

Life at The Top – Chapter 1470

Jasper's employment philosophy was to look at character before ability.

No matter how good their ability was, if their character was bad, then they were destined to never be able to handle major businesses.

Besides, Greg's ability was not bad.

"You should sit down and rest. I'm going out now. You can call me anytime you need something, as I'll be right next door," Veronica said.

After Jasper waved his hand and dismissed Veronica, Jasper did not bother behaving courteously. He sat directly in Greg's seat before he turned on the computer and started to check the information about Fliegen and Vinny Goldman that Wendy had sent over.

Ring ring. Jasper's phone rang.

Jasper, who was reading the information, picked up the phone.

“Damn, where are you?”

Henry’s angry voice came from the phone.

Jasper patted his forehead and said with a smile, “I almost forgot that I left you in the hotel and neglected you. I’m in Nim City now.”

Last night, Jasper and Henry left Harbor City together. The most important thing right now was to seize the moment to draw in as many active forces as possible before the final battle.

This had to be done by Jasper alone. No one else could replace him.

As for Henry, it was easy to understand that this guy could not stay put in Harbor City at all. Worse still, it was during such an eventful period. As such, Zachary was also worried that Henry would continue to conflict with the Atticus family if he stayed in Harbor City.

After all, Henry setting fire to Empire Meet was still the talk of the town. During this sensitive time, it would be safer for Henry to follow Jasper back to the mainland.

“Damn, are you still a human? I found a business partner for you, yet you abandoned me at the hotel!” Henry said while feeling pissed.

Jasper was surprised. “You found me a partner?”

“Hehe!”

In a relationship as close as Henry and Jasper’s, their complaints were often mindless banter which they would not take to heart at all. Hence, Henry’s attention was immediately diverted.

“A super rich country bumpkin. His family’s money is no less than that of any of the rich families. Even so, they have no prominent social status, so they always long to break into the real upper-class circles.

“This kid showed up just in time. I was thinking that you needed financial support the most right now, right? So I got this kid here just in time.”

Jasper quickly sifted through the big bosses of Harbor City according to the characteristics that Henry had mentioned in his head. However, he realized that many individuals met the described character.

After all, only the four wealthy families were the real upper-class of Harbor City. There were many other nouveau riches too, but it was rare that Henry would acknowledge their wealth.

“Stop guessing. They’re not in Harbor City. They’re from Nawait.”

Henry’s sentence caused Jasper’s eyes to light up.

“The Pullers from Nawait Semiconductor Manufacturing?”

This time, Henry was shocked.

“How could you guess? Are you a human or ghost?”

Jasper was in a good mood now. He asked, “Where are you guys?”

“We’re waiting for you in Waterhoof City,” Henry answered.

“Stop waiting. Come to Nim City now. You’ve done a good deed!” Jasper laughed and said.

At the same time, the door of the office opened.

Greg walked in first. The moment Jasper lifted his head to glance at him, the smile on his face disappeared. It was promptly replaced with anger.