Chapter 261 - Loss of millions

"For this matter, the company will start to investigate, and I also hope Ms. Lindsay will give me some time."

After all she had been through, Adriana already did not have 100% trust in Theresa.

This time it happened so suddenly, something she had never seen in her years of practice.

Not to mention that it was also an employee of her company, how could it be so coincidental that it leaked the secrets of Huaxia Hengshui?

"Give you time?"

Theresa wrapped her arms around her chest and snorted, "As far as I know, Steff has left the country, right? No matter what, he is your YY Law Firm's man, and this matter is inseparable from your company!"

She had an arrogant look on her face and vowed not to give up.

Suddenly his eyes flashed slightly, glanced at Adriana, frowned slightly, and added: "In the end, you and I are friends, I can talk to my father about this matter and let him give you a few days' reprieve."

Theresa arrogant flame instantly extinguished a lot, the tone of voice calm a little, "You must find Steff, or I really can not help you."

"Okay, thanks."

Her sudden change of attitude made Adriana's mind wonder if she was overly concerned.

"Vivian see Miss Lindsay off for me."

Adriana instructed Vivian.

"Okay, Ms. Hale."

Vivian nodded and gestured toward Theresa, "Ms. Lindsay please."

Adriana and Theresa two people look at each other, eyes deepened a few, each other's eyes swirled with both sides can not detect the strange look, people can not understand.

Watching Theresa leave with a group of people, the office instantly exploded, people did not care to work, three or two people gathered together to whisper.

"Oh my God, how could this happen? If word gets out, our law firm will be finished."

"Who says it isn't."

"That Steff guy is really a rat turd ruining a pot of soup."

"Ms. Hale is in big trouble this time."

"The company is getting bigger and bigger, you get more ideas on departmental assignments and personnel promotions and transfers. Jenkins is not very good at that."

In the afternoon to leave, Adriana is still a little uneasy about the company, admonished: "This matter to the company's image caused a great impact, recently must keep the news."

"Yes, Ms. Hale."

"Go down."

Adriana was a little tired, propping her elbows on the table and raising her hands to rub her temples with a tired look.

Too many things have happened recently, she is really tired, now she just wants to take a good rest, but time does not allow.

She hesitated for a moment and called Theresa.

"Adri, what's up with the call?"

The voice on the other side of the phone was extremely gentle and extremely patient in asking questions.

"Theresa, I have to apologize to you for what happened today, Steff is an employee of our company, and I have an unshirkable responsibility for the bad influence and consequences to your company. But can you not announce this to the public for the time being until I find Steff?"

If the news spreads, it will definitely be a devastating blow to the law firm, and this must not happen.

She naturally blocked the news at the first opportunity.

"Don't worry, we are at least girlfriends, I still know the basic common sense. It's just that my father's side is not easy to explain, you must be quick."

Theresa said very understandingly.

"Thank you, I'll do my best. Bye~"

Hanging up the phone, Adriana looked at the string of phone numbers on her phone screen, her good-looking eyebrows wrinkled, and murmured, "Theresa, I really don't want you to be a thief and catch a thief."

Even though there is no longer a friendly bromance between the two, but also decades of bromance, Adriana does not want the situation to end up too stiff.

After spending some time at the office, Adriana packed her things and prepared to leave.

When he walked out of the office with his bag, he found Jenkins standing at the door.

The words show that they don't want to talk to him.

"Good, good, quiet, quiet."

Harlee nodded and didn't say anything.

Meanwhile, the office of the president of Alston Group.

"What do you mean, Adri went abroad?" Peter was a bit taken aback and asked again, "With whom?"

Hank shook his head, "Only went alone. But Mr. Soto seems to have taken the same flight." His seemingly unintentional reminder, but let Peter into a deep thought.

Sloane had told him about Adriana dining with Harlee, and this time Adriana was leaving the country without anyone else, yet she was on the same flight as Harlee.

Could it be that it is really a coincidence?

He couldn't be sure.

"Boss, this is the ticket for the nearest flight booked for you."

The meticulous Hank stepped forward and placed the ticket in front of Peter.

Peter's brow knitted slightly, picked up the ticket on the table and looked at it, falling into silence.

"Right. I also just learned that one of Harlee's new companies is in the same building as the young lady." Hank suddenly remembered something important and informed Peter truthfully.

"I got it."

Peter waved his hand and gestured Hank out.

"It's good to know I'm on top of my game day in and day out."

Harlee raised an eyebrow and smiled mysteriously, "I heard that something happened at your law firm, you didn't come here for that, did you?"

