

Kidnapped By The Alpha

Chapter 123— Anticipation

help us to click the ads and we will have the funds to publish more chapters

*FREYA*

The first thing I did when we arrived back at the pack airport was taking a deep breath, it felt like I had gone on a journey and now I was back home. I felt Jet's hand around my waist before he pulls me protectively to his side. I glance at him and our eyes met, desire coursed through my body and I blushed knowing we were both having the same effect on one another. The last day on the private jet was spent in the agony of wanting him but we couldn't do anything about it.

We were not alone most of the time, and to make matters worse, Jet would continue to tease me. Pushing me over the edge each time only for him to pull away before I could tip over. And now? I couldn't wait for us to be alone so I can have my own revenge. Hunter still kept track of Dane Grayson and the last time he was spotted was in Jacob's home. I knew deep down that he would be coming for me but I wasn't afraid, not only do I have a Gamma and Beta on my side but an Alpha who will protect me with his life. Something my heartless father failed to do.

"Welcome home Luna" Jet whispered close to my right here. "I can't wait to get you naked and ravished you" His voice deepened as he said that coursing my whole face to turn red. I elbowed him by the side as I pushed away from him, accepting Kale's outstretched hand as he lead me to the waiting car.

"Get yourself a mate and leave mine alone" Jet snarled at him as he went to the other side of the car. Two cars were already waiting for us at the airport, Hunter and Kale would ride in one while Jet and I would ride in the other. In as much as I wanted to share a ride with him I didn't want to, knowing he was only going to tease me again. There is so much a woman can take.

"I'm certain you and Hunter have a lot of business to talk about. I will share a ride with Kale" I tried not to laugh when Kale snickered in Jet's direction and before he could protest, I followed Kale into the first car. I poke my head out of the window a few seconds later to blow my furious mate a kiss.

"I still cannot believe this is an island, how come the humans aren't aware of this?" I asked the questions I have been dying to ask. I had always thought this was entirely another world that is not even on earth but when Jacob came unannounced that changed my mind. It was even an island, a huge island that seems to be a different world. It made me realize how little I know about werewolves and their worlds and fortunately I was here to stay so I have plenty of time to learn all about it.

"I believe the story dated back to centuries ago when an Alpha decided that werewolves living with humans was dangerous especially on a full moon night. Although werewolves were very hidden then but on a full moon night, it was very hard to stay hidden as we intend to come out, to hunt, kill, feed and other things" He paused briefly to look out of the window. "Fortunately, he was a man of wealth and fortune so he spend all his fortune on securing the island. His soul mate was an enchantress, so she place a barrier between the two worlds. From the outside world and to the human naked eyes... There is nothing to see here"

It was a fascinating story but I was still confused and curious to know more. "Then how come Jacob was able to see it?"

"If you manage to break through the barrier which is impossible then you can see everything. Jacob was only able to break the barrier due to the council's help and because he was working for them. Only a supernatural can cross the barrier and a human who is invited by a supernatural. You for example" He flashed me a cheeky grin. "You were invited despite you being mated to Jet, you cannot cross the barrier because you are human" That shouldn't make me sad but it did.

However I was distracted when I notice the car was slowing down, the first time I had seen the wolf security I had freaked out. That was when Seth was still the leader but he has been replaced by another large wolf, who stood in front of the rest. As they made way for our car to pass through, I reach out and wave at them, laughing at the howl they gave me back in response.

"Well, I'm glad to know not everyone hates me" I chuckled at my own words.

"No one hated you. They were just scared, no thanks to Morgana. She has been banished and she will have no access to be pack, Jet had addressed the entire pack before we journey to the human world. Everything should be fine" He assured me and we spend the rest of the ride chatting about random stuff.

An hour or longer than that later, we arrived at the castle and few minutes later, Jet's car also drove in. I looked around, noticing that nothing had changed but then I only left for about a week now. It felt like forever. It was great to finally see the healthy fresh grass, trees and whatever. Yes, I was sounding weird, it's just that I missed everything.

"Lady Freya!" A familiar soft voice cried and before I knew what hit me, Hazel was in my arms hugging me.

"Hazel" I also cried hugging her back, ignoring the curious gaze we were getting from everyone. Have they not witnessed a lady and her handmaid hug each other before. I broke the embrace to examine her. "Have you had your first transformation yet?" I inquired because I had promised her I would be there even though she told me it would be dangerous.

"Not yet milady, it is still two full moons away. I'm so glad you are back. I have prepared your chamber for you" She informed me and I smile.

Jet and I were separate after that, too many people wanted to speak with him so I followed Hazel to my room. The wall painting has been renewed, and some new decorations were added. I loved it but the feeling was soon replaced by sadness when I recalled the current situation Claire was in.

"Take me to Claire at once" Hazel's face fell at my words but she did as I asked. She took me to Claire's room.

From a distance, it looked like she was sleeping. No any visible wounds on her body, I touched her hand and it was warm. "Hi Claire. It is I, Freya" My voice cracked a little. "I'm so sorry" I mumble incase she could hear me.

"It was not your fault milady" Hazel said from where she stood by the entrance. Everyone kept telling me it was not my fault but yet I couldn't shake off the feeling that it was indeed my fault. Dane Grayson was still out there looking for me and the last time I check, he was working with the councils. What if he attacks us again?

I stayed a little while in Claire's room before returning to freshen up in mine. When I came out of the bathroom wearing nothing but a bathrobe, I was expecting to see Hazel and the food she left to bring for me. I was a little surprised to see Jet, sitting across the bed because I didn't think his subjects will release him so soon. All thoughts of hunger faded away in that instance as there was only one hunger I was feeling and it wasn't for food.

As I approached him, he stared at me like he was undressing me with his eyes and knowing the kind of mate I have, I knew he was. "Hi" I said a bit shyly as I stood in front of him.

"Hi yourself" He responded. "Would you prefer to stay here or permanently stay in mine? Since we are mated now, it is expected of us to share a room" He asked, dragging me down on his lap.

I wrapped my arms around his neck, a teasing smile on my lips when I felt his erection nudging against my ass. "Are you asking because it is expected of you or because you want me to?" I move innocently against him, enjoying the way his eyes narrowed at me. He knew what I was doing but not all of it.

I wanted to push him until he finally snapped so that when we make love, he wouldn't hold back because he was afraid he would hurt me. I wasn't made of glass plus I love everything he dishes out. Both the rough, slow, dirty, and all kinds of sex we had.

"You know the answer to that" He groaned out, his hands gripping my ass and squeezing it to restrict my movement. "So where is it going to be?" He asked in a distracted voice.

"Our room" I whispered in a sexy voice and that was it, his control snapped and he fling me over his shoulder and then carried me out of my room to his. I bumped into Hazel who was finally making a way to my room with the food I wanted, well that was before but now I wanted something else. My body hummed in anticipation!

.

.

.

TBC