

Let Me be Your Ex Chapter 485– 486

Chapter 485

“I don’t like you. I don’t deny that. It’s hard to change in this life.” Mother Shao looked at Miriam, who was dumbfounded, and said frankly. After speaking, she exhaled again and suddenly felt relieved. “It just so happens that you don’t like my mother-in-law, this is also a kind of tacit understanding.”

After a pause, she compromised again, “I don’t like it or I don’t like it. I don’t want to interfere in the matter between you and Bryan. I think you are my Shao family’s daughter-in-law, not for you, just for my son.”

While listening, Miriam clasped her fingers tightly, and the hand holding the flannel bag turned weakly pale because of too much force.

The overly shocked look on her face was obviously clearer, and even though she tried her best to restrain it, she still couldn’t hide it.

I never expected to get an affirmation from Shao’s mother, even if her attitude was not very clear, it was enough to make Miriam tears in her eyes.

“Put it on.” Mother Shao’s urging came again, “Do you want me to wear it myself?”

Miriam calmed down and took out the jade bracelet in a panic and put it on her left hand.

At that moment, it seemed as if there was an illusion that everything had settled down.

Seeing that she finally put it on, Mother Shao’s tight expression eased slightly, and she was seen smoothing the quilt in front of her, as if repeating casually: “Apologize for my mother in-law. I’m wrong.”

After a pause, he said, “Thank you for today’s affairs. Long Teng is Bryan’s father’s effort. If it falls into the hands of outsiders, I will have no face to meet him when I die.”

Miriam was so dizzy to listen to those words, and the last thing that drew her attention again was the old man who said frankly, “Whenever I have time to make an appointment with the two families, the wedding of you two should also be organized. We can’t let the Shao family marry a wife. There’s always been nothing about it, and outsiders don’t seem to be talking.”

When she came out of the ward, Miriam felt limp under her feet, like stepping on the clouds. Suddenly thinking that he was dreaming, he suddenly realized that when he looked down and saw the emerald green color on his wrist, it was all true.

After so long and doing so many things, I was so caught off guard that I received the olive branch from Shao's mother.

She chuckled lightly, and a cloud of mist filled her eyes.

The fog gradually dissipated, and she looked up and saw Tao Wan'er walking from the end of the corridor. She hurriedly cleaned up her expression and smiled at the incoming person.

Tao Wan'er stopped not far away, craned her neck and looked at her carefully, "Sister Miriam, are you okay?"

After speaking, when I saw the bracelet on her wrist when I turned my eyes, I instantly understood, covering my mouth and snickering, "This is Aunt Shao's baby, so I am willing to give it to you?"

Miriam listened to her ridicule, unconsciously put her hand back, and smiled with a slight embarrassment on her face, "You know?"

"There was one broken before." Tao Wan'er nodded, "I accompanied my aunt to repair it in the shop. She felt distressed by her old man, and her eyes were red for several days."

After finishing talking, he raised his eyebrows triumphantly, and approached Miriam and bumped Miriam with his shoulder, "Finally we won the old lady. It seems that our brother Chen still has a trick to deal with women. My wife and mother can do it all."

Unexpectedly, Tao Wan'er would mention Bryan suddenly, and she understood the meaning of her words somewhat, Miriam narrowed her eyebrows slightly, "You mean Bryan?"

After thinking about it again, I understand. I want to come to Shao's mother to accept her suddenly, not just because Bryan helped her out of the siege today at Longteng's downstairs, afraid that only he himself would know.

At this time, there was an impulse in my heart, I couldn't wait to see the man, I wanted to hug him.

So he smiled and changed the subject, "I have received the invitation. Song Bo is a good man. He deserves your trust."

Miriam's sudden words made Tao Wan'er stunned for a short time. After reacting, she blushed quickly, her eyes filled with deep friendship, and she softly responded, "I know."

Suddenly, he solemnly reminded: "You and Brother Chen have to come over that day, and I have reserved a place for you."

"Definitely." Miriam patted her arm, raised her wrist and glanced at the time, showing a bit of rush, "I still have something..."

Before she finished her words, she suddenly felt a wave of light and shadow floating in the corridor against the light. She lifted her eyes and looked over, and she saw that Bryan's figure was particularly tall and slender under the halo.

A faintly restless heart settled down in an instant, silently swallowed the second half of the sentence, then raised his eyes and looked at the man lightly, watching him walk in front of him unhurriedly, raising the various foods he bought in his hands, Stuffed one of the desserts into Tao Waner's hands, "Thanks for your hard work, let's go ahead."

The attitude of half admonishment and half order is very useful to Tao Waner.

"Good." The woman stared at the bag of high-end dessert box in her hand, her eyes lit up in an instant, she held her in her hand and nodded repeatedly, then glanced at Miriam, and ran away hurriedly.

