Chapter 80

Chapter 80

Dylan's heart was almost at his throat.

"No! I have to go to the sales gallery and apologize myself!" he thought.

Dylan's face turned pale. He took the car key from the table and was about to get up when he found that he couldn't even exert any strength. His legs trembled unconsciously, and his heart was filled with fear.

At the sales gallery of Bluespring Residence, Robert looked at the time before walking out of the office and found that the sales gallery was still dirty and messy. It was not cleaned at all. The ground was dirty everywhere, and the trash cans were filled to the brim. The five people who had been fired, including Natalie, were sitting on the couch at this time as if they were the final winner.

Seeing this, Robert was furious.

"What are you doing? I told you to clean up. Is this your idea of cleaning up?"

"What are you shouting for?" Natalie stood up. "There is no one here, anyway, so why should we clean up the place? For who? Can you even do your job as a manager? Leave if you can't do your job well. What an eyesore!"

Robert took a deep breath when he heard that. He had just read some personnel information about them and said, "Your name is Natalie, right? You're now fired. Please leave the sales gallery."

"You're firing me? Who are you to fire me?" Natalie crossed her arms over her chest and didn't take Robert seriously at all. "My uncle should have called you just now!"

"Your uncle?" Robert looked surprised. He had been wondering who Dylan had a connection with, but he didn't expect it to be this woman.

"That's right!" Natalie was particularly satisfied with the surprised look on Robert's face. "Mr. Yoder is my uncle! My uncle was the one who asked me to come, and you're firing me? Are you crazy? That's why I asked, can you even do your job as a manager? If you can't, then find someone else who can! Do you understand?"

"What are you so high and mighty about?" a female saleswoman chimed in scornfully. "Do you think you can threaten us anytime you want? So what if I'm fired? I'm not worried about my finances since my parents can support me. What right do you have to behave like that?"

"You're so young, but you're already acting around trying to be the boss around here!"

The others started to say whatever they wanted with confidence since Natalie was there to support them.

"Dylan Yoder, Mr. Yoder, right? Okay. I understand." Robert nodded.

With that, Robert had already concluded that Dylan should leave the company. Robert would need to put a stop to this nepotism by making an example out of this.

Robert's actions and tone made Natalie think that Robert was scared. She then pointed at Robert's nose and said, "What do you mean you understand? What's with your attitude? Don't you know how to apologize?"

Natalie felt humiliated when she was reprimanded by Robert in front of so many people.

Robert just looked at Natalie. He couldn't figure out why she was so arrogant. "Was it because Dylan is her uncle?" he thought.

Even if they were relatives, one should only be arrogant when they had their own strength to back it up. As for Natalie, she was arrogant and had a lazy attitude toward life. "What right does she have to be arrogant?" he thought again.

"Didn't you hear me?"

Robert's silence made Natalie push her luck even more.

Squeak!

A harsh brake sound was heard, and a Mercedes-Benz car stopped at the door of the sales gallery. When the door opened, Dylan ran into the sales gallery in a panic and saw Robert surrounded by Natalie and the others.

"I'll ask you again! Did you hear what I said? Can you do your job properly as a manager? I'll tell my uncle to fire you!" Natalie became more and more arrogant.