"How do you know?"

How did Harlee still know about the law firm when she had already told Theresa not to tell anyone?

"There's nothing in this world that I don't know that Harlee wants to know."

His tone was arrogant, and then he looked at her, "So it's really for this reason? I especially want to know, you are injured, Peter let you come alone, it is not really because that day in the western restaurant caused a misunderstanding, so that the two of you have a conflict, right?"

Listening to him ramble, Adriana was really a bit annoyed, so she simply lay down on the bed, "I'm tired, make yourself comfortable."

Knock Knock-

Not long after, there was a knock on the room door.

Adriana, perhaps because she hadn't adjusted to jet lag, fell asleep in bed.

When she opened her eyes and found Harlee still there, she couldn't help but frown, "Why haven't you left yet?"

"You cruel woman, little master to help you watch the dangling water, without me, who will show you?" Harlee teased a sentence, got up, pulled open the door of the ward, took a look at the woman standing at the door and walked away directly in a big way.

Anne looked at Harlee's back, walked in, closed the room door and couldn't help but smile, "Who was that, such a handsome little brother, when did you hook up?"

"Don't be ridiculous, a ingrate."

After thinking about it, I think the relationship between them is quite aptly described by the ingrates.

With Anne's knowledge of Adriana, she saw that she was not very nice, so she knew that their relationship was average.

"What happened to your foot, why are you still in the hospital?"

He walked to the bed, lifted the thin bedding and looked at the gauze bound foot, "You are injured and still trying to be strong, you can leave the Steff to me. I've been in LA for so many years, I'm not a vegetarian."

Adriana gave him a blank look, "If you're being so immodest, I'll get out of the car."

Harlee laughed softly and raised a hand to rub her brow, looking at her sideways, "Adriana, are you really stupid or are you just pretending to be confused?"

The sudden question made Adriana a little confused.

"What do you mean?"

"You really don't remember me?" He removed his sunglasses and pointed to his handsome face, "Take a closer look and see if you remember or not."

At the moment, Adriana's mind is racing, tilting her head to look at Harlee, looking at him carefully, looking around, but in the end, she can't remember who he is.

"Don't remember."

She shook her head with certainty.

Harlee's expectant face drops instantly, her smile tightens, she puts her sunglasses back on and mutters, "Idiot."

Start the sedan and leave in the dust.

Harlee's sudden anger made Adriana a bit baffled as well.

I touched my head and thought about it for a while, but I still couldn't figure it out.

The man who was driving saw her screwing up a small face and couldn't help but prompt, "Lagoondew primary school, that fatty."

"Which fat guy?"

"The fat guy you always beat up."

Adriana's dull eyes instantly blossomed with a ghostly luster, and her starry eyes held a hint of hope.

"Guess."

His words once again sent Adriana into purgatory, tortured, with a thousand holes and a heart flooded with heart-breaking pain.

It has been four days, Peter has not given her a phone call, not a message.

Now there is this kind of news about him and Theresa, is it possible that the two of them are going to make up?

Harlee's demeanor is bland, lifting the glass, sip the wine, but the eyes glance to Adriana, see her put down the phone that moment instant, good-looking and delicate cheeks all show the struggle of the meaning of children.

Seems to want to call the other person but doesn't want to initiate that phone call.

Therefore, it is constantly tangled.

"If you want to fight, fight, do things as you wish, then you can live with ease."

He raised his glass towards her, his seductive and provocative peach blossom eyes swirling with laughter.

Adriana's gloomy face squeezed out a small forced smile and clinked her crystal glass with his, "Who said I was going to call him?"

"Uh huh? Pretend I didn't say that."

He shrugged his shoulders and drained his glass of wine.

The dinner for two people, because of an episode led to a slightly depressed atmosphere, just silently bowed their heads and eat in silence.

Or rather, each has something to think about.

"What do you think about the Steff thing?"

Harlee was the first to change the subject, "Has it ever occurred to you that someone is behind the scenes?"

"Yes or no, we'll only know if we find Steff."

"Don't you ever suspect anyone?"

Between the lines, Peter was full of dislike for Edward, and then hung up the phone directly.

After seeing it from before, it is roughly the same as what Edward said.

That's what makes Peter feel so tricky.

By now, Theresa had gone up to the third floor, went to the door of Sloane's room, and knocked on the door.

"Come in."

With permission, Theresa pushed the door open and walked in, asking Sloane, who was lying on the bed playing with his phone, "Did you have someone send a message to your brother?"

Peter's sudden anger must have something to do with what happened to Adriana.

