Love Change Of Heart Chapter 311-After Leanna finished speaking, she asked, "Oh, right. What are you doing now?"

The man's deep voice sounded from the phone as he slowly replied, "In a meeting."

That answer rendered her speechless.

Meanwhile, on the other end of the call, the huge office was so silent that one could hear the sound of a needle falling to the ground.

All the higher-ups in the room did not even dare to breathe loudly and were looking at each other warily.

After the previous incident where Aidan used Pearson Group's official Twitter account to argue with other netizens, they thought the scene before them was nothing in comparison to that.

However, this was the first time they saw Aidan act this way. If they remembered correctly, he was never afraid of his wife.

Following the end of the call, Aidan put down his phone and looked around the room with cold eyes. "Where were we?"

Johnathan reminded him from the side, "The progress of last year's project."

Pinching his nose, Aidan replied with a hum and said, "Continue."

The originally dead silent and cold office was instantly filled with some warmth.

After the meeting ended, Johnathan followed behind Aidan and whispered, "President Pearson, Daniel has gone to Constellation Tech. As for William... There's still no movement from his side."

Aidan ordered, "Lloyd's watching him like a hawk, so of course, he wouldn't do anything."

Hearing that, Johnathan became confused. "If Mrs. Pearson really is... Wouldn't it be better if he gave up on the Crossley Group's project?"

“There’s no turning back after the arrow has left the bow. They have been planning this for so long just because of this step. How could they give up that easily?”

“But if they insist on continuing the plan, it would very likely put Mrs. Pearson in danger.”

Pausing for a moment, Aidan answered, “Even so, it’s already too late to regret anything.”

He understood what Johnathan was saying, but William had already appeared before Lloyd. If the project went on smoothly, Lloyd would only dispatch people to watch him so that he could test him and avoid any mishaps. However, if he suddenly gave up on this project, Lloyd would become suspicious, which could invertedly push Leanna into an even more dangerous position.

Sometimes, fate was indeed so coincidental. If they had known about these things earlier, the outcome would have been different.

After walking a few steps, Aidan added, “Is there any arrangement for tonight?”

Johanthan replied, “No.”

Ever since Aidan and Leanna got together, he would cancel all dinner arrangements.

He then stated, “Leanna has something going on. I have to go over there tonight.”

Nodding slightly, Johnathan said, “Alright. I’ll make the necessary arrangements.”

Aidan asked again, “Is there anything happening on Sienna’s side?”

“She should be making a move soon.”

Smiling, Aidan ridiculed, “About time. I was about to get worried.”

...

At the studio.

Leanna had just finished packing up her things when someone knocked on her office door. A into the room and asked, "Leanna, are you done? We're almost ready to leave."

"Yes, I'm done. Let's go."

The venue for the birthday party was a small bar not far away. Many kinds of snacks were served there and all the wines were made from fruits. Also, most customers there were couples or friends looking for a place to chit-chat.

When Leanna sat down, the woman beside her asked softly, "Leanna, is... your brother coming?"

Smiling, Leanna replied, "He has something to do at school. Maybe next time."

The woman looked a little disappointed but could not do anything about it, so she responded, "Alright, then."

Whenever several women sat together, the topic of discussion would either be celebrities or gossip about their relationships. After they all finished talking, someone suddenly asked, "Leanna, what about you?"

As Leanna was a little absent-minded, she was not paying attention to what others were talking about, so she was confused when she heard that question. "What?"

"How did you and your boyfriend get to know each other?"

Everyone was excited when talking about that.

If they did not know the cold and handsome man who frequented their studio was the President of Pearson Group earlier, it would have been hard for them not to know it after the series of news on Twitter that Carlile caused.

Another woman asked, "That's right, Leanna. President Pearson is your ex-husband, right? Are you guys back together?"

"President Pearson is so handsome! And he's rich and gentle. Aah! I'm so jealous."

No, wait. Gentle, who?

“Besides President Pearson, there’s another handsome man who frequently comes to our studio. Leanna, is he another one of your pursuers?”

“Leanna is such a beautiful woman, of course, she would have many pursuers, but I think President Pearson suits her the most.”

“I don’t think so. If they had been a great match, they wouldn’t have gotten divorced. That’s why I say, we should have a few more romantic relationships in our lives. You can’t put all your eggs into one basket.”

“I don’t agree with you on that. Are you saying President Pearson is a rotten egg? He’s clearly the most attractive egg in the entire basket.”

“By the way, Leanna, why did you and President Pearson get divorced?”

Oh, heavens. These young ladies were talking about all kinds of things. Now, they’re gonna get to the bottom of how we met and why we divorced.

Not knowing how to answer them, she thought about it before answering, “Maybe because we have trust issues, but I think the most important thing is to meet the person you want to live the rest of your life with at the right time. Relationships are mutual; there’s not always black and white in every situation.”

If she and Aidan had not met each other at Patheon Club but in a different place, environment, and with different identities instead, perhaps things would have been different.

Perhaps, there would not be so many troublesome things to worry about.

At that moment, one of the women touched the elbow of the woman beside her. “Did you hear what Leanna said? I think you should stop complaining about your boyfriend. Relationships are mutual.”

The woman pouted. “If my boyfriend is as handsome as President Pearson, not only would I understand him, I’d even slap myself whenever we have an argument.”

Once she said that, everyone else burst into laughter.

Leanna picked up a bottle of beer, poured herself a cup, and could not help but laugh too.

These young ladies were mostly fresh graduates and only over twenty years old. Some of them were even still in their last year of university.

Those were few points when one could laugh purely and carefreely in life.

It was then the woman sitting beside Leanna asked, "Leanna, can I ask you something in secret?"

Nodding, Leanna replied, "Go ahead."

The woman whispered, "It's about... your brother. Does he have a girlfriend?"

Leanna said, "I don't think so." She paused for a bit and added seriously, "At least none that I know of."

Then, the young woman asked, "Do you know what type of woman he likes?"

That question rendered Leanna dumbfounded.

She had previously asked Louis the same question, but she never got a certain answer.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 312-At 8.00PM, a black Rolls Royce stopped in front of a residential building.

After the door opened, Aidan's figure appeared under the dark night.

Then, Jonathan descended the car, took something out, and followed behind Aidan.

Perhaps Sienna would never have thought that the person she was looking around for was right under her nose in Highside.

As the saying went, the safest place was also the most dangerous; they were not wrong.

Inside the building, a young woman was preparing the little guy's formula.

When she saw Aidan, she greeted, "President Pearson, you're here."

Aidan hummed and asked, "Where are they?"

“The little guy has just woken up and Ms. Fletcher is inside accompanying him.”

Hearing that, Aidan walked into the bedroom.

On the crib, the little guy was playing with the toy he was holding while looking around his surroundings with his big, round eyes. When he saw Aidan, he smiled and began to giggle.

Naomi turned around and asked, “Why are you here so suddenly?”

Walking toward the crib, he replied, “Nothing. I came here on a whim.”

Then, Naomi stood up and announced, “You came just in time. You can play with him while I wash the clothes.”

“Alright.”

Once Naomi was gone, the little guy’s smile immediately disappeared. He pouted his lips, which made him look very pitiful, as if he was about to cry any second.

Aidan looked at him without saying anything.

Then, the little guy’s fists clenched even tighter as he sobbed, looking as pitiful as a person could be.

At that moment, Naomi’s voice came from outside. “Don’t just sit there. Carry him if he’s crying.”

