Chapter 81

Chapter 81

Dylan was anxious on his way here, and when he heard Natalie's words, he almost stumbled to the ground. His face was pale without a trace of blood.

"Speak up!" Natalie screamed.

"Shut your mouth!" Dylan shouted.

Hearing this, Natalie looked back and saw Dylan coming. Her face lit up with joy. "Uncle, you're here! This is the man! You have to fire him!"

"Mr. Yoder!"

Everyone in the sales gallery also greeted Dylan.

Dylan didn't even look at Natalie. He strode to Robert and looked at the calm young man in front of him with trembling lips. "M-Mr. Zabinski."

"Hello, Mr. Yoder," Robert smiled. "Your family members are truly something."

"Mr. Zabinski!" Dylan knelt before Robert without hesitation in front of everyone, and everyone, including Natalie, was stunned by his action.

Everyone there was shocked when they heard the word "Mr. Zabinski" coming out from Dylan.

Only the people from the head office could make Dylan do what he did, and not just anyone from the head office. Only Mr. Zabinski could do it.

"This man is Mr. Zabinski? That's impossible! Isn't he just a newly appointed manager? But if he is just a manager, then why is Mr. Yoder acting this way? And who can explain why Mr. Yoder is calling that man Mr. Zabinski?" everyone there thought.

"Wait a minute! Mr. Zabinski! Zabinski Group!"

At this moment, Natalie and the others thought a lot, and a terrible possibility came to their minds.

Robert turned around and took out a pen and a piece of paper from the receptionist in the sales gallery.

"Dylan Yoder, the general manager of Hamhall Real Estate, tried to cover up for his relative and damaged the company's image and interests. From now on, he will leave Zabinski Group!" Robert said while writing.

Dylan's face turned pale when he heard that.

"Mr. Zabinski, I was wrong! I would never do that again! It was my first time to do so, Mr. Zabinski. I didn't know she would be this way! Mr. Zabinski!"

Dylan knelt down and begged aloud. This came from a 52-year-old man with a sobbing tone.

Being expelled from Zabinski Group meant that all the hard work he had poured in for the company was now going to the gutter from that moment onward.

Dylan's attitude completely dumbfounded Natalie and the others. Those salesmen who followed Natalie began to step back and kept a distance from Natalie.

"All of you." Robert glanced at them. "From now on, you are all fired! Of course, for all the adverse impact that you all had caused to Zabinski Group, our legal department will investigate this. No one can run from this!"

After saying that, Robert slapped the paper and pen on the table with a bang.

With a loud sound, everyone was scared and cowered.

"Mr. Zabinski, I'm sorry. We were wrong." A cute girl in her early twenties looked at Robert delicately.

"I gave you all a chance." Robert didn't even look at the person who was talking. "I know your parents have jobs and that they can support you when you run out of money, but this is not an excuse for anyone of you to loaf on the job, especially in my company! I don't care what your family is like, and I don't care who your family is! Adults should bear the consequences of their own behaviors. None of you can escape! Now, get out of here right now!" Robert shouted at them mercilessly.
