

The Love She Didn't Say by Mona

Chapter 6 Because he loves you

“Alston is allergic to peanuts,so nothing peanut-related can appear in this house.”

“He likes spicy food, but I know you can’t eat it, but in order to make him happy,you must overcome this,and I will also tell the nanny to make something lighter for you at every meal,so as not to make you feel overly uncomfortable.”

“He does not like to read but likes to exercise, but his heart is not good, he can only swim,yet not long.I will arrange for a swimming coach to teach you during this period.”

“He loves wine and will always get drunk;you need to monitor him.” Elena said much,much more. Elizabeth Taylor took a pen and followed Elena to take notes. In just two hours,she had filled several sheets of paper. She began to complain.

“I’m here to be his wife, not to babysit him, I don’t want to remember all these things.”

Elena stared at her,and the aura around her made Elizabeth take two steps back inadvertently

Inexplicably,she was somewhat afraid of Elena Forbes.

But it was clear that she is the winner.

Why does she feel that she has always been the one who has been manipulated?

“I’ll remember them all, alright?”

But once she thought that she would be Alston Rivers’wife in the future,even if she was reluctant to remember them all, Elizabeth could only choose to endure it.

Elena put away that coldness around her and continued to recount the daily routine of Alston Rivers.

She also took Elizabeth Taylor to the kitchen. Teach her to make soup.

“His health condition is not good, he needs soup, I will give you the recipe of several types of broth he likes,you make them successfully,then it’s the end of the day.”

Elizabeth frowned:“What if I failed?”

“Then do it again and again until you pass.”

Her words were like a command.

There is simply no room for Elizabeth to say no.

The hen is stuffed with ingredients,soaked in water and simmered on low heat for two hours,then various seasonings are added.

It was hard to wait for the soup to be ready, and when Elizabeth served the soup, she burned her hand accidentally.

She had been holding back her anger but lost it on the spot, her eyes reddened. "I've never cooked once since I grew up..... Why should I have to make soup for him all the time?"

Finished, she threw the ladle to the floor and just stared at Elena.

Elena looked at her evenly. "So, what you're saying is that you want to be pestered by your ex-husband again?" Elizabeth's face darkened and changed the subject. "Elena Forbes, don't threaten me, you know I don't like being threatened."

Elizabeth Taylor narrowed her eyes and spoke again, "Don't you have a dirty little secret you can't tell, just these days, I can see there is no other man around you, you are simply still in love with Alston, so you do everything for him. You love him, so why did you send him to me."

"Because he loves you."

Elena replied.

Elizabeth was stunned for a moment.

Then immediately cursed, "You're a pervert, using me as a tool in order to make Alston happy!"

"Marrying him, isn't that also what you want?"

"I want to be Alston Rivers' wife, for the sake of doing nothing, for his wealth, a carefree life, not what you had arranged, as his slave or maid, screw you, I don't want this, I would rather be pestered by my ex-husband, still I am free!"

After saying that, Elizabeth grabbed her things and left. If in her whole life, she has to be controlled by Elena Forbes like a Muppet. She might as well find someone else. Elena looked at Elizabeth's back and took a deep breath, helplessly. Then, she powered on her computer. Typed the notes, word by word, on the computer.