Aidan picked up the little guy and whispered, “You’re just like your mother. Petty.”

Now that the little guy was in Aidan’s arms, he stopped crying. His round eyes were wide open and he looked at him curiously.

A thin smile appeared on the man’s face as he said, “I’ll bring your mother over to see you soon. She misses you too.”

Right after he said that, the little guy clenched his fists again. His face was red as if he was using a lot of strength.

Aidan was speechless.

When Naomi came in, she saw an expressionless Aidan holding the of a naked child while trying to help him change diapers.

The scene before her made her speechless, but she also found it hilarious. She rushed over and chased Aidan away. "This is not how you change diapers. How could you take all his clothes off? He's going to catch a cold."

After a while, he finally said, "When I took it off just now, some of it got on his clothes."

Naomi was speechless.

She picked up the little guy and brought him straight to the bathroom to take a bath.

After that, he soon fell asleep.

The young woman outside had finished tidying up everything and came in to ask, "President Pearson, Ms. Fletcher, if there's nothing else to do, can I have tonight off?"

Naomi nodded. "Sure. Go ahead."

"Thank you, Ms. Fletcher. I'll leave now."

While saying that, she quickly picked up her things and left.

Once the door was closed, Aidan withdrew his gaze and stated, "Has she been frequently asking for time off?"

Naomi answered while folding the little guy's clothes. "Occasionally, but mostly during nighttime. She would come back early in the morning, so it didn't take up much time."

Aidan narrowed his eyes but did not speak.

"What's the matter?" asked Naomi.

"Nothing."

She then replied, "Alright, then. It's getting late and the little guy has fallen asleep. Do whatever you should be doing and don't waste anymore time being here."

Glancing at the crib, Aidan was lost in his thoughts.

Downstairs, the young woman exited the residential area, found the familiar car, and got in.

While fastening her seatbelt, she felt relieved as she said, "I was almost scared to death. I thought I wasn't going to be able to come out."

The man in the driver's seat asked, "What happened?"

"It's... the owner of the house. He came back today and I was afraid he wouldn't let me leave."

Laughing, the man asked, "Is he that fierce?"

Celia answered, "No, he's not fierce. He has a cold personality, but he's still quite nice."

The man asked again, "What does he do? It seems like he doesn't come home often."

Not willing to disclose too much, Celia replied, "Yes. He often goes on business trips." Then, she didn't we watch a movie tonight? It's been a long while since I went to the cinema."

Hearing her change the subject, the man stopped asking questions, but

On the way, Celia leaned against the car window while quietly listening to the music inside the car.

She was originally a secretary from Pearson Group, but was later being targeted and bullied by the others because she refused to abide by her superior's unspoken rules.

There was once when Aidan came to survey the company, but her superior deliberately arranged for her to attend a business dinner in order to humiliate her. Just when she thought she was a goner, Aidan saw through her superiors' schemes. Then, he cleaned out the entire company of leeches, which could be seen as an act of restoring hope and bringing light into her life.

Since then, Celia saw Aidan as her savior. So, when she got to take care of his child, she did not ask any questions, nor did she speak about it.

Her encounter with Raymond was also an accident. When she came out to buy some groceries, she met some burglars and her phone was almost stolen. It was Raymond who helped her.

In order to show her gratitude, she treated him to a meal and they exchanged numbers.

After a few rounds of talking, they gradually got closer to each other.

She knew Raymond was a single father with two kids, but he was considerate, meticulous, and caring. He would also always bring her romantic surprises when she least expected them.

Even so, she still did not tell him anything about Aidan and the child. All he knew was that she was a nanny.

That was it.

...

After leaving the bar, the group of young women each hailed a cab and headed home.

Since her residence was not far from here, Leanna thought that she should just walk home.

One of the young women asked, "Leanna, why don't we send you home?"

Smiling, Leanna replied, "It's fine. I'm still stuffed, so I'll walk."

"Alright, then. Be careful on your way home. We'll leave now. Goodbye."

"Goodbye. You guys take care too, and text me when you get home."

Leanna smiled and waved at them.

After they were gone, she withdrew her gaze, placed her hands inside her pocket, and turned around to leave.

Those young women had made her drink quite a lot, but those drinks did not contain much alcohol. Besides feeling a little dizzy, she did not feel uncomfortable; instead, she felt even more energized.

She had just walked a few steps when the phone inside her pocket rang.

It was Aidan.

His magnetic voice sounded from the phone. "Are you done?"

"We just ended. I'm going home now."

"By foot?"

"How did you..."

Halfway into her question, she stopped and looked around.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 313-Not far away from where she was, a tall and lean man appeared in her line of sight.

There was a bouquet of roses in his hand.

Dumbfounded, Leanna put down her phone while the smile on her face grew even wider.

Who would have thought the b*stard is such a romantic? He even brought flowers to see me.

Aidan came in front of her. "Why didn't you call me after your gathering ended?"

Leanna replied, "How'd I know that you were nearby?"

Initially, her plan was to text him after she got home.

He asked, "Get in?"

Shaking her head, she refused, "I'm stuffed. I wanna walk home."

Suddenly, Aidan leaned in and sniffed. "Did you drink?"

Then, Leanna gestured with her finger. "A little, but I'm not drunk."

Hearing that, he smiled. "Come home and have a round two with me."

She glanced at him, knowing he had something up his sleeves, so she turned around to continue walking. “No need. A little alcohol can help in regulating your health, but too much can cost you your life.”

While Aidan followed behind her, he argued, “Where did you hear such nonsense?”

“Not as nonsensical as you.”

“It’s my day off tomorrow, so I can accompany you on a date. Where do you want to go?” he asked.

Stunned, she turned back to look at him. “But I have work. Zoe went home due to family matters, and the studio can’t be vacant.”

Once her words fell, Aidan frowned unnoticeably. “She went home?”

Leanna was at a loss for words.

It seemed like she had made a slip of the tongue.

Quickly changing the topic, she looked at the roses in his hand. “This. Are you not planning to give it to me?”

He looked up at her. “You want this?”

What?

What else could it be? Why would he be carrying that bouquet if he wasn’t planning on giving it to me?

Aidan joked, “I picked it up off the street. You can have it if you want.”

Gritting her teeth, Leanna glared at him before turning around and leaving.

Laughing, Aidan followed behind her. “Alright, alright. I was just joking. It is meant for you.”

“Oh.”

She did not believe him anymore.

Then, he added, "It's quite heavy. Didn't you say you wanna walk back? You'd be gasping for breath if you're carrying this."

That was something she could not stand hearing, so she retorted, "What do you mean by that? Please don't look down on any women, President Pearson."

"Then, let's continue tonight."

"Of course, we should continue. I..."

After saying that, she suddenly realized what he meant and was instantly frustrated. "You continue by yourself!"

Can this b*stard fill his brain with other things besides this?

Just as she was about to throw a fit and leave, Aidan gently held her hand and asked, "Are you angry?"

This b*stard is clearly asking the obvious!

Leanna did not want to be bothered by him.

At that moment, a couple just happened to walk past them.

The two seemed to be arguing because the woman cried, "Look at you! That handsome guy even knows to buy flowers for his girlfriend! Today is our first year anniversary. Not only did you not buy me any flowers, but you don't even remember the occasion today!"

Flustered, the man answered, "About this... Buying flowers has nothing to do with being handsome. I'm sorry. I was too busy and forgot about it. Tomorrow. I promise I'll make it up to you tomorrow."