As the people walked away, Bryan stared at Miriam again, as if observing her expression.

Miriam noticed it, pretending to be neither salty nor indifferent, staring at the things in his hand, "Did you buy it for your mother?"

"Yeah." Bryan replied, and asked uncertainly: "Is the old lady embarrassing you?"

Miriam didn't speak, she reached out and pointed at the door behind her, "You can send in first. The old man is waiting for you. I'll talk about other things when I return."

Her voice was also deserted, without any emotion.

Bryan didn't say a word, only raised the free hand, holding her chin, and lowering her head to kiss her forehead, "Wait for me to come out and take you to eat good food."

Now he occasionally coaxes her, he takes her as a child, and deals with her by copying the same trick used to deal with Anxi Anyan.

Although he didn't expect anything delicious, he couldn't help but laughed, nodded and said "OK".

After watching people come in, they came out again in less than ten minutes.

The man brought the door of the ward and leaned against the door to look at her, with a smile on his face. After a long while, he made a low voice and looked down at the hand that she was hiding behind him, "Stretch out your hand and show me."

When Miriam listened, she finally couldn't stretch herself, her eyes bent into a half crescent, and she stretched out her left hand and shook it before his eyes.

"Look." The jade bracelet also dangled up and down following her rhythm.

However, Bryan's gaze crossed the bracelet and fell directly on the woman's white cheek. He had never seen her smile so innocent as a girl, like a joy from the heart, like a little girl showing off what she loves.

At that moment, in addition to the heartbeat, Bryan also had a burst of distress and self-blame that rose inexplicably from the tip of his heart. It was not the bracelet that wanted to make Miriam happy, but it was something that most ordinary women who should get married would have, and it was only recognized by the elders.

Following the impulse running in his body, he suddenly leaned forward and took her into his arms and kissed her warmly.

Miriam was originally waiting at the door of the ward, thinking that when Bryan came out, she would kiss him before he could react, and then tell him how happy she was.

After meeting Bryan's deep eyes on all these plans, all changes were made.

At this time, Miriam thought, forget it, who made him Bryan.

After the kiss, the two walked out of the hospital door arm in arm, and when they drove back to City Two, Miriam always bowed her head from time to time, and her fingertips brushed her wrists subconsciously. She always felt that a place in her heart was faintly hot.

Bryan saw through her inner anxiety and did not go home after returning to City Two. He called Mother Lu and then took Miriam to a Japanese food store.

Chapter 486

The store is newly opened, the location is excellent, and the decoration is quite original. In addition, when Miriam arrived, the business was booming.

But when the waiter at the door saw Bryan, he respectfully welcomed him in, and led him to one of the private rooms. Miriam followed behind and asked after sitting down, "Have you booked?"

Bryan took off his suit and put it aside, and shook his head casually, "No reservation is needed."

Miriam thought to herself, Bryan's theory of social status has reached the level of omnipotence. This explanation is obviously unreasonable, so she simply speculated, "Who else is coming, Mr. Huo?"

Miriam's seriousness caused Bryan's brows to bend slightly. Just about to explain, the door curtain in front of him was opened.

Kristy came in holding Mr. Huo's hand. Miriam didn't see anyone, but first heard her playful laughter, as if she was asking the waiter: "Bring some sake, more!"

The entrance is a row of mahogany square tables side by side. The private room is large enough to look like it can accommodate more than four people.

Before Miriam could figure out the situation, she saw Kristy let go of Mr. Huo's hand after entering the door, and sat down beside her, "I can eat today, right?"

The topic hadn't been opened yet, and I heard a rustling sound outside the door, and then looked over and saw that this time it was Miller who came in, with a Qianqiansu hand on one arm.

Miriam quickly recognized that it was the woman who met Shelly in the mall that day.

The two looked at each other and nodded, and said hello. After that, Miller led the woman to sit down opposite, and took out the exquisitely packed box behind him without saying a word. When he was about to pass it to Miriam, he was interrupted by Bryan who was coughing.

The man blinked his eyes twice and saw what Bryan meant, but he still had an unidentified expression on his face. He stunned and doubled the box in his hand, "I just bought it for my little bun. Doesn't it look good?"

Miriam frowned and looked at the two men back and forth.

After that, Kristy snorted with a disdainful face, "You are so tightly packed, who knows what it is."

But she didn't seem interested, she stretched out her hand and shook her head, "Come on, put it away, Mr. Huo can also afford any good things."

After that, he threw a wink at Mr. Huo, and blushed half of his face as if he was coquettish.

I just gaped and mixed in, and then there was a noise outside the door.

This time, seeing the person pushing the door in, Miriam didn't understand it at all, and pointed at Shelly with a dusty face, "Why are you here too?"

