Old Peter's arrow, how could Sean not see it?

Looking along the trajectory of the arrow, the mutant corpse hidden in the shadow of a corner of the house is naturally clearly visible. And almost at the moment when Sean saw this mutant corpse, the golden light in his eyes flashed away, and all the detailed data about this mutant corpse immediately appeared in front of him, just as Sean was in the past. Data seen in the game.

The corpse monsters are a type of undead creatures. They are born out of unwillingness, resentment, longing and many other resentments through the erosion and condensation of dark forces. This can be seen from their savage, frantic and vicious eyes. Come out-they hate all creatures in the world, and hate more deeply than any undead creatures. But these undead creatures are completely different from walking corpses, zombies, and zombies. Not only are they not as slow and sluggish as they are, they even have a certain degree of wisdom. After absorbing enough death or darkness, these corpses It will become a mutant corpse demon, and to some extent, he can even remember his career before his death.

For example, the corpse in the dilapidated red costume in front of everyone, it is obvious that it was a commander before his death, otherwise, how could it be possible to command such a large group of corpses to attack other living creatures so subtly? By looking at so many corpses around, you can know how many people this mutant corpse killed, because in addition to soldiers from the kingdoms of Portoroa and Celian, there are many adventures among those corpses. A man dressed as a pioneer, a pioneer.

Ghouls are different from ghouls, and even though they are both undead creatures, they are completely opposite to each other.

Anyone killed by the corpse monster will be attacked by the death of the corpse monster and become the same kind of the corpse monster. It's just that these kind of people have no wisdom at all. They will become slaves to the corpse that killed them, and they will be completely under the command of the other party. Once there is no command and order, these corpses will run faster and have more power. Some zombies and zombies.

Dark Outpost, the most critical place is to force the mutant corpse to give up command.

The second arrow shot into the right shoulder of the mutant corpse, causing it to let out a louder roar. Its frantic eyes gleamed with bloodthirsty red light, but it was no longer staring at Sean and others. Instead, it turned its head and looked at Old Peter and others standing on the roof, threateningly hoarse. Growl.

But does Old Peter care about the threat of a mutant corpse?

He took out the third arrow, but someone next to him was a step faster than him.

The shooter!

There was a humming sound of bowstring trembling in the air, and an iron-headed white feather arrow shot like a meteor, and then pierced the shoulder of the mutant corpse.

A burst of scorching peculiar smell permeated.

Immediately afterwards, there were the second, third, fourth... the serial arrows fired by two shooters, like a downpour, shot into the body of this mutant corpse, just like Sean. As explained before.

At the beginning, the mutant corpse demon could still ignore it, but after hitting seven or eight arrows in his body, the pain is not something it can ignore, and even the roar has no strength. After all, the corpse monster's endurance attribute is only eight points, and it can hold on for a few more times than Celesia. This is because it is an undead creature, but even so, the old Peter and the others shoot a few more arrows. I'm afraid this battle is about to end.

Reality and games are still different after all.

So in this case, the mutant corpse did not dare to look down upon Old Peter and the others anymore, it began to move as soon as it turned around. And this movement immediately caused the brows of Old Peter and the archer to frown. The two of them could not shoot the arrow at the mutant corpse again, even if they could capture the path of the mutant corpse, but the arrow's speed is definitely not keeping up!

The speed of the mutant corpse is far beyond their imagination!

Only Shaun knows that the mutant corpse with agility of up to 30 points is absolutely faster than anyone present, plus the power that is completely above everyone, no one will be its opponent in a head-on conflict, even if it is. These guards use the strongest defensive skills, and they may not be able to block its attacks.

So the only way is to start with its weak endurance attribute!

Xiao En glanced at the mutant corpse who had been forced out of the corpse of corpses, immediately made a gesture and ran to the other side, and at the same time took out several small bottles of red liquid from the package behind him.

Du Luen recognized what the liquid in this bottle was at a glance.

Combustion aid.

A very low-level alchemy potion, which can produce different burning effects when combined with different potions, but the most basic effect is that it can make the flame burn longer, or even spread. Because the demand for this medicine is very large, its price is even higher than the selling price of the high-purity neutralizer, reaching the price of a bottle of five silver coins.

Seeing that Sean suddenly took out this alchemy potion, Du Luen immediately knew Sean's plan: "Cecilia is too far away..."

"I have this." Xiao En curled his lips and took out a small bag again from his backpack. It contained dozens of black stones the size of nails, with faint red light shining. "This is enough for those corpses. The demon drank a pot, as long as Old Peter and the others can contain the mutant corpse demon."