"Today is our anniversary! What's the meaning of celebrating it tomorrow?"

After that, she ran away crying.

The man stood frozen in place, seeming to be looking for a florist nearby. However, the surrounding shops had all closed at such an hour, let alone the florist.

Leanna stood aside and watched for a moment before suddenly stretching out her hand at Aidan. "Give it to me."

Raising his eyebrow, he asked, "What?"

"Didn't you say this is for me? Give it to me now."

Seeming to have noticed her intentions, he gave the flowers to her.

Leanna held it in her arms for a few seconds before smilingly walking toward the man.

When the man saw her, he was dumbfounded.

She gave him the flowers and said, "Here. Give it to your girlfriend."

"What? How can I take this? Moreover, she's so angry. I don't think I'll need it."

Smiling, she comforted, "It's alright. Most of the time, girls just wanna see whether you care, especially on an important day like your anniversary. She's angry because she treasures your relationship."

Hearing that, the man did not reject the flowers anymore. Instead, he received them while thanking her, "Thank you. I'll transfer the money to you."

"No need for that. As long as you don't mind the fact that my... boyfriend gave it to me."

The man hurriedly said, "No, I don't. You and your boyfriend are so sweet, even I am envious of your relationship. I hope that we can be as sweet as you guys."

Actually, Leanna wanted to say that it would be better if he did not end up like Aidan, but she smiled and assured him, "Go ahead."

After thanking her repeatedly, the man nodded at Aidan and ran after his girlfriend with the flowers.

Once he was gone, Aidan approached her. "Are you done being angry?"

However, she ignored him.

He went forward and pulled her wrist. "Didn't you say I was your boyfriend? Why are you ignoring me?"

Leanna was rendered speechless.

I said it so softly. How did the b*stard hear me?

He asked, "How about I buy you another one?"

"No need," she slowly replied.

"Why?" He asked again after a short pause, "Are you angry with me because I didn't give you the flowers?"

Hearing what he said, Leanna felt her temples throb. They seemed to not be on the same channel.

When he noticed her silence, he asked again, "Since you want it so badly, why did you give it away?"

A moment later, she argued, "I thought he needed it more than I did. Also, I didn't want it so badly!"

"Really?"

Leanna glanced at him with dark eyes. "Forget it. You wouldn't understand how disappointed a woman would be if she didn't get anything during their anniversary."

Pursing his thin lips, Aidan suddenly pulled her and headed back.

"Hey, what are you doing?"

"Buying you a gift."

"I was just joking. Didn't you compensate for it already?"

Aidan protested, "If you were satisfied with that compensation, would you have mentioned this again?"

Leanna fell silent.

This b*stard really can hit the nail right on the head.

It was only casual talk. Furthermore, it was a woman's usual behavior to bring up an old account when arguing.

After all that, it was almost midnight when they got home.

Aidan did not act like a guest and took off his coat before entering the bathroom to take a shower.

When Leanna was about to hang up his coat, she could smell something.

Leaning in, she could smell something milky... and something weird.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 314-Aidan came out of the bathroom, still wearing Louis' clothes, and found Leanna cooking in the kitchen.

He walked over, hugged her waist from behind, and exhaled a warm breath beside her ear. "How did you know I haven't had my dinner?"

"This isn't for you."

While she spoke, she twisted her body and tried to get out of his embrace to drop the cut vegetables into the boiling pot.

Frowning, he asked, "Who's it for, then?"

"Myself."

"Didn't you say you were stuffed?"

"I'm hungry again."

Hearing that, he looked at her belly and asked thoughtfully, "Are you pregnant?"

Leanna was at a loss for words.

He must be crazy!

Then, she chased him out of the kitchen. "I don't have time to entertain you. You, sit outside."

When he got to the living room and sat down, the doorbell rang.

Leanna stuck her head out and ordered, "Check who it is"

Without raising his head, Aidan brushed off. "No need. It's probably just a salesman selling ketchup."

It seems like he hasn't given up.

Pouting, she knew she could not say anything with Aidan here because he would only throw sarcastic remarks here and there. Hence, it was better to not open the door.

As expected, the doorbell only rang once and fell silent after that.

Soon, Leanna came out of the kitchen and placed a plate of food before him.

He looked and smiled mischievously. "Is this for me?"

"For the dog."

He was instantly speechless.

Later, she went into the kitchen and busied herself for a long while.

Once he was done eating, he placed his cutleries and plate into the dishwasher and saw Leanna rolling some wraps. "Why did you make so much food?"

"For the do—"

Halfway through her words, she suddenly stopped. This time, she knew she wanted to eat them, so she could not say they were for the dog.

His low voice sounded. "What?"

After a long while, she whispered, "Didn't you say you wanted to go on a date tomorrow? I-I'm preparing some food."

Smiling, he raised his eyebrow and asked, "Is there anything you need me to help you with?"

"You..." Though she thought of saying that he better not help with anything and stay outside, she gave him a potato instead. "Wash this."

There was no telling what might happen at the Crossleys and she wanted to have a nice date with him before that.

With someone to help her, Leanna felt it was more effective, despite him being more of a troublemaker than a helper. A while later, they finished all the food preparations and stored them in the fridge.

Just as she was about to start tidying the kitchen, Aidan urged her, "Go and take a bath. Leave the rest to me."

Since he had already made such a request, she would not reject it naturally.

Yet, as soon as she stepped out of the kitchen, she heard the sound of broken plates behind her.

Closing her eyes, she tried to reassure herself. It's fine. He has never done such things before, so it's good that he has the mindset and attitude to help.

She then went to her bedroom to get her pajamas. When she arrived at the bathroom door, she heard the sound of two more plates breaking.

When that b*stard said he would tidy up the kitchen, did he mean breaking them one after another?

Taking a deep breath, she thought, Forget it. I'm going to move out anyway, and Zoe doesn't cook much either, so these things will only be a burden. Fewer plates mean lesser things to wash.

The moment Leanna came out of the bathroom, the kitchen was almost cleaned... No, smashed up by Aidan.

However, there was no sign of him in the living room.

After switching off all the lights, she went back into her bedroom.

Inside her bedroom, Aidan was already lying in bed, leaning against the headboard while flipping through a magazine.

She could not help but pursed her lips. This b*stard lacks self-awareness.

When Aidan raised his eyes and met hers, he stated, "I have a limited edition set of utensils at home. I'll get Jonathan to send them over tomorrow."

“No need. You can have them and break them on your own.”

After saying that, she went to the desk, pulled out the chair, and took out a notebook.

Aidan closed the magazine. “Aren’t you going to sleep?”

Without turning her head, Leanna replied, “I’m not tired. You should go ahead.”

She clearly knew what that b*stard was thinking, so she would not fall into his trap so easily.

Her whole body felt sore even till now.

Pulling away the covers, he came up behind her and sat on the bed.

When she heard the commotion behind her, she was shocked and stammered, “You... Why are you sitting here and not sleeping?”

“I’m waiting for you.”

His blunt and fiery gaze made her uncomfortable, so she coughed and started spouting nonsense. “Don’t do that, just... A designer usually gets more inspired at night, so there might be a possibility that I won’t sleep the whole night.”

Aidan asked, “Are you inspired now?”

“O-Of course!”

“Draw something, then.”

As Leanna was lying to him, her mind instantly went blank and she did not have the slightest inspiration. Since she had already said that, she could only draw a few lines on her sketch paper.

