

Threat

Mira went into her room and laid at on her bed with her arm spread out at her sides. At least now she had the time to think about everything, carefully. She was given a second chance to change her fate, she was not going to misuse it.

Memories came ooding in her head, making a drop of tears roll down her face.

At this point in her previous life, she did not notice that Jason was trying to get rid of her. Everytime Eli pulls off a scheme against her and he takes her side, she always tried to explain to him that she didn't do any of those things but all she always gets is a scoff and Jason's harsh words. He knew from the beginning that she didn't do any of the things Eli accused her of but he himself was an accomplice or maybe a mastermind? So how could he let her go?

The thing is that Mira was the one who brought this pack to its state today as one of the powerful packs in the country. With her hardwork, connections and inuence, it was indeed possible so if Jason suddenly didn't want her as his luna anymore, if he cuts all ties with her suddenly, then all of these things that they had will also go with her and that was why they decided to get rid of her in her previous life by making her lose face rst, then her respect, her supporters and followers before nally framing her for murder and killing her. It was a good plan. By doing it like that, those supporters she brought in wouldn't be mad as they would also hate her and quickly pledge allegiance to him.

If she was not mistaken, at this time, maybe an hour or two from now. There will be an intrusion in their territory by a powerful enemy. The warriors will all gather to ght off the intruders. Eli would join in the ght too but now that she had suddenly fainted, she wondered if that was going to change.

According to how it went, during the ght later on, Eli would come in her way and she would mistakenly stab Eli with her sword which almost resulted in her death. Once again, everyone would believe she really wanted to kill off the mistress. They would think of her as evil and gossip behind her back and that was how it was all going to begin. Losing the respect the people had for her. No one wants a ruthless and evil luna, someone who wouldn't even let a weak girl off.

A click on her door made a frown appear on her face which quickly made her stood up in time to see Jason coming inside her room.

What does he wants now?

Mira eyed him warily as he moved closer to her. His face wearing a smirk.

"What were you trying to do out there hm?" He came closer to her in an imposing manner while Mira moved away from him feeling the dangerous aura he was letting out.

He was mad, yeah. Because his plan didn't entirely work out the way he wanted and now he wanted to take it out on her.

"What are you talking about?" Mira's calm and clueless gaze as she said this only added to his annoyance. He pulled off his belt and in one large stride, grabbed her arm and pulled her towards him. Seeing the look of fear that appeared in her eyes made him smirk in satisfaction.

"You... J-Jason, stop!" Mira squirmed in his arms feeling disgusted as his hands caressed her sides but she tried not to show it. Fear crept in her heart when she saw how his eyes changed, lled with lust as he looked her body up and down.

"How long has it been since I touched you huh?" He licked his lips and brought it to her neck where his mark was branded on her making her shiver involuntarily.

Gosh, she hated this. Maybe before she died, she would have been feeling ecstatic that he was taking an interest in her but no now. Not after she had seen his true colours. His evil nature. She didn't want him this close to her or touching her like this, she felt disgusted with every touch of their skin yet couldn't show it. She wanted to just smack his face and tell him to go to hell but she knew that would do nothing good for her.

She struggled but failed miserably as he pushed her to fall on the bed with him on top. He started to pepper her body with kisses. Enjoying how she was ghting desperately.

Mira breathed out, her st clenched at her sides as she realize that she couldn't stop him today.

Damn it! She couldn't scream for help either as they were husband and wife. He had that right.

"I want a divorce!" Mira announced through gritted teeth What followed was a disturbing silence. She saw how Jason's face turned dark, his eyes glowed making her gulp as she looked into them.

"What did you say?" His question came with a warning growl. He was daring her to repeat it again. Mira knew better than to ignore his warning but her mouth started to move on its own and against her will.

"Look, Jason. I don't care what you do or how many mistresses you have but I just have one problem and that is your sister. If you still want me as your wife, then you better treat me as one. You know very well what I can do to the pack if I no longer want to be a part of it..."

"You're threatening me?" Jason laughed, rather darkly. She had never heard him laugh like this before as it sent chills down her body.

She raised her chin up and met his menacing gaze, "I'm promising you."

Mira shifted away from him and wanted to stand on her own but Jason pushed her back. His hands grabbed her neck making her eyes y wide open in fright as he squeezed.

"Mirabel..." He called her full name for the rst time in a long while, "You've gotten much bolder huh? It makes me wonder if you have already forgotten your place."

Mira clutched at his hands on her neck trying to at least get in a breathe but his grip was so strong and she almost couldn't breath anymore.

A knock on the door made him release her and she quickly started to cough with her eyes red and wet.

"Leave." Jason spoke to the person outside the door but that person just knocked on the door again.

"Alpha, its urgent."

Mira recognized this voice as his beta. She hadn't seen him earlier and gured he must be out on a mission.

Jason threw her a threatening look which she understood quite well before going out of the door and meeting his beta, Andy.

"What's the matter?" Jason asked. A look of annoyance in his face.

"There's an intrusion in our territory. Three of our pack members are reported to be missing."

Jason's face darkened at this news. He wondered who would dare to barge in his land at this time of the night. Could it be a trap to get all the warriors out?

"What are you waiting for? Organize the team and inform everyone we have a breach."