Cracked flint.

A kind of gadget most commonly used by mercenaries. It is specially used for making fire in the wild. As long as you throw it hard, you can ignite the flame, and you can buy a lot of it for one silver coin.

Du Luen was a little dumbfounded. The things that Sean brought out were all ordinary gadgets, which were sold in general grocery stores and pharmacies, but at the moment this place can have miraculous effects.

Looking at Du Luen's surprised look, Sean was actually quite useful. If he didn't have the equipment, would he dare to bring people to such a place?

In fact, if there is a priest-level person accompanying him, even if the opponent only has first-order strength, Sean can make this trip easier. Fortunately, he didn't have much hope for this kind of thing from the beginning, so his preparations were also very sufficient. After all, as a commander, he could not shirk everything to luck. Every time he acted, he Will make several sets of preparation plans.

In this trip, two people who are good at shooting and two guards are the lowest guarantee. As for the others, they are irrelevant.

The power and agility of the mutant corpse are extremely high, and the ordinary Tier 3 class will not be an opponent, but its endurance is very low. In the game, it is even only a few thousand points higher than a wind-stripe black wolf. Consider In terms of its uniqueness as a boss, this life value is simply insulting its identity. Therefore, the early battle with the mutant corpse monsters can only be taken care of by the long-range professional, and does not need to kill, as long as it is restrained, so that it has no time to command the corpses.

As for the responsibility of guarding, it is even simpler. One person is responsible for protecting remote occupations and preventing them from being killed in the first time. The other one needs to follow the person responsible for pulling the train, so the speed of the other guard is slightly faster.

However, there are more guards in the team now, and obviously they are very good in terms of physical endurance. As long as you don't get caught in a siege, you don't need to worry too much.

Soon, Sean, who was leading the race, saw the destination of his trip.

A huge reservoir with a height of nearly ten meters hollowed out below.

"That's..." a guard exclaimed.

Sean ignored it and ran towards the storage tank, and the others had to follow him immediately. And a group of corpses behind them, after losing the command of that mutant corpse, these undead creatures have only the most basic biological instincts left, that is, chasing the life objects in front of them.

If you change the average person, you must be bound to have a desperate fight with these undead creatures. It seems that only in this way can you prove your blood and courage.

But Sean is not so stupid.

He is a senior player, and one of the things senior players do best is to use the simplest method to get the most benefits.

For example, spawn monsters.

As a dungeon that has been smashed for a long time, there are naturally a lot of various strategies, but there is always only one of the easiest and easiest.

Above the storage tank, there is a horizontal board that can accommodate one person to pass through. Sean did not hesitate at all, and immediately ran up to the top, completely ignoring the apparently corroded plank. Du Luen and the two guards only hesitated for a while, and then immediately ran over. Until everyone passed, they still looked at this wooden plank that seemed to be stepped off at any time.

"Don't be stunned!" Xiao En shouted immediately after seeing everyone coming over, "These corpses can't climb up as long as they fall. You two are responsible for guarding this path and hitting all the corpses. Go to the reservoir below....Come on, you are responsible for provoking these mindless guys."

After hearing what Shaun said, the two guards did not hesitate at all, and immediately stood at the end of the plank one by one, and set up a defensive posture.

All the corpses were just as Xiao En had expected, rushing over in line, seeming to be eager to eat Xiao En and others. But before these corpses could fly in, the two guards had already done their best to block the corpses' attack direction, and then simply dropped the shield, waved the shield, and picked the knife. All these corpses were shot and dropped into the reservoir below. Seeing the movements of these two guards, they were all very proficient.

And Sean himself was not idle either. He first threw all the bottles of oxidizer in his hand into the storage pool of the corpses who had dried up a long time ago, and now only those corpses who were still struggling to get up were left. Begin to take out various other alchemy potions and powders from the package.

Things like high-purity neutralizer, black powder, explosive powder, etc., and then all were thrown into the tank.

Du Luen looked stunned.

After Sean threw everything down, it happened that the last corpse was also photographed. The heads are surging under the reservoir, and the densely packed corpses are all struggling with corpses. Many corpses even have a mixture of red and white liquids. They look abnormally disgusting and terrifying. The peculiar smell of these alchemy potions and various powders, The rancid smell of the corpses was mixed together, which was extremely disgusting.

Xiao En smiled, opened the small bag, raised his hand, and the bag full of crushed flint was thrown into the reservoir.

In the next second, flames soar to the sky! ;