Very soon, she stopped.

Then, she put down her pen and turned around to look at him. “I can’t draw with you watching.”

Raising his gaze at her, he remained silent, but she could see the words 'I don't believe you' on his face.

She touched her nose and closed the sketchbook. "Forget it. Let's sleep."

After lying down in bed, she immediately wrapped herself with the blanket.

Aidan turned off the lights, lay beside her, and pulled her into his arms.

Leanna braced her hands on his chest and rejected, "I don't want to!"

"Why?"

Seeing that the hard way was not working, she decided to do it the soft way and whispered, "Please, I'm still sore."

In the darkness, a smile appeared on his face. "Where?"

"Everywhere!"

Aidan replied slowly, "You'll get used to it when you do it more."

That made Leanna speechless.

She kicked him under the covers and turned toward the window.

A few seconds later, the man approached her again, but this time, he only held her waist and did nothing.

Leanna's eyes were wide open as she thought he was acting abnormally.

Not knowing how long it had been, she finally spoke, "President Pearson, can I ask you something?"

"Yes?"

"Where did you go tonight?"

The figure behind her fell silent.

Aidan did not answer her.

She continued, "It's fine if you don't wanna say anything. I'm just asking."

Just as she shut her eyes, Aidan said, "Surveying the malls."

Hearing that, she affirmed once before continuing, "Did you meet anyone?"

"No." He stopped briefly and answered, "But a kid ran into me."

Finally realizing the answer to her questions, she said, "No wonder I smell milk on your clothes. Wait, there was another strange smell."

Aidan replied flatly, "His saliva got onto me too, so maybe that's what you smelled."

"..."

Then, Leanna really did lean in and sniffed him.

Now that she thought about it, her actions seemed irrational.

Aidan asked, "Are you sleeping or not?"

Leanna immediately replied, "Yes, I am!"

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 315-Although Leanna had agreed to go on a date with Aidan, she still needed to head to the studio.

When she woke up, the b*stard was still asleep.

Thinking that his work was quite tiresome, she did not wake him up. Instead, she wrote a note and stuck it at the head of the bed before going out.

Standing at the elevator, she pressed the button and began her long wait.

At that moment, the door from the room next door opened. Daniel stuck out his head and looked around to ensure Aidan was not present before he quickly came out.

Leanna greeted him, "Good morning."

"Good... morning. Miss McKinney, you're up so early. Are you heading to work?"

Nodding, she replied, "I have plans this afternoon, so I'm going there early."

Then, he stood beside her and asked, "Speaking of which, I seemed to have never visited your studio. I can take today's opportunity and head over."

Knowing that he had something to tell her, she smiled and agreed, "Sure."

After they exited the residential area, Daniel turned around to make sure that Aidan was not tailing them.

Leanna noticed his actions and asked, "What are you looking for?"

Laughing sheepishly, he replied, "Nothing. Oh, right. Has President Pearson been living here recently?"

At that, Leanna felt a little awkward and did not know how to answer.

Fortunately for her, Daniel did not ask any further questions and returned to the topic. "I have some questions about the tender calling from the day before. Could you help me..."

While walking, Leanna explained, "A few months ago, Jethro McKinney died an accidental death while escaping imprisonment. When Louis and I were tidying up his belongings, we found a box, which contained things our mother left behind."

Daniel asked, "What are the things... she left behind?"

"A few old pictures and a pocket watch. It was then that I discovered Jethro was not my biological father. As for my real father, the man in the pictures, I guess Jethro was so jealous that he scratched away my father's face."

"Does that pocket watch belong to Lloyd Crossley?"

Nodding, Leanna replied, "At first, I thought he knew my biological father, but I've never thought about that possibility until I checked the list of customers who bought that pocket watch."

Daniel frowned. "How did you find out that Lloyd Crossley might know your biological father?"

"Because Louis previously posted a missing person's post in the newspaper and tried many other ways to find that person, but Lloyd stopped the news from getting to us."

“When was that?”

“About a month or two ago.”

The frown on his face deepened. “In other words, Lloyd knows that you’re looking for him, but doesn’t want you to find out more. That’s why he stopped the news from getting to you. The truth is that he knew who you were when you tried to look for him with the photo.”

After hearing that, she was silent for a moment before saying, “Maybe.”

“But, don’t you think it’s strange?”

Confused, she asked, “In which aspect?”

Daniel answered, “The Crossleys are such a powerful family. If he didn’t want you to find any clues, how could you have found some of them?”

A long pause later, Leanna finally answered, “It was... a friend who helped me find the person in charge of manufacturing the pocket watch. That person brought me to the warehouse where the customer details are stored.”

“Miss McKinney, I don’t mean anything else, but the person who gave you the details is right. Lloyd did buy that pocket watch and it also belonged to him. So, it was right to investigate in this direction, but there might be a chance that someone is deliberately driving your investigation in that direction. Have you ever thought about what might happen if you bring this pocket watch to him?”

He continued, “No matter what precautions you take, you’d still be in danger.”

Leanna understood what he meant. She did not think of this problem before and only realized that it had been way too easy for her to discover these clues after Daniel mentioned it.

It would not matter to him if it was any other matter, but this matter was about Lloyd and he was constantly avoiding her. Hence, it was nearly impossible for him to show any flaws.

As she thought of that, she took out her phone and called the manufacturer, but later found that it was a fake number.

Then, she called the friend who helped her get ahold of the manufacturer, but they did not know the specific details. At that time, it was the person in charge at the manufacturing warehouse who contacted them and said that they produced such pocket watches.

Putting away her phone, Leanna pursed her lips.

It seemed like besides her, there were other people after Lloyd.

Suddenly lifting her head, she looked at Daniel.

When they met gazes, Daniel subconsciously retreated while asking, "What's the matter, Miss McKinney?"

She explained, "How did you know whether I was investigating in the right direction? I only mentioned the pocket watch, but I didn't tell you about my suspicions. Judging from the way you laid out your advice, I believed you knew what I was thinking."

Not expecting her to suddenly realize the situation and suspect him, he could only laugh dryly in response. "About that, it was Georgina who told me."

"Georgina told you what I was suspecting? She might not even know the real reason why I must enter the Crossley Family, but you do."

"H-How would I know? I was just saying."

"No. You've already found out about this long ago and you kept reminding me to be careful of Georgina and Lloyd. You know a lot; perhaps even more than me."

With that, she stopped before quickly continuing, "You got close to Georgina to deal with Lloyd. Did you..."

Hurriedly interrupting her, Daniel explained, "No, no. You've misunderstood me, Miss McKinney. You said I got close to Georgina because I wanted to deal with Lloyd; you should know that in order to do so, I'd have to know him like the back of my hand. Or else, we'll be heading to our deaths."

He was not expecting to lose his cool when he only intended to have a talk with Leanna to clear his doubts. Undoubtedly, her train of thoughts were clear and concise. Luckily, he managed to come up with a logical and reasonable response.

“Oh.” She withdrew her thoughts and walked two steps forward before turning around. “Are you going to the studio?”

“Of course! That’s what I intend to do.” While scratching his head, Daniel quickened his steps to catch up to her.

They had walked quite a distance before he stated, “Miss McKinney, I have something I’m curious about that I wanna ask you.”

“Ask away.”

“Since your biological father might be someone else, does Louis...”

Hearing that, her footsteps came to a halt and she asked after a few seconds, “I have a favor to ask of you.”

