

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1466

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1466-Edmund opened the cubicle door and saw Joey's hands dripping wet and his face all scrunched up.

"Sorry. I... I didn't mean to do it! Mister, I accidentally made Joey trip, and both of his hands went into the toilet bowl," said 'Bryan' guiltily.

Edmund was speechless. 'I guess it's true you can never take your eyes off of kids since all kinds of things can happen...' Edmund did not know whether to laugh or cry when he saw Joey looking at his own hands with disgust.

"It's okay, Joey. We'll just need to give your hands a good wash. Let's go over to the sink now," he comforted him.

Joey was kind of a clean freak as well. He was visibly made uncomfortable by the toilet bowl water on his hands, so he quickly nodded and followed Edmund over to the sink.

By the time Edmund turned around after he finished helping Joey wash his hands, 'Bryan' was already gone.

'Sh*t, this isn't good!' he thought with a frown.

Meanwhile, in the other private booth, Sophia was carrying the real Bryan in her arms.

Bryan did not like being carried by her, so he kept trying to break free.

"Let me down!" he cried with a repulsed expression.

Sophia hugged him tighter. "Stop squirming, Benjamin. Both your Daddy and I are here on business, so be a good boy and settle down!" Even though Sophia's tone was gentle, Bryan still could not help but feel intense dislike for her.

"No! I don't want you to carry me. It's hot!" Sophia frowned unhappily. "You're speaking nonsense again. How is it hot when the AC is on?" Bryan was frowning as well. "It's just hot! I don't want to be carried. Let me go now!" Sophia was starting to get impatient. "Benjamin, can you please stop..." "Just let him sit by himself if he doesn't want to be carried," said Jeremy calmly.

Sophia's face froze. Not wanting to argue with Jeremy, she had no choice but to let Bryan go. The only reason she wanted to carry 'Benjamin' was to show Jeremy what a good mother she was and not really because she wanted to be close to the little boy.

'Benjamin' dashed over to Jeremy and opened up his chubby little arms.

“Daddy, carry me!” Without hesitation, Jeremy picked him up and put him on his lap with one arm still wrapped around him.

Seeing this, Sophia’s face darkened. However, she quickly squeezed out a fake smile and said sarcastically, “Benjamin, didn’t you say you were hot? How come Mommy can’t carry you but Daddy can?” ‘Benjamin’ glared at her. “Hmph! You’re not my Mommy!” “Why you little brat...” Sophia immediately stopped smiling. “Zachary, aren’t you going to say anything? He wouldn’t call me Mommy before, and now he says I’m not his Mommy? Is this what I get for giving birth to him and raising him? Oh, how it breaks my heart to hear that!” Jeremy glanced at the hurt Sophia without so much as a changed expression.

“He would naturally call you Mommy if you respected him as a person.” Sophia looked even more hurt than before. “Are you saying I don’t respect him at all? It’s not like I can let him do whatever he wants, right? No! As his mother, I need to discipline him. He might act all good in front of you, but you have no idea how naughty he is when he’s with me. How can I not discipline him then?” Jeremy frowned with annoyance. “That’s enough! We’re here on business today, so let’s talk about this when we’re back. Plus, you’ll only scare Benjamin if you act all emotional now!” As much as Sophia was upset by Jeremy’s cold attitude toward her, she knew the auction house was not a place to have a public family argument. That could prevent the piece of land they were selling from fetching a high price.

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1467-Thus, Sophia had no choice but to suppress her anger. ‘I’ll show them what’s what when we’re home!’ she thought.

However, it was still hard for her to process her emotions so quickly, so she got up and said, “Please look after Benjamin while I go to the restroom.” After that, she strode out of the private booth angrily.

She had never been treated so badly by any other people in the world. The only two people who had ever made her that angry were Jeremy and Benjamin.

It was very frustrating, to say the least.

After Sophia went out, Jeremy looked down at the little boy in his lap. “Why did you say something like that?” he asked curiously.

‘Benjamin’ did not feel like he had done anything wrong. He really did not like Sophia from the bottom of his heart.

“I just don’t like her touching me!” he answered honestly.

Jeremy frowned. “No matter what, she’s still your mother. You can’t talk like that to your mother. You must respect her.” ‘Benjamin’ understood that, but Sophia was not his mother. For some reason, he would instantly feel a wave of repulsion wash over him whenever he saw her, so it was very difficult for him to respect her at all.

However, he simply nodded along to what Jeremy said since he did not want him to find out he was not actually Benjamin.

“Yes, Daddy...” Jeremy looked at him and sighed. His stern expression never disappeared.

‘This kid has been acting weird ever since he came home last night...’ he thought.

... Sophia angrily strode toward the restroom after she came out of the private booth.

