Chapter 31

Chapter 31

"Naive?" Barry echoed as he glanced at Robert and asked, "What do you mean?"

Robert stretched out his right hand and tapped the table with his fingers. The sound of tapping echoed in everyone's ears.

"Barry, I thought that since you could start your own company, you would at least have your own ideas, but now I find that you can't even understand it! You don't even realize what the market needs, and yet you dare to talk to me about future development?" Robert stood up and continued, "As a developing city, Yrinas was one of the only two tourist cities especially approved by the government, yet you focused on building urban comfort. Were you thinking about raising the house prices this way? Do you know what the daily brain drain of Yrinas is? Do you know how many immigrants there are in Yrinas? Did you know what Yrinas is lacking the most right now? What are its strengths and weaknesses? You don't even know the basic policies clearly. Please, tell me, why should I cooperate with you? From the fact that you bought this proposal from someone else, the so-called excellent proposal, do you treat Yrinas like some piece of trash?"

As Robert was speaking of this, he threw the proposal submitted by Barry directly on the table.

The sound of the proposal falling on the table startled everyone present.

Barry's body trembled slightly. He didn't know anything about the question Robert had just asked, and he didn't even know about the information regarding the so-called tourist city!

Robert stared at Barry's dumbfounded face and smiled, "Barry, learn to walk first before you start running! Some of the companies had the same idea. Don't dare to come to me with something that you yourself think is good. What you all think is good and excellent, with all due respect, in front of the current market, is just trash! Carlos, next time I don't want to see any proposals like this in front of me!"

After saying that, Robert flicked his sleeves and strode towards the reception room. Carlos immediately followed Robert.

When Robert arrived at the door, Barry, who was a little closer to the door, subconsciously took a few steps back and made way for Robert.

The people in charge of the company in the reception room looked at Robert's angry face and didn't dare to raise their heads. They didn't expect a young man with such a youthful face could exude such a majestic aura! Just now, they were even under the illusion they were facing a giant enterprise!

Robert left the reception room. His tensed face suddenly relaxed when he walked out of the hall.

It was the first time he was faced with such an event. Hence, from the moment Robert walked through the door, he had kept a highly concentrated state. He didn't want others to see him as an immature heir of the Zabinski family. With his efforts, the people in the meeting room were indeed suppressed. Everyone could see that Robert was a young, decisive, and independent thinker. No one knew that Robert's back was drenched in sweat.

As a so-called scion, spending money was easy, but if he wanted to be deserving of the huge amount of resources and wealth suddenly given to him by his parents, he would have to put in more effort than anyone else.

Robert went back to his office and slumped over in the chair.

Carlos walked in with a smile on his face and closed the door of the office.

"Mr. Zabinski was a bit dashing today," teased Carlos.

Robert smiled bitterly, "Carlos, don't make fun of me. For the Zabinski family, today's event can only be considered a small event, right?"

Carlos nodded and advised, "In terms of identity, these people are insignificant in the Yrinas Business District. However, to some extent, no matter if you are dealing with these people or those with higher status, it is the same. There should not be any mistakes. After all, there are too many people at the moment who are focused on you in your current position."