Daniel nodded. “Sure.” She said, “Don’t mention any of these in front of Louis.”

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 316-In the afternoon, Leanna had finished her work and was stretching when she heard her phone ring.

A man’s deep voice sounded. “Are you done?”

Looking at the time, she replied, “Give me another half an hour.”

She still had to make arrangements and relay her orders to the others.

Aidan answered, “Okay.”

The call ended and Leanna went out of her office.

Although the studio was not large, many miscellaneous things needed to be taken care of.

Previously, Zoe was responsible for such things while Leanna only needed to provide her designs.

After she finished with all the arrangements, it was already one hour later.

Grabbing her things, she ran out of the studio and immediately saw the Rolls Royce parked in front of her.

She pulled the door open and got in. Then, she put on her seatbelt and said, "I'm done. Let's go."

"Shall we go get a bite?"

"Sure... Wait! Let's head home first. The stuff I made is still in the fridge."

With a slight tilt of his head, Aidan motioned to her. "Look behind you."

Turning her head, Leanna saw that all the food she had prepared was neatly packed in food containers.

She curled her lips, but the smile only lasted for two seconds as she thought of the condition of the food.

The man looked at her and asked, "What's the matter?"

Leanna laughed dryly and thought that she should not break his self-esteem. "Nothing. Let's eat. Where are we going after lunch?"

"You'll know when you get there."

After that, the car slowly drove away. She noticed that he was not wearing a suit but a simple casual outfit, which made him look less cold and more relaxed.

Noticing her gaze, he turned his head with happiness in his eyes. "Are you looking at me because you're hungry or you want to have me for lunch?"

Leanna was speechless.

It was better when he didn't speak.

He's acting all vulgarly again once he starts talking.

They had lunch at a nearby restaurant. When they finished, Leanna looked at the time and saw it was already 3.00PM.

It would be dark soon if they did not hurry up.

While they exited the restaurant, she saw that he was walking slowly behind her, so she grabbed his hand and pulled him forward. "Pick up the pace!"

Raising his eyebrow, he asked, "Why are you in such a hurry?"

"I'm... rushing home to get some sleep."

Then, Aidan held her hand and walked forward. This time, his pace was visibly faster.

Half an hour later, the car stopped at the entrance of a large clubhouse.

It seemed like Aidan was a regular here because he brought her straight inside without any pause.

Leanna followed behind him while looking around and found that this place was incredibly huge. It was at least a few thousand square feet.

Aidan asked, "Do you wanna play golf or go horse-riding first?"

She was rendered speechless.

Recalling the events at the holiday retreat, she did not feel like choosing any of those.

Then, she noticed that there was a large map on the wall beside her, so she let go of his hand and went over. She saw that not only did this clubhouse have a golf course and a horse ranch, but also a shooting range, a rock climbing arena... and even a racing track.

As expected from a place where the rich would come to spend money.

Looking at Aidan, she questioned, "Are there any other options? I wanna do rock climbing. That seems more exciting."

With his hands in his pocket, he answered calmly, "I only know these two."

Pouting, she ignored him and walked toward the rock climbing arena. "This is such a huge place, so there must be trainers around. I'll go find one."

Aidan licked his thin lips and warned, "The trainers are all men. Aren't you afraid they'll take advantage of you?"

Not all men in the world are as dirty-minded as you, pfft.

She could not help feeling angry when she recalled the time when he had taught her how to play golf and boldly touched her.

That was why she was not interested in such activities.

However, she never expected to see a familiar figure when she arrived at the rock climbing arena.

This...

It is indeed a place where rich people gather.

She had already started to regret her impulsive actions.

Georgina unbuckled the safety latch on her waist, turned around, and wiped her sweat when she met Leanna's gaze.

After snorting, she threw away the towel in her hands. "How can they let just anyone come into this place?"

Georgina's friends all heard what she said and followed her line of sight. The gaze they shot at Leanna was filled with traces of curiosity and disdain.

At that moment, Aidan came and stood beside Leanne with an expressionless face.

When the others saw him, they quickly withdrew their gazes.

The trainer standing beside the group asked, "Miss Crossley, do you wanna try it again?"

Georgina snapped. "No. I don't feel like continuing anymore. What a way to spoil my day."

As she spoke, she grabbed her things and left.

Her friends also hurriedly followed behind her.

Once they were all gone, Aidan's voice sounded from behind her. "Is this the excitement you wanted?"

Gritting her teeth, Leanna exclaimed, "Shut up!"

How could I have known that I'd be so unlucky to meet Georgina here?

And that b*stard dares to throw such sarcastic remarks at me.

Laughing, he asked, "Are you still going rock climbing?"

"Of course! Why not?"

If she backed down now, it might make her look intimidated.

Just as she was about to head over there, the trainer came over with two sets of climbing gear. "President Pearson."

Aidan only took one set from the trainer before dismissing him.

Then, he helped Leanna get into the gear while she looked at him in confusion. "Didn't you say you don't know how to rock climb?"

"It depends on who I'm with."

This b*stard has a way with words.

After everything was prepared, Aidan explained the basics of rock climbing, including where to exert strength, and took a few steps backward. "Go ahead."

Inhaling a deep breath, Leanna stepped on a protruding rock while grabbing hold of another.

Then, she began to climb upward.

Her legs were already trembling when she got to about two to three meters high.

Just as she was thinking of going back down, she heard the b*stard repeatedly asking the trainer, "How high did Georgina Crossley climb?"

Not understanding Aidan's question, the trainer wondered why he would bring a woman here yet be concerned about another. He laughed dryly and answered, "Miss Crossley... I think about ten meters."

"Oh."

Aidan did not speak any further.

Hearing that, Leanna gritted her teeth and continued to climb upward.

However, this was her first time rock climbing, so she could not control her strength and technique. As such, she only managed to climb up another meter before she could not move anymore.

Only when she looked down, she saw how high she had gotten. Moreover, the trainer, who was talking to Aidan earlier, had disappeared.

Instead, there was only Aidan, who was smirking while looking at her, as if he was waiting for her to beg him.

However, she could not bring herself to do that, so she held onto the wall, breathed slowly, and remained still.

Soon, she heard his voice from below. "Do you want to come down?"

She stubbornly refused, "No. I like the view up here."

"Are you planning to stay there all afternoon?"

After staying silent for a while, Leanna decided to endure her resentment and asked, "How do I get down?"

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 317-Aidan slowly uttered, "Beg me."

"Please."

"That's patronizing."

Feeling that her hand was about to cramp, Leanna could not help but roared, "Just help me down first! I literally cannot sound any more sincere than this now."

Aidan answered, "Well, you can try."

What?

Raising his head to look at her with his dark and fiery eyes, "Think carefully. How should you address me?"

B*stard? *sshole? Piece of sh*t?

That wouldn't be appropriate, right?

Sensing her prolonged silence, he added, "If you address me the right way, I'll help you get down."

Leanna withdrew her gaze and felt her heart pounding even faster. She knew what that b*stard meant, but she could not bring herself to say it. Even during their three-year marriage, she had never addressed him that way, let alone now.

During the few seconds she was hesitating, her legs began to tremble and she almost missed a step.

Suddenly, she suddenly felt like she had dug herself into a large hole and Aidan was standing at the bottom of the hole, watching her.

A while later, she quickly whispered something.

With his eyebrow raised, he taunted, "What did you say? I can't hear you."

Leanna's eyes turned red and warm as she bit her lips and slurred an almost inaudible word.

