babe are you in there?" a female voice called out. Ugh it was Rose, of course.

I rolled my eyes unlocking the door. I gave Elijah one last look before opening the door.

"Oh Jonathon! Is Elij-" She started asking before I cut her off.

"He's in here." I turned my head to the side "I'm gonna go make sure Raine is okay."

I turned and walked down the hall leaving a irritated Elijah and a confused Rose.

I opened my door as quietly as I could, so I didn't disturb Raine. Only when I looked towards my bed...she wasn't there. I looked everywhere in my room before I realized that the bathroom sink was running. I calmed down immediately and walked to the bathroom door.

"Raine? You okay?" I softly called out. When I didn't get a response I knocked again. "Raine?"

Still no response. I tried to open the door, but it was locked. Panic started to fill me again "RAINE?! RAINE OPEN THE DOOR!"

I took a few steps back before kicking the door open. My heart dropped at the sight I was met with. On the bathroom floor was a unconscious bruised and beaten Raine. I called out for help and tried to get her to open her eyes. "Raine come on open your eyes. Please wake up." Not long after people came in and thankfully they brought the pack doctor. I told everyone to back up and to clear the way as the doctor and I carried her back to the office.

"What happened to her?" the doctor asked.

"I don't know." I answered.

I looked down at Raine again to see the extent of her injuries. She had a gash on the side of her head that was bleeding a lot, she had a black eye forming, and her lip was busted open again. And that's just her face, I don't want to think about how her ribs are. Who did this to her? I didn't leave her alone for that long. This is the second time today that she was beaten, only this time no one was there to stop it. What did she do to deserve this?

A/N: Hey guys I know this isn't the longest chapter and for that I'm sorry. A lot of shit has gone down since I last updated. My sister essentially made it to where me and my family won't see my niece again and this morning my aunt passed away. I still tried to put my best into writing this chapter and hopefully it's not awful. After this all calms down, if I'm not happy with this chapter I'll rewrite it and let you guys know. Thank you for the love and support you've given this story and I will try to update soon. Happy Holidays
