

Chapter 24

Chelsea was furious at what Timothy and Luna said. She had called Timothy shameless just now, but that did no justice to describe just how awful the man was.

With his eloquence and the ability to twist words, he should just go and host a talk show!

She was certain he could make the audience roar with laughter.

Seeing as Chelsea was speechless, Timothy prodded her again.

"I said, where's the proof?"

Chelsea froze. She had never even met Lulu's new husband before, so she did not know what else to say at this moment.

She had no proof to show to Timothy.

During the five years that Lucy and Timothy were together, he only took her seriously in the first year. After that, he practically ignored her.

Previously, when Lulu whined about her period cramps to Timothy, he would just brush her off.

Even when he told her to take care of herself, he would say so in a reproachful manner despite Lulu's whimpers.

Moreover, every time they went out, Luna was the one riding shotgun instead of Lucy. She was always treated as the third wheel, and she was always the one footing the bill! However, all of this could not be used as evidence.

Timothy could simply deny the allegations and bite back at Chelsea.

Recalling everything Lucy had told her made Chelsea even angrier.

She wanted to tell Lucy that what she had with Timothy was not love at all.

After cheating on Lulu, Timothy even shifted the blame on her! Chelsea may be angry, but she was glad that Lucy saw his true nature before it was too late!

Even if the man Lucy married was a freeloader, he would be way better than Timothy.

He would not cheat on her after taking her money... right?

Chelsea was lost in her own thoughts while the argument was still on-going.

Timothy was happy to see Chelsea silent as that made her look guilty. It seemed like she had nothing left to say to refute him.

However, the reporters had a different reaction. They hoped that Chelsea would say a few more words so that they would have tangible evidence to prove Mr. Timothy's affair.

Timothy was the one who threatened them just now. They were the media, so they could write the story however they wanted.

The reporters decided that no matter who won the fight, they had to taint Timothy's reputation.

At worst, they could just find more people to back them up. If Timothy wanted to knock them down one by one, so be it. The cameramen thought the same. They wondered if they should turn off the live broadcast now so that the reporters could write the reports however they wanted.

Unaware of what the reporters were thinking, Timothy was going to say a few more words until a ringing voice interrupted him, "Timothy, how dare you bully my best friend again?"

He had been listening to that voice for five years, so he instantly knew that it was Lucy.

Turning around, he saw her standing in the distance. Next to her was a Rolls-Royce limousine and a tall, handsome man.

Timothy thought that it was an unbearable sight.

Chapter 25

Timothy looked at Lucy standing there and ridiculed, "You sure are well-informed, seeing as you arrived so quickly."

"Was I supposed to just stand by while I watched you and Luna bully Chelsea?"

She was usually a soft-spoken lady, but at that moment, she was surprisingly relentless.

"How could you say that, Lucy? I was just telling the truth. I didn't bully Chelsea!"

After hearing that, Luna broke away from Timothy's arms. Displaying her round, innocent-looking eyes, she intentionally stood in front of the camera.

"I was just asking Chelsea to persuade you to come home. Mom told me that you fought with her yesterday. She's worried about you."

"Stop with that act of yours. Everything you said just now was full of lies. Do you think people are foolish enough to believe you?"

Chelsea's full attention was on Lucy after she arrived, but when Luna spoke, she immediately turned to shoot her a glare.

Pitiful tears welled up in Luna's eyes as she said, "I didn't lie."

I'm very close to my sister. You've misunderstood me, Chelsea!"

Nobody there reacted to her words except for Timothy, whose heart ached to see her like that.

He quickly held Luna in his arms and comforted her.

Then, he took out a handkerchief to wipe away her tears before glaring at Lucy.

The sight of them together crushed Lucy.

Although she already knew about them a day before the wedding, it was still painful to watch them act like this in front of her.

Timothy had never once coddled her as he did with Luna in the five years that they were together.

It was not the first time she realized this, but it still hurt just as much.

Lucy was blinded by love back then! At this moment, she pulled herself together. Just as she was about to face the problem in front of her alone like she always had to, she felt a big, strong hand pat her head.

No words were said, but Lucy could feel a lump in her throat.

After comforting his wife, Matthew withdrew his hand and shot Timothy and Luna a nasty look.

They were going to pay for making his wife cry. Narrowing his eyes, he reminded himself to force Lucas Corporation into a dead end after this was over.

Timothy went from being proud to experiencing chills down his spine. He could sense that something bad was about to happen.

He shook his head to shake off the thought. He must be overthinking...

Chelsea stared at Lucy and Matthew with her eyes wide open. It seemed like Lucy had better taste in men now.

Lucy felt much better after Matthew comforted her.

Now that she had gathered herself, she could calmly face the disgusting couple in front of her now.

They no longer had a place in her heart.

Since they meant nothing to her now, she had no reason to get emotional over them.

She organized her thoughts and told the camera what happened.

"I don't care whether the viewers watching this in front of their television are going to believe me, but I'm going to tell you every little detail of what went down."

Chapter 26

Like sharks smelling blood, the reporters instantly stretched their microphones forward.

Looking at the eager reporters, Matthew frowned and pulled Lucy behind him.

Only then did the reporters notice the man in front of them. They were all stunned. Was this the freeloader that Timothy had just talked about? Was he joking or was he blind?

The man in front of them looked like someone who had been accustomed to bossing people around for ages.

How could someone like him be a freeloader?

Did Timothy say those words because he felt threatened by this man? After the reporters came to their senses, they stepped forward again...

However, Matthew noticed their movements and shot them a warning look.

The reporters were so frightened that they immediately regretted doing so. They could already tell that this man was not just an ordinary person, and he seemed to be on a whole other level compared to Timothy. Why did they even try to get closer?

After making sure that the reporters did not try any funny business, Matthew softened his gaze and turned back to look at his beloved wife.

Lucy did not notice the small interactions between Matthew and the reporters. She tried to keep herself calm as she told them everything.

"Timothy and I dated for five years. He was the one who started liking me first, but he started treating me coldly after the first year of us getting together. He stopped caring about me completely, but I didn't give up.

"I thought that he was just tired, and I believed that one day, things would go back to how they were. The day before the wedding, I went to deliver Timothy his suit. 1

"That was when I saw my dear sister and my fiancé on the same bed together," Lucy said emotionlessly while fighting the urge to vomit.

"Stop with your false accusations, Lucy!"

Timothy growled as he could not bear to listen to her anymore.

Luna's crying got worse, and tears were constantly streaming down her face.

Lucy could not care less about the show they were putting on. She calmly told the reporters everything, and it felt like she was finally pulling out the splinter from her heart that had been bothering her.

She shrugged at the camera and said, "You can choose to believe me or not, but everything I said was the truth."

She shot the couple a look and said, "Besides, what would be my motive to slander them?"

Matthew's attention was fully on his newlywed wife. He did not think that she had this side to her, but it was adorable to see.

Timothy gritted his teeth. He had to prove Lucy wrong, or Lucas Corporation's share price was doomed.

"I've told you that you don't have any proof. Plus, everyone saw the man you brought to the wedding the other day."

Matthew sighed. He was done being the bystander, so he came forward.

He stood at a distance from Timothy and smiled politely. "I was the one who accompanied Lulu to the wedding. Didn't you see me?"

"It seems like you don't have very good eyesight, Mr. Lucas."

Only then did Timothy notice Matthew standing next to Lucy. His eyes flared up, and he shouted to the reporters, "Look at this bitch! How dare she talk about Luna and me when she even brought her lover here?"