"Honey." She paused for a bit before adding weakly, "Please."

Smiling, Aidan went forward and helped her down. He had tried to get her to call him that in bed the night before yesterday, but she would not say it no matter what.

Later, she fell right into his arms.

While she was leaning against his shoulder, she wanted nothing more than to die with him. It was fortunate that no one was around. Or else, she would regret it to death.

Not far away, Georgina watched this scene with a sneer and left.

When Aidan helped Leanna remove the climbing gear, he still had a smirk on his face. "This is indeed exciting. I'll bring you here again."

There's no more next time! You b*stard can come here on your own!

If she could go back to yesterday, she definitely would not agree to this date.

I must have lost my mind.

While helping her massage her arms, he asked, "Are you feeling better?"

"No. I want to go home."

He turned to a deaf ear and whispered, "You lack training. I said you were weak, but you refuse to admit it."

Leanne pouted and ignored him as she did not want to argue with him.

He then massaged her arms for a while longer before asking, "Alright. Where do you want to go next?"

"Home."

Turning to her, he looked at her with his dark, mysterious eyes. "Are you sure?"

After letting out an awkward laugh, she changed her mind. "No, no. I'm just joking. Let's..."

Before she finished, she suddenly heard cheering from not far away.

She immediately reacted. "What's happening over there? Let's go and see."

That direction was the race track and the race had just finished.

When Leanna and Aidan arrived, they saw Oscar descending the car, taking off his helmet, and praising, "It seems like I have to accept that I'm old. I can't win against you youngsters."

Someone from the side said, "Mr. Woodley, you're too modest. You're using a different car today, that's why you got second place. Otherwise, you're definitely the winner today."

Raising his hand, Oscar replied, "Alright, alright. Say anymore and you'll be exaggerating."

Leanna had not seen anything yet, but Aidan held her hand and pulled her away. "Let's go."

However, he was a step too late.

A distance away, Oscar had noticed them through the crowd and asked while approaching them, "What brings you here, President Pearson?"

While saying so, he saw Leanna and taunted, "So, it turns out you have a female companion."

Leanna finally knew why he wanted to pull her away. The moment Oscar spoke, she knew he was not a disciplined person; he was also the culprit who taught Aidan all those ridiculous things.

After Oscar's greeting, half of the clubhouse now knew Aidan had come over and were all looking at Leanna with probing gazes.

Aidan glared at Oscar, who finally knew he had done something wrong and coughed. Then, Oscar gave his helmet to the man beside him and ordered, "You guys continue on while I accompany President Pearson."

After saying that, he greeted Leanna, "Miss McKinney, it's been a while."

She nodded slightly as a polite response.

After they walked for a while, Oscar looked at Aidan. It was obvious he had something to say.

Pursing his lips, Aidan stopped walking and asked Leanna, "What would you like to drink? I'll get it for you."

"Anything will do."

"Wait for me here. I'll be back soon."

Then, Oscar added, "Miss McKinney, I'll... I'll be going with him. You can stay here and walk around."

She nodded with a smile. "Okay."

Once the two left, she stood in the shade and called Zoe to ask about her mother's condition.

Zoe replied, "She's feeling better. The doctor said she could be discharged after a few more days. How about you? What are you doing?"

Leanna uttered, "I'm outside."

Hearing that, Zoe probed, "Are you on a date?"

That made Leanna speechless.

How can she guess so accurately?

When Zoe heard that her friend was silent, she knew she had guessed correctly and giggled. "How is it? Where did you guys go?"

Leanna did not know where to begin. After exchanging a few pleasantries, Zoe's mother called for her, so they ended the call.

At that moment, a ray of sunlight pierced through the clouds and silently shone down, warming the surroundings.

It seemed like Spring had arrived.

As Leanna was feeling bored just waiting there, she followed the sunlight and strolled around.

However, she had just taken a few steps when grunts suddenly sounded from behind her.

She turned around and saw a horse charging toward her with only a few meters away from her.

There was not enough time to dodge; right before the horse ran into her, she fell into a warm embrace. Then, under the force of inertia, they rolled several times before coming to a stop.

A man's voice came from above her. "Are you hurt anywhere?"

Leanna came back to her senses and hurriedly got up. "I'm fine. What about you?"

Aidan was still lying on the ground. He was silent for a moment before answering, "Not good."

Hearing that, she was almost scared out of her wits and quickly scanned his body but was afraid to touch him. "Did you sprain something? Or is it something else? I-I'll call an ambulance..."

Just as she touched her phone, he held her hand. "It's not that serious. I'll be alright if you call me 'honey' again."

That rendered Leanna speechless and so she angrily pushed him.

How can this b*stard still joke around at a time like this?

At that moment, a worker from the horse ranch ran over. When he saw this scene, he was almost scared to death. "P-President Pearson..."

Slowly getting up, Aidan wore his cold and vicious visage. He did not need to say anything because his oppressive aura was so strong that the others felt breathless.

Oscar got hold of the horse and frowned. "What happened?"

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 318-The manager of the horse ranch broke out in cold sweat. "I-I don't know what happened. The horse suddenly got frightened... and we didn't notice it, so it suddenly escaped and ran out..."

Aidan got up and coldly ordered, "Find out what frightened it."

Nodding repeatedly, the manager replied, "I'll go right away. President Pearson... Do you need medical attention?"

"No."

"Yes."

Two voices sounded at the same time.

Turning around, Aidan looked at Leanna. "There's no need to see a doctor."

However, Leanna insisted. When they fell to the ground earlier, she could clearly hear the sound of heavy impact from him while she was in his embrace.

Although he did not tell her the truth, there was no way he would be completely fine after that fall.

Meanwhile, the manager averted his gaze between Aidan and Leanna before turning to Oscar for help.

Oscar gave him the reins. "Go ahead and do what you're ordered to do. I'll accompany President Pearson to the doctors."

"Thank you, Mr. Woodley. I'll inform you immediately after I find out the truth."

Nodding, Oscar agreed, "Go ahead."

After the person-in-charge left with the horse, Oscar patted the dust on his hand. "Come on, President Pearson. You need to have a checkup to see if you're injured anywhere so that someone won't have to worry about you."

Aidan looked at him indifferently. "Why are you sticking your nose into my business?"

Oscar had no words to refute.

Pulling Leanna's hand, Aidan led her in the opposite direction.

Since Oscar was free, he trailed behind the manager of the horse ranch to check on the horse.

As the clubhouse was very large with many facilities and activities, there was also a small private hospital inside. To make things easier for those wealthy second generations, who only knew to play around, they could easily seek medical attention when they got injured.

On their way there, Aidan reassured Leanna, "I'm fine, really. There's no need to go over there. It'll just waste our time."

"No. It's just a checkup. How much time can that take?" Leanna frowned. "If this is wasting time, then what about earlier?"

Hearing that, Aidan merely smiled without a word and held her hand while walking forward.

She asked the doctor to give him a detailed checkup when they arrived at the hospital. The results showed that he was fine, besides the bruises that were inflicted on him from hitting the ground.

Aidan looked at her and raised his brows. "Are you reassured now?"

However, Leanna ignored him and asked the doctor, "He fell quite seriously just now. Why don't you run another test?"

Laughing, the doctor assured her, “Mrs. Pearson, don’t worry. I can promise that there is nothing wrong with President Pearson. How about this—I’ll get you some ointment for the bruise, and you can apply it whenever you see fit?”