Besides, Sloane told her that Peter and Adriana had not been in touch for three or four days, and she felt that this was a seam and an opportunity.

Sloane put down his phone, lazily hugging a husky stuffed animal, and looked at her with raised eyebrows, "I'm doing you a favor. Theresa, I'm telling you, this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, don't blame me if you don't cherish it."

"Well, well, my sweet little Sloane, I know all the good you've done for me."

Sitting on the edge of the bed, he raised his hand to cup her cheek, "You and Auntie are the only ones who treat me the best in The Alston family. I wish Peter would be so nice to me sometime."

Harlee, who was being tugged by the arm, stopped walking and looked in the direction Adriana's eyes were glued, spotted a few countrymen, and asked, "Is there a Steff in there?"

"It's the one in the gray casual suit."

Adriana said.

"Come, take you to meet him."

"No, let her see me he'll run."

Adriana looked left and right, then walked up to a waiter and asked in fluent English, "Hello, do you have any masks on your side?"

The only way to make Steff unrecognizable is to wear a mask, this way.

The waiter nodded and turned to find something for her, and not long after brought up a sexy mask inlaid with shiny sequins and feathers.

But only cover the eyes and nose of the kind of half mask, extraordinarily good-looking.

Adriana raised her eyebrows and eventually put on her mask and gave the waiter a tip.

"Let's go."

The two held hands, forcing themselves to walk as steadily as normal so that Steff would not see who Adriana was.

He walked up to Steff's table just as Steff was winning and a Mediterranean man over 50 on the other side lost his money, got up and cursed his bad luck and left.

Harlee sits down with Adriana.

"Come on, let's play a game, are you interested?" He asked.

Steff is a smart man, looking at the stack of chips in front of him, winning a lot of money, some hesitation, "Play play play, always a good hand today."

He put his arm around the blonde in his arms, who handed him a cigarette and lit the fire for him.

Steff raised his hand and touched the blonde's breasts, smiling wilfully, revealing the inferior nature of the overnight rich, "Here, these chips are for you, play well with me tonight."

"Of course it's no problem."

The blonde wrapped her arms around his neck and sat on his lap, looking at him with affection and a charming smile.

Things brewed and fermented, and after ten minutes or so security came up and pulled the two apart.

They were taken to the negative floor, and Adriana followed with some concern.

When we arrived at the office on the negative ground floor, we found Harlee sitting happily at her desk, being served with good food and drink.

He was holding a glass of red wine in his hand, his legs folded and crossed on the desk, his posture casual.

"Harlee, you"

"Ma'am sorry, this is the boss's office, no entry."

Security stood at the door and blocked her, warning.

"What, boss?" Adriana's face was blue and white, her eyes narrowed slightly as she glared angrily at Harlee sitting in her office and yelled, "Harlee, you bastard, you lied to me?"

Chapter 270: Waverly breaks shocking news

The night breeze was slightly cool and mixed with a chill.

Adriana, dressed in thin clothes, shrank her shoulders, some coldness came to her heart.

Seeing this, Harlee tossed her the suit and said, "There is certainly a purpose to helping you, but now is not the time to let you know."

The more mysterious the phrase, the more Adriana felt that this matter was not right.

A sideways glance, meaningful eyes on Harlee, as if trying to penetrate his mind through that immodest sunny and handsome cheeks.

As a result, nothing was found.

The man just locked eyes with her, smiling and bending a pair of nice peach blossom eyes.

Under the dim light of the river, the silver studs he wore on his earlobes emitted starbursts, lining the smooth lines of the cheek contours more handsome, with a feminine and evil aura, the beauty of the charmed people.

Yes, it's beauty.

Beauty, more descriptive of a woman, but at the moment on Harlee is not incompatible.

It is a man who is more beautiful than a woman.

"With reservations, you would make me suspect your deliberate purpose in approaching me."

By virtue of her relationship with Harlee, she directly said what was on her mind.

"Yes or no, you will not know when the time comes."

He raised an eyebrow, his eyes fell on Adriana's cheek, the water brushed a breeze, lifting the bangs on Harlee's forehead, short hair clear, flowing and dashing, handsome Rex.

Adriana withdrew her gaze and looked away from the square, thinking deeply about Harlee's true purpose.

Sitting on the steps, but inexplicably felt a shiver run down my back, not knowing whether the floor was too cold or I was shocked by Harlee's mystery.

At that moment, a familiar voice suddenly appeared in the square.

Adriana stood up without saying a word and ran towards the other side, and at that moment she seemed to forget the pain in the palm of her foot.
