

Chapter 46 Transformation

Jessica quickly turns away from Eduarda . And that's when Eduarda gives a scream and falls to the ground.

Erick and Joshua run to her as well as Gaby and Peter.

Gaby is the first to try to pick her up , but with a pained expression immediately releases her saying:

"She is literally burning"

Peter thinking it's overkill also tries, and with a grimace quickly backs away.

"She's sure going to blow herself up" Jessica says but shuts up as she gets a hateful look from Erick.

Erick signals to Joshua to pick up Eduarda, and Joshua promptly picks up his sister but can't stand to take even one step before putting her down again, looking desperately at Erick he says through the link:

"Go get Draco, take him to the hut last time", seeing Joshua hesitate Erick orders: "Now"

Without any effort he bends down and picks Eduarda up, at first he feels as if she is going to burn him alive, but then as if her body and power recognized him and embraced him, for although he was no longer burned he could feel a film of heat enveloping him.

Without further delay he carries Eduarda into the forest as he believes what she has is not a doctor's case, realizing that Gaby and Peter are following them Erick uses his alpha tone and says:

"Go back to the academy now", seeing that they reluctantly return, Erick continues his way to Draco's hut.

Upon arrival Draco

and Joshua are already waiting , Draco tries to touch Erick's shoulder but is repelled by the strong heat wave and exclaims:

"Incredible she has created a heat field around you! But what's happening to her?"

"I think she's in the process of her first transformation," Erick says placing her on a bed

Eduarda screams and writhes , her eyes roll back into orbit, and her body snaps.

"Something is hindering the process," says Joshua in despair as he sees his sister's suffering.

"Take her and let's lay her down in the forest, maybe the environment will help," says Draco

Erick and Joshua, concerned about Eduarda's suffering, decide to follow Draco's suggestion and take her to the forest in the hope that the environment will help the transformation process. Carefully, Erick carries her and they walk towards a more secluded location.

Meanwhile, Draco

analyzes the situation and follows them closely. He is intrigued by the intensity of the heat field that Eduarda has created around Erick. Draco realizes that there is something extraordinary going on and that Eduarda is much more powerful than he imagined.

When they arrive at a quiet, shaded spot in the forest, Erick carefully lays Eduarda down on the soft ground. Still in pain and writhing, she seems to struggle against the changes in her body.

Draco, with his knowledge of shapeshifters, analyzes the situation and agrees with Erick that Eduarda is going through her first transformation. Knowing that this is a crucial phase for shapeshifters, in which their powers and special abilities begin to awaken.

Joshua, his eyes filled with tears, watches his sister with concern. He feels helpless in the face of the suffering she is facing. Erick, determined to help, looks at Draco and asks:

"What can we do to help you? Is there a ritual or some kind of aid that you know of?"

Draco ponders for a moment and answers carefully:

"The first transformation is a natural process, but in some cases, it can be more challenging for the shapeshifter. It seems that something is interfering with this process with Eduarda. We need to try to identify what is causing this difficulty."

As they talk,

Eduarda emits moans of pain and the environment around her gets even hotter.

Draco notices that the temperature of the forest is rising, and the ground begins to emit small ripples of heat.

"The heat field she is creating is intensifying," Draco says, worried. "We need to act fast before the situation gets worse."

Erick looks at

Joshua and Draco with determination, for nothing will take Eduarda away from him, and says:

"Let's come together and think of something to help Eduarda overcome this transformation," and kneeling down next to Eduarda says to her, "We are mates and I am here for you."

Draco nods, and they begin to think of possible solutions to soothe Eduarda's pain and ease the transformation process. Together, they explore their skills and knowledge, trying to find a way to help Eduarda through this difficult time.

Meanwhile, the energy and heat around Eduarda continues to increase, indicating that their time is running out and they may lose her forever.

Amidst the tension and despair, an idea pops into Draco's mind. He remembers an old tale about a rare plant with special healing properties that could assist in difficult transformation situations for shapeshifters.

"I remember a plant called Star Verbena. They say it has magical properties and can calm the body and mind during times of transition," Draco shares with Erick and Joshua.

The three of them look at each other, feeling a hint of hope in their worried expressions. They know they need to act quickly to find this plant and bring its power to help Eduarda.

Erick, with his unwavering determination, quickly stands up and says, "I'm going to go find the Star Verbena. Draco, you stay here with Joshua and look after Eduarda while I go out in search of that plant."

Joshua, though still distressed, agrees with a nod. He trusts Erick and knows that he will do everything in his power to save his sister.

While Erick sets off on his mission, Draco concentrates on calming Eduarda down. He uses his magical abilities to create a protective barrier around her, isolating her from the outside environment and reducing the intensity of the heat field surrounding her.

Draco approaches Eduarda, placing his hands gently on her. He channels his energy and sends soothing waves to lessen the pain she is feeling. "Eduarda, you are strong. Remember who you are and the power that lies within you. We will get through this together," Draco whispers, imparting words of encouragement.

Meanwhile, Erick explores the forest in search of the Star Verbena. He remembers a specific area where the plant used to grow and heads there, moving quickly among the trees and natural obstacles.

After an intense search, Erick finally finds the Star Verbena, with its bright leaves and delicate flowers. He carefully picks a few leaves and flowers, knowing that every second counts.

Back at Eduarda's

location, Erick returns with the Star Verbena in his hands. He hands the plants to Draco, who quickly begins to prepare a special poultice using the plant's healing properties.

They take the poultice to Eduarda, holding her gently while helping her to eat. Gradually, the energy and pain around her begins to subside. Eduarda seems to relax, and a sense of calm begins to spread throughout her body.

Draco, Erick, and Joshua remain by Eduarda's side, caring for her while the tea takes effect. They share words of encouragement .

As time passes, Eduarda begins to calm down even more. Her body stabilizes, and the writhing and moaning of pain gradually diminishes. The first transformation has been paused, and they know that this was a temporary solution.