

The Love She Didn't Say by Mona

Chapter 15 Their twisted relationship

It was as if everything had changed at once, especially when he learned that Elena Forbes was so good to him that could even give her life, God gave him a big joke.

At this moment, he, without Elena standing next to him, the world, as if there is no meaning.

Elena Forbes looked at him coldly, her heart is a bit torn, she thought she his over him, but seeing him in this way, her heart still aches.

She let out a breath and said to Alston, "Go away, I'll pretend you never came, you didn't like me in the past, just keep it up in the future, I won't blame you for anything."

Alston Rivers covered his heart, a little breathless, "Elena, for the first time I know you are such a ruthless person."

Such a determined Elena Forbes, like a cocoon into a butterfly, beautiful and striking, compared to her, soft and weak Elizabeth Taylor is nothing.

At this moment, Alston Rivers suddenly rose a desire to conquer, he had a feeling that at this moment, she is the real her.

The previous Elena, in front of him, was always wearing a disguise, trying to make him happy.

At this time, Alston Rivers just forgot that that time, Elena Forbes, no matter what she did in front of him, was going to be disliked by him.

At that time, he almost dominated her everything. Elena Forbes thought, that after four years of marriage with him in addition to being hurt over and over again, she really gained nothing from him.

It's really ironic, they can't even pretend as a couple anymore.

Elena Forbes thought, what is the reason why Alston Rivers dared to treat her like this? It should be that she loves him deeply and can sacrifice everything for him.

As long as he wants, she would try anything to please him. She realized that this relationship, in fact, is twisted.

Not only because of her endless sacrifice, but also because of his endless demand, and he always pretends he doesn't know.

But is this possible? No matter what the truth is, as the president of the Rivers Group, Alston Rivers would not know anything? He just let it go.

After all, how could he possibly refuse when others were offering to his mouth.

Elena Forbes smiled at Alston Rivers, "Mr. Rivers, thank you for making me see all this, and my ruthlessness has always been only for those who should be treated cruelly, but hopefully, you will never be one.”

After finished, Elena pulled Joey Smith towards the villa.

Alston stood in the same place, lonely, he lit a cigarette, two puffs, and choked, throwing it to the ground, half bowed and coughed.

On the second floor, Elena was behind the curtains watching him, hand clenched into fists, she was afraid that once she lowered her guard, she would be all soft again and pulled that person in.

Joey poured a cup of warm water and handed it to her, “Miss, if you feel so much for him, why do you say such to hurt him?”

Honestly, he really didn’t see the point, if she likes him, just say so. “You don’t understand,” Elena’s face darkened, “I have nothing to do with him, anymore.”

Joey Smith shrugged his shoulders, did not feel that her words were much from the heart, more like she was just emphasizing that she should do so.

He does not quite agree with this approach, after all, such thing as feeling, it’s easy to go mad if you keep pressing it. Many books say so.