Leanna wanted to say something, but she was interrupted by Aidan. “Alright, Mrs. Pearson. If you’re so worried about me, why don’t you check it yourself?”

Those words caught her tongue and her face was quickly turning crimson.

What is this b*stard talking about?

Faced with the faint smile on the doctor’s face, she felt so embarrassed that she stammered, “I-It’s fine. Forget it. I need to use the bathroom.”

While she was speaking, she escaped the room.

After staying inside the bathroom for ten minutes, her burning face finally calmed down.

Heaving out a breath, she pulled out some tissues and wiped her wet hands before exiting the bathroom.

When she got to the doctor’s office, she ran into Georgina, who also saw her.

Ever since they found out about the truth, Georgina stopped acting nice to her. She withdrew her cold gaze and entered the doctor’s office whereas Leanna threw the tissue inside the trash can and went downstairs.

Inside the office, Georgina saw the man, who was wearing his suit and was stunned. “Aidan, what are you doing here?”

With a glance, Aidan stated, “Don’t ask me questions about something you already know. I won’t buy it.”

She burst out laughing. “What do I know? I accidentally hurt myself during rock climbing, so I came here to let the doctor have a look. Why do you think I have another reason to be here?”

“What do you expect me to say, then? What a coincidence? Are you hurt too? Why are you here to have a checkup?”

That rain of questions rendered her speechless.

Then, the doctor coughed. “Miss Crossley, let me check your wound.”

Before Georgina could respond, Aidan had left the office.

She turned around to look at his back and could not help biting her lips.

...

When Aidan walked out of the hospital, he saw Leanna sitting on a bench while drinking a cold drink, comfortably bathing in the sun.

Walking over, he sat down beside her. “Where did you buy this?”

Leanna replied, “Just now, a young and handsome man passed by. He saw that I was pretty, so he gave this to me for free.”

Aidan was speechless. Then, he reached out to grab her drink, lowered his head, and finished more than half in one go.

“I’m thirsty.”

Pouting, she argued, “Didn’t you say you were going to buy drinks earlier?”

“I threw it somewhere.” He looked at her. “Why are you sitting here?”

She retorted, “Wouldn’t I be interrupting you and your ex-fiance if I went in?”

After licking his lips, he asked, “Are you still jealous?”

Leanna sneered, “Who’s jealous? I’m just being considerate.”

Happiness gradually filled his eyes as he caressed her hair. “Alright. So, the considerate Mrs. Pearson, are you still planning to sit here?”

“Don’t touch my head. You’re messing up my hair.”

She pushed his hand away, fished out the small mirror she always had with her, and began to tidy her hair.

She had even gotten up early today to learn how to style her hair from the Internet.

That b*stard almost ruined my hard work.

Aidan said, "You don't have to look into the mirror. You're already beautiful. Otherwise, why would someone give you a drink instead of me?"

Putting down the mirror, Leanna grunted lightly. "Being likable is something you won't be able to experience in your whole life."

After a few minutes of walking, they saw a gray-haired old man selling cold drinks in front of a very cute car.

Raising his eyebrow, he asked. "Is that the young and handsome man you mentioned?"

Leanna was at a loss for words.

Shut up, you b*stard!

At first, she wanted to buy a drink, but the old man said his stall was owned by the clubhouse, so the drinks were free for everyone.

Then, Aidan walked over and made his order. "Two cups. Thank you."

The old man bowed in acknowledgment and grabbed the cold drink.

Nodding, Aidan bowed and received them. Meanwhile, Leanna watched this scene while a smile appeared on her face.

Everyone thought he was an arrogant man who was full of himself and unbridled. However, he was actually someone who always respected those who should be respected.

Those who said that about Aidan mostly faked benevolence and had no morality. They would only use despicable means in the dark to get what they wanted.

The Pearsons had never expected that the illegitimate child they raised for their own benefits would actually develop his own thoughts, outside of their decades-long brainwash.

When he became uncontrollable, the Pearsons began to fear and hate him.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 319-Back at the horse ranch, the manager of the horse ranch did not dare to let anyone ride the horses after that incident. Instead, he gathered all the horses and checked every one of them.

Since Oscar was free, he stood by the side and watched what was happening.

The rest of the bystanders heard that the horse had almost knocked into someone, but no one knew who it was. When they saw such a big commotion, they stuck around and waited for the investigation results despite the temporary shutdown.

When Aidan and Leanne came over, the manager dashed to welcome them and invite them into the lounge. "President Pearson. You must be... Mrs. Pearson, I'm sorry for the mistake our clubhouse has made today. The clubhouse will be responsible for compensating all your losses."

"This is not what I wanted to hear."

The manager wiped the sweat from his forehead. "Yes, you're right, President Pearson. The investigation has been concluded. There was a nail on the horse's butt. The ranch's fences were being revamped this afternoon and the nail somehow—"

Then, Aidan coldly accused, "You mean to say the nail pinned itself to the horse's butt? Or do you want to say that it deliberately sat on the nail?"

Feeling his legs trembling, the manager was at a loss for how to answer.

It was obvious that someone had done this on purpose. However, those who came to this clubhouse were either rich or powerful, so the manager did not want to offend any of them, which was why he was afraid to speculate.

It would not matter if the horse was frightened, but why did it have to charge in this couple's direction?

Aidan ordered, "I want the list of whoever that was in the ranch this afternoon."

Hearing that, the manager did not dare to refuse Aidan, so he quickly went to find the list.

When Aidan saw Georgina's name on the list, he was not the slightest bit surprised.

His expression became even darker as he asked, "Where is Georgina?"

The manager replied, "Miss Crossley just came out of the hospital, so she must be leaving the clubhouse and on her way home."

With his eyes gently raised, he ordered emotionlessly, "Get her here."

Obviously, the manager was afraid to provoke Georgina, so he stammered, "P-President Pearson, but —"

"Tell her that if she doesn't come over, I'll immediately head to Crossley Group to find Lloyd Crossley."

When the manager heard that, he was tense yet relieved. That way, he would not have to provoke her because he would only be relaying Aidan's words.

During that whole process, Leanna did not even say a word.

A frightened horse could indeed be ruled as an accident. However, a nail on it, which meant it was done by someone else.

It was not her intention to assume such bad things about Georgina, but with what had happened previously, it was tough not to be suspicious of her.

In other words, besides her, there was not anyone else who could do such a thing.

Half an hour later, Georgina finally appeared. She sat on you looking for me?"

Then, Aidan placed the long nail retrieved from the horse before her.

After taking a look at it, she asked, "What's this?"

Leanna explained, "A horse from the horse ranch was attacked and frightened. This nail was retrieved from it."

Smiling, Georgina argued, "According to what you're saying, Miss McKinney, it seems like I have something to do with the horse being frightened?"

While saying that, she looked at Aidan. "Did you call me back because of this?"

With a stoic face, Aidan replied, "Of course not."

“If so, then what’s all this for? Aidan, you threatened me convince others that you’re not deliberately challenging me.”

When she said those last few words, she purposely looked at Leanna.

Aidan asked, “You said you were hurt. Where did you get hurt?”

Once he said that, Georgina’s face paled and she did not reply.

He continued, “If I guessed correctly, you went to the hospital to or Leanna who got hurt. Am I right?”

Quickly regaining her composure, Georgina protested, “I don’t know what you’re talking about. I went to the hospital because I got injured, but I think that I have no obligations to tell you about such private matters.”