She had nowhere to vent her anger. ‘How can that kid still refuse to call me Mommy after all the time and effort I’ve spent on that kid? Not to mention, he’s been getting more and more disrespectful!’ She dared not complain to her father because she knew he would be livid and teach Jeremy a lesson if she told her father what happened. Instead, she would always tell her father that she was happy living with Jeremy and Benjamin.

After all, she did not want history to repeat itself. What if Adam beat Jeremy a hundred times with a stick again? Jeremy had already become wheelchair bound, so Sophia did not think he would be able to come out alive if he received another beating from Adam.

Thus, she had no choice but to endure her suffering alone. Also, she had faith that Jeremy would warm up to her if she kept showing him how much she loved him. As for Benjamin, well... She could throw him away after Jeremy fell in love with her.

It would only create more trouble for her if she kept that ungrateful kid by her side.

She was so engrossed with her thoughts that she did not see where she was going. Suddenly, she stumbled into someone, which caused her to fall to the floor.

“Argh!” she screamed out in pain. She twisted her ankle! “Are you blind or something? Why didn’t you look where you were going?!” she shouted at the person who knocked her over.

The other person had fallen to the ground too and immediately started crying out loud.

Sophia became even angrier when she heard the cries. How could the other person cry first when she was the victim?

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1468-“Why are you crying?!” shouted Sophia. She looked up and was shocked to see the other person was Benjamin.

“Owie... It hurts!” cried Benjamin, holding his scraped knee.

'When did he come out?' thought Sophia with bewilderment. 'No, that can't be right. Even if he followed me out, he would've bumped into me from the other side.' In other words, the kid who bumped into her was the real Benjamin. Of course, she had no way of knowing that.

Benjamin had run out of the restroom to escape notice from Joey and Edmund.

He was in so much of a rush that he did not look where he was going, and thus he knocked into Sophia.

The little kid immediately stopped crying at the question. "I... I came out from the restroom and... And..." he tried to explain guiltily.

'He came out from the restroom? But how could that be when I was the first one out of the room? I didn't see him walking past me at all...' thought Sophia, puzzled. She looked to the front, then to her back. 'I guess he could've made one big round to get to the restroom, but... Could he really run that fast?' Benjamin started crying from the pain again. "Sob...sob...sob... I want my Daddy..." It was eerily quiet on the second floor, so Benjamin's cries sounded particularly loud. The patrons from the other private booth poked their heads out to see what was going on.

Embarrassed, Sophia had no choice but to pick Benjamin up and said, "Shh, be quiet. The auction is about to start soon. You're going to bother other people if you don't stop crying." She was worried that a crying kid would affect the auction.

Even though Benjamin did not reject her carrying him, he did not particularly show that he liked it either. He simply let her carry him back to their private booth.

... Jeremy was sipping his coffee quietly and thinking about something when they went in.

He turned around when he heard the door opening. Frowning, he asked them, "I thought you just went out. Why are you back here so fast?" Sophia sighed and was just about to explain what happened to him when Benjamin broke free from her and ran crying to Jeremy. "Daddy... Waaa..." Jeremy looked down at his son, who was crying pitifully, with a frown. "What happened? Didn't you say you were going out to say sorry to Sophia? Why are you crying now?" Benjamin did not know what his father was talking about. He had only just seen him, so when did he tell him he was going to say sorry to Sophia? Plus, what was he saying sorry for?

Moreover, why did not Jeremy seem at all worried that he did not go home for the whole night?

Sophia was a little taken aback by their conversation. "Zachary, are you saying that Benjamin went out just now so he could apologize to me?" Jeremy looked up at her and nodded slightly. "I spoke to him after you went out, and he said he'll apologize to you after knowing what he did wrong." "That makes sense!" Initially, Sophia thought it was weird to bump into Benjamin, who came from the other direction, but after hearing what Jeremy said, she was sure Benjamin must have accidentally taken the wrong way and made one big round to bump into her.

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1469-'Benjamin must be running very quickly so he could catch up to me,' thought Sophia. She was pleasantly surprised by Benjamin's gesture. 'I can't believe he's willing to apologize to me! Well, I guess there's a first for everything.' She decided to play the compassionate mother in front of Jeremy.

"Benjamin, I wasn't angry at you. But please don't speak like that to Mommy again. It breaks Mommy's heart whenever you say things like that." Benjamin had no idea what she was talking about. In fact, his dislike for Sophia increased after experiencing Corinne's warmth.

He turned his head away to avoid looking at her and snuggled himself closer to Jeremy.

Sophia's expression froze once more at being snubbed like that. However, she told herself that the kid was just feeling rotten from scraping his knees, so she decided not to pursue the matter.

... The auction had not really started. Corinne and Lucas were having might face during the auction.

