

Kick Ass Wife 37

Chapter 37 Bridget Riker

No one in the Skydragon had ever encountered such an arrogant woman.

Soon, they realized that Isabella did have the right to be arrogant.

All of them, including Harper, noticed their bodies go stiff, and they could not move.

It occurred to them that Isabella seemed to have pressed specific acupoints on their bodies.

“What have you done to us? Who are you?”

Harper questioned.

They began to wonder if Isabella had come after them on purpose.

But the woman was scary.

Scar was shocked and asked in disbelief, “Is that the legendary acupoints pressing?”

Isabella chuckled and said, “Well. It’s something like that, but this is a piece of cake for a doctor.”

Under the dim light, Isabella smiled.

She walked around the house, ignoring the people on the ground and those standing. Then, she moved the sofa and found a metal button.

The expression on the Skydragon members’ faces changed when Isabella moved the sofa.

However, they could not move because Isabella had subdued them.

Isabella looked at the metal button with great interest and smiled at Harper and others.

“That’s great. I hope there’s a nice bedroom behind this button and a big bed.”

As Isabella spoke, she pressed the metal button.

Instantly, the bricks below her moved apart, revealing a path two people could walk through.

There were steps below the entrance. Isabella’s eyes lit up as she muttered, “Interesting! This is interesting. Without looking at the distorted faces of Harper and the others, she walked gracefully and calmly towards the entrance.

She saw another metal button by the steps when she was down there. Isabella pressed it lightly, and the bricks closed above her.

“Heh,” Isabella chuckled and walked down the dark steps.

Meanwhile, the atmosphere was tense outside the alley.

The three men of Martin found the most profitable asset the Skydragon owned.

They were surprised. They never expected the boss of the famous Hallow Club in Dawton City to be Harper. "The Skydragon is not simple," said one of the guards.

"Yes, I heard that the Skydragon has someone backing them up. It seems that it's true."

"Well, let's do this then. We will go and look for Harper Scott. But before that, let's inform Chief Drennon and General Gates about the situation here."

One of the members made a suggestion.

The other two nodded. "Okay. Let's do it."

They called Alan and Martin. After getting to know the situation, Alan and Martin headed to the Hallow Club. That was why Harper and his men did not bump into Alan and Martin when they got to the alley.

When Alan and Martin arrived at the Hallow Club, the three guards had already looked around but did not find Harper.

They could do nothing, and finally, Alan and Martin came.

The person in charge of the Hallow Club saw them, and he was flattered. He knew that the two were not ordinary people. Alan and Martin were the most trusted men of the Lockwood family's chieftain.

He would be offending the Lockwood family if he offended them.

The person in charge smiled and approached them enthusiastically and politely.