“I can find the doctor and ask to know whether you’re really injured.”

Georgina’s face paled. “What are you implying? I’m not a criminal who’s being interrogated. Aidan, I—”

Aidan interrupted her. “You should know better about what you did.”

Smiling, she turned her attention to the person beside him. “Miss McKinney, is this how you usually speak of me before Aidan?”

Having suddenly been cued, Leanna smiled. “Miss Crossley, you have such quick reflexes.”

She directly jumped from one topic to another. Then, Georgina argued, “Should I stick around and let you accuse me if I didn’t have such quick reflexes? Miss McKinney, I did want to be your friend, but you’ve said that I should keep my distance from Aidan and never think of having any relationship with him for the rest of my life. What about now?”

“Miss Crossley, did you sincerely want to be my friend? Or did you approach me with a purpose? I think that’s something only you would know.”

“I think your words are interesting. Why would I approach you with a purpose? Back then, you were the ex-wife everyone despised, so what could I get out of you?”

“If so, then how would you explain your actions now, Miss Crossley? Is it your way of revenge because your engagement was canceled? If that’s the reason, then you can’t even compare with me, the ex-wife that everyone despised. At least I did things openly and transparently, but what about you, Miss Crossley?”

Since Georgina liked to use the fact that she was Aidan’s ex-wife to annoy her, then she would just use it to get back at her. After all, Georgina was not the only one with a mouth.

Meanwhile, Oscar and a few rich young masters and ladies came over to watch the ‘show’. However, when they neared the door, they just happened to hear the two women arguing and instantly retreated quietly.

The war between women was the most terrifying.

After sneering, Georgina ridiculed. “What’s there to be proud of when you used a fake pregnancy to get Aidan to marry you?”

“How about you, Miss Crossley? Don’t tell me you didn’t use any schemes?”

With two fingers pressed together, Aidan pressed them against his temples as he felt a headache coming.

At that moment, the manager could not endure it anymore. He was afraid a fight might break out between the two women, so he asked timidly, “Miss Crossley, President Pearson... Mrs. Pearson, why don’t we talk about...the accident just now?”

With a cold expression, Georgina argued, “I said I don’t have anything to do with that. What do you want me to say?”

Aidan stated, “The ranch had its fences revamped today, and in order to track their progress, there would be cameras recording the process. Do you want me to give it to the media or do you want to admit your doings now?”

It seemed that Georgina might not have expected this, so she instantly froze without uttering a word.

She knew the fences were being revamped today, which was why she took a nail while no one was looking. However, her attention was all on Leanna, so she did not take notice of her surroundings. Therefore, she was not sure if the cameras Aidan mentioned were true

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 320-If it was fake, it meant that Aidan was bluffing. By admitting it now, Georgina would fall into his trap.

However, if it was true, Aidan totally had the guts to send the video to the media. He didn't have any regard for anyone. Moreover, he was on bad terms with the Crossley Group.

Presently, the Crossley Group had been targeted. If such a video was leaked, the impact it would have on her would be incalculable.

Seeing that she remained silent, Aidan went on to say, "What's wrong, Miss Crossley? Aren't you a proud person? Don't you have the guts to admit what you've done?"

A moment later, Georgina took a deep breath and straightened her back. "Yes, I was the one who did it. Although I was the one who jabbed a needle into the horse, I couldn't possibly control the direction it was heading. Animals are intelligent creatures. As the target of the attack, shouldn't Miss McKinney reflect upon herself? There were so many people in the club. Why did the horse go straight to her?"

It was the first time Leanna heard about such sophistry. As a victim, she was being blamed for what happened to her.

Without getting mad, she replied with a smile, "Miss Crossley, do you also mean that I have myself to blame that Karen only makes things difficult for me when Highside is such a huge city?"

After a pause, she continued, "By the way, there's something I have to tell you. She didn't die in the car crash. In fact, she regained consciousness last week, and she was transferred to a general ward two days ago. She's pretty clear-headed now, and she can accurately recall your license plate number."

While Georgina was stunned, Aidan turned to look at Leanna and arched his brow. He seemed to be asking why she never told him about it.

It wasn't that Leanna didn't want to tell him about it; rather, she didn't have a chance to do so.

Recently, she had been swamped with work.

If it had not been for the incident on this day, she would have waited for a more suitable chance to break it to him.

Georgina pressed her lips together and balled up her fists that were resting on her knees. She never expected that Leanna would gain such evidence that could be used against her.

There was a gentle smile on Leanna's face. "Don't worry, Miss Crossley. I won't tell anyone about it. After all, we'll be family members soon. If your wrongdoing is exposed, it doesn't only affect you but also the Crossley Group. Hence, that will have an impact on me as well."

Georgina stood straight up and left the place.

After she was gone, the smile on Leanna's face faded.

The person in charge of this place said, "P-President Pearson, I'll take my leave now."

"Alright."

Soon, they were the only people left in the lounge.

Aidan rested his back against the couch and placed his hand behind her. "I didn't know that you're pretty good at bluffing."

"I'm nowhere as skillful as you are, President Pearson. You lied about the camera footage without blinking an eye."

Aidan curled up his lips. "I suppose that means we're a perfect match for each other."

Leanna was rendered speechless. The man always flirted with her without knowing that she was disgusted by it.

Aidan went on to say, "With such evidence in your hands, she won't make things difficult for you after you join the Crossley Family. However, you must not let your guard down in front of Lloyd."

Leanna nodded. "I got it."

Since she had decided to join the Crossley Family to achieve her goal, she certainly had to be prepared.

After leaving the lounge, she noticed that the sky had turned dark. Only then did she realize they had been held up for a long time.

Because of the incident earlier, she hadn't had any of the food she prepared the previous night.

It seemed that she had to call it a day and bring the food home.

After they hit the road, she realized that Aidan wasn't going back. Instead, he kept driving the car forward, and they soon left the city.

She turned to look at him. "Aren't we going home?"

Aidan replied, "The date hasn't even started. Why should we go home?"

Leanna was startled.

What does he think we'd been doing the entire afternoon? Forget it. We're outside now anyway. There's nothing else we can do other than having dinner and sleeping if we go home. I probably should seize this chance and wind down.

Thirty minutes later, the car stopped by the seaside.

Leanna hadn't expected that the man would bring her to this place. After becoming startled for a moment, she put on a bright smile.

Aidan unbuckled the seat belt and got out of the car. After opening the backseat door, he picked up some food containers. "Let's go."

Leanna followed him closely. A moment later, she realized that the pier had been delicately decorated. Light bulbs that radiated warm light were draped around the railings. There was a layer of roses on the ground, and behind were two cushions, a bottle of red wine, and two glasses. The setting looked romantic and cozy.

This place was indeed apt for a date.

It surprised Leanna that the man was willing to do such a thing for her.

After they were seated, Leanna opened the lids of the food containers. The moment she saw that the food was a mess, she froze.

Aidan coughed. "Let's ignore how it looks. The most important thing is that it's delicious, don't you agree?"

Leanna closed her eyes and kept a smile on her face. "President Pearson, I think you'd better not step into the kitchen again."

She was puzzled as she had neatly placed the food on the plates, but after he transferred the food to the containers, it became a mess.

It seemed that he would only wreak havoc in the kitchen.

A displeased Aidan frowned. "Are you looking down on me?"

"That's not true. It's just a piece of sincere advice..."

Aidan ignored her and filled a cup with red wine.

Leanna hadn't had any food since afternoon, so