Edmund suddenly rushed in with Joey. The usually calm Edmund was ashen in the face when Corinne, but I lost Mister Bryan due to my carelessness. We have no idea where he is right now!" "What?! Bryan ran off by himself again?" Corinne quickly stood up and rushed out of the private booth to look for him.

At that moment, the auctioneer walked up to the stage to officially announce the start of the auction.

Lucas got up to follow her out, but Corinne had not completely lost her sense yet. She looked seriously at him and said, "Stay here to look after Joey and Christine, Mister Lucas. Also, make sure you get that piece of land at Serenity Bay for me! Remember, no price is too high! I can look for Bryan by myself." Lucas frowned. As much as he was worried about Thus, he stopped walking and said, "Okay. Just be careful." "Will do," replied Corinne before she strode out of the private booth.

Lucas gestured with his chin for Edmund to follow her, which the other man did.

He then took out his phone to call the auction house's manager, instructing him to ask all the security guards to keep an eye out for Bryan.

... Bryan was lying when he told Jeremy that he wanted to go out to apologize to Sophia. He actually wanted to go out because he heard Joey's voice outside.

When Jeremy was lecturing him, he heard Joey calling out his name from right outside their door.

He wanted to see whether it was really Joey. Thus, he lied to Jeremy, telling him that he wanted to go out to apologize to Sophia.

Since Sophia had just gone out and could not have walked far, Jeremy agreed to let him go alone.

However, Bryan did not see Joey after he came out of the private booth. He decided to walk one round to see if he could bump into his big brother.

'Did I hear wrongly?' he wondered. For a moment, he thought himself lucky that his mother and Joey would be at the same auction as he was.

Disappointed, he started making his way back to the private booth. However, when he passed by the restroom, he suddenly had the urge to pee. Thus, he thought he would relieve himself before going back to Jeremy.

The Day I Kissed An Older Man Chapter 1470-After staying with Jeremy for a while, Benjamin felt like going back to Corinne again.

He wanted to stay with her for a few days before going back to Jeremy for good.

Thus, using his old trick, he looked up at his father and said, "Daddy, I need to go pee." "Okay, I'll go with you," said Jeremy as he got ready to wheel himself out.

Benjamin shook his head. "No need. I'm a big boy now, so I can go alone." Jeremy patted his head. "I know you're a big boy now, but I'm not going with you because I'm worried about you but because I need to pee too."

"Oh... Okay..." said Benjamin. He did not plan for this to happen.

Sophia quickly got up too when she saw the two of them were going out.

"Zachary, let me help you." Jeremy put up his hand. "No need. I can do it by myself. Plus, it's not appropriate for you to go into the men's restroom. You also need to stay here for the auction." It was indeed true what he said, so Sophia had no choice but to say, "Okay. Just be careful. Call me if you need help." Jeremy nodded and wheeled himself out with Benjamin in tow. Once outside, he made sure he kept himself at the same speed as his son so he would not knock him over.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the second floor, a woman was frantically searching for something.

Jeremy looked over. From where he was, he could only see her silhouette and not her face. He turned his attention back to the restroom once he and Benjamin reached the door, and the two of them went in together.

Benjamin remained in a daze once he was inside. He, too, saw Corinne outside.

He was sure that she was looking for him.

'What should I go? How can I get away without Daddy noticing so I can go back to that pretty lady?' he wondered.

Jeremy noticed his son zoning out. "What are you thinking about? Don't you want to pee?" Benjamin snapped out of his thoughts. "Oh... You wanted to go too, right, Daddy? Shall I wheel you in?" Jeremy waved him away. "No, it's okay. You don't have to worry about me. Do what you came here to do." Benjamin was saddened that his plan fell through again. He was hoping he could sneak away after he wheeled Jeremy into the cubicle.

He had no choice but to go into a cubicle under the watchful gaze of Jeremy. He closed the door and relieved himself.

Jeremy's expression relaxed after he saw his son go into the cubicle. He then took out his phone to check something.

Not long after, he heard the sound of a door opening.

'Well, that's fast,' he thought. He looked up and realized the sound of the door opening did not come from the cubicle his son was in.

Naturally, he assumed it was somebody else. He was about to look away when he saw a boy who looked exactly like his son walking out of the other cubicle.

'What the hell is going on? When did Benjamin change his cubicle? Did he do it when I was looking at my phone? Why didn't I hear anything?' he wondered.

Bryan was experiencing diarrhea, so he spent quite some time in the restroom.

After he was done, he opened the cubicle door and was greeted with the sight of Jeremy.

Stunned and thinking Jeremy had come to look for him, he was about to call him Daddy when he suddenly heard Corinne's voice coming from outside the restroom.
