

Chapter 64 They're Back

Unaware of the escape of his prisoners Hercules , walks around the training center as if he were the most innocent person in the world .

Meanwhile, inside the meeting room Lila stands in a leap with glassy eyes, which tells everyone that she is having a vision. Suddenly her eyes come into focus and she screams:

"Peter is coming back, and he is not alone he comes with Draco who has finally decided on the side of good"

Eduarda feels a strong emotion knowing that she would soon see her beloved uncle again.

Erick says:

"Send mixed groups of wolves, Lycan and vampires to run the surrounding terrain in case anyone tries to stop us from getting here, and as soon as they arrive bring them here", the captains of all the divisions made by Erick rush out to carry out this order.

They all know that it is of utmost importance that Draco and Peter manage to get back to them because for sure they knew the identity Hercules was using when he was infiltrated among them.

But before the captains reach the door Joshua says:

"Wait", and looking at Erick explains", it is likely that at this very moment Hercules and his followers are infiltrating the training center, and this could be our chance to end this without a war"

Understanding his Beta's point of view , Erick turns to the captains:

"Gather all those we are sure of loyalty, we divide them into two groups, one to run the perimeter and make sure Draco and Peter can get here. The other is to surround the academy, no one can leave without an order from me, now go "

Morfeo stands up and says:

"We better get to the courtyard, in case a battle breaks out we have to be there"

Erick nods in agreement, and holding Eduarda's hand firmly, they head for the courtyard.

About ten minutes later, although they don't know exactly what is going on, everyone can feel the anxiety that precedes the battle, Peter tries to leave the academy but is barred, which makes him extremely angry and suspicious.

Gaby is also barred from the academy and forced to go back inside. Whispers spread everywhere, everyone wants to know what exactly is going on.

Draco and Peter were close to the royal academy, feeling the tension in the air as they approached their goal. However, before they could enter, they were surprised by a group of Hercules' followers, who materialized before them.

It was an ambush meticulously planned by the ruthless tyrant. The followers advanced with fury, surrounding Draco and Peter, determined to prevent them from reaching the safety of the royal academy. The battle began fiercely, with the wolves fighting bravely, but the numbers and determination of their opponents were overwhelming.

The followers of Hercules attacked with ferocity, throwing dark magics and deadly blows. Draco and Peter were skilled, but they were at a disadvantage. It seemed that fate was about to betray them.

However, just when the situation looked bleakest, a group of wolves, lycans and vampires approached at high speed. They were the captains and their allies, carrying out Erick's order to run the perimeter and ensure the safety of Draco and Peter.

The arrival of the reinforcement was a ray of hope. The captains and their allies plunged into battle, fighting the followers of Hercules with fury and determination. The fighting intensified, and the battlefield became a frenzy of action and supernatural powers.

Draco and Peter took the opportunity to regroup and catch their breath. Together, they set out again against the followers of Hercules, fighting side by side with their allies. The battle was fierce, but the hope of reaching the royal academy drove them on.

The fight was intense, every move crucial. Draco and Peter faced their opponents with courage and cunning, using their strength and skills in harmony. However, the scales seemed tipped against them. It looked as if they were about to lose.

Then, at a decisive moment, one of the captains, leading his group with dexterity, landed a powerful blow that destabilized the followers of Hercules. Taking advantage of the opening, Draco and Peter launched a final attack, channeling all their determination and power.

With a joint effort, they defeated the remaining followers of Hercules. Silence fell over the battlefield, interrupted only by the heavy breathing of all the combatants. Draco and Peter looked around, their hearts filled with gratitude for the providential help of the captains and their allies.

The captains came forward, expressing relief and satisfaction that they had arrived in time to help. They congratulated Draco and Peter for their courage and determination, recognizing their importance in the fight against Hercules.

With the way finally clear, everyone gathered and hurried towards the academy, where the rest of the group was anxiously waiting for news.

As they approached the entrance, the injuries and exhaustion from the battle began to weigh on Draco and Peter, but they didn't let this diminish their determination.

As they entered the academy, they were greeted by looks of relief and joy from Eduarda, Erick, Lila, Joshua, Morfeo and all the other members of the resistance. The reunion was marked by tight hugs and tears of happiness.

Eduarda ran up to Peter, enveloping him in a warm hug. She could feel the strength and courage he exuded, and her admiration for him grew even more. Erick also expressed his gratitude to Draco, recognizing the vital role he played in the escape and the fight against Hercules.

But not everyone celebrates, one can notice among them some wolves, Lycans and even Vampires who are visibly uncomfortable with Peter and Draco's return.

Especially Peter and Gaby, who although they are on opposite sides of the camp act the same way, lose all color in their faces and try to disguise themselves.

But then Erick finally asks the question that everyone wants to know:

"Have you seen Hercules' face? Do you know who he is?"

The silence takes over the whole courtyard, but for a good observer it is possible to see a group of people converging to a point as if to protect something or someone there.

And that's when Draco and Peter pass their eyes over everyone present and their expression makes it clear that Hercules is there.

 Limited-time offer: 30 minutes of free reading>>

Claim Now