Shelly seemed to be in a hurry. Not only was his face flushed, but the little meow he was holding was also panting. After finally standing still, he patted his chest and complained, "I blame Mommy for having to go home. We changed our clothes and came back. The car on the road broke down. If Uncle Mu hadn't sent us over, we would be late."

After that, she raised her little hand like a fan and slammed it up.

“Uncle Mu?” The expressions in the audience were different, and only Miriam was the first to realize who this Uncle Mu meant, and one glance at Shelly.

And she was looking at Xiao Miao reproachfully, her index finger poked her head swaying, “You have learned that the wicked person will file a complaint first, who told you to step on that puddle on the ground, do you know your mother? How expensive is that skirt...”

Xiao Miao pouted her mouth pitifully and cried out for her injustice. The noise made everyone in the room laugh, and Kristy’s eyes narrowed into a gap.

She loves her daughter the most, but she has given birth to a son, and seeing Xiao Miao feels even more distressed.

There was continuous laughter in the originally quiet private room, and only Miller began to look uncomfortable. He didn’t know how to react to Shelly’s arrival, so he laughed quietly to himself, without the hippie smile when he first came.

The little Miao on the side has a sweet mouth. She is changing her teeth. She is missing a front tooth, so her speech leaks. It sounds milky and very cute. She finished greeting one by one, and then turned to see Miller. She immediately put away her cute little expression, glanced at him angrily, and then at the woman next to him.

Dudu ignored him, and respectfully shouted “Hello Auntie” to the woman next to him.

Miller said, “Eh”, when he was about to speak, the little guy suddenly turned away and took Qiangongqi’s skirt with a proud face, “Mummy, I don’t want to sit here.”

Xiao Miao likes Miller because of Shelly’s acceptance of him. Without this premise, she will stand firm no matter how she likes it. Moreover, knowing that Miller has a girlfriend now, there is always a resentment of being betrayed by the Allies. Flowing in my heart.

So I don’t want to see him or talk to him now.

Shelly lowered her head and was about to let her sit aside, Kristy, who was able to see the situation clearly, took the opportunity to beckon to Xiao Miao, “Come on, come to Aunt Lin. Let us sit together.”

When the little guy heard this, he laughed and showed his leaky front teeth, nodded and ran to the opposite side, and got into Kristy’s arms.

Understand it briefly, knowing that Miller’s new girlfriend is surnamed Bao. She is friendly and does not have stage fright, so everyone calls her Xiao Bao, saying that she is kind and easy to get close to students.

She is indeed very friendly, advancing and retreating, even Xiao Miao, who came with a grievance, could not hate her, and soon whispered: “Aunt Xiao Bao, I want to eat that fish.”

She nuanced her mouth and pointed to the sashimi in front of Xiao Bao.

Miriam couldn't help but observe Shelly's face over and over again, but seeing her always calm and composure, commenting on her while eating, she seemed to be a serious foodie.

However, Kristy still noticed something. When Shelly went out to the bathroom, she turned her head and asked her quietly in Miriam's ear. Only by this question did she understand the entanglement between Shelly and Miller. Pat his head, "Then should I call her over?"

Miriam opened her eyes, "You called here, why?"

Miriam had eaten for a long time, her stomach was full, and she hadn't figured out the reason for the meal.

"This..." Kristy's eyes flickered, her neck leaned back, obviously she was avoiding something, and then listening to the movement outside the door, she suddenly rolled her eyes again and changed the subject: "I'm back."

Miriam looked up and saw Shelly opening the curtain and coming in.

She was still puzzled. She patted Bryan's arm next to him and planned to ask him. Unexpectedly, Xiao Miao, who had finished chewing the last bit of sushi in her mouth, finally had time to interject, and the high-pitched childish voice echoed in the huge space.

"Aunt Miriam, don't you know? They are here to celebrate your birthday!"

Kristy reacted, obviously it was too late when she reached out to cover her.

Everyone was busy eating food and stopped, each of them flickered at the protagonist of today's dinner, Miriam.

Miriam had just picked up a piece of sushi and handed it to her mouth. When she saw this, she closed her mouth silently, then put down her chopsticks in a calm manner, and then she had time to put on a surprised expression, "Birthday for me?"

She scanned the audience, and finally turned her gaze on Bryan's face next to him, "Bryan?"

She thought for a while, and then calculated, thinking that she had remembered wrong, "Today is not my birthday..."

As soon as the voice fell, there was a sudden sound of music. Everyone followed their eyes and saw two waiters in kimonos pushing in a huge birthday cake, singing and clapping their hands.

After the singing, I felt that the atmosphere was not right. I couldn't help but look at Bryan. After getting his eyes to indicate, he left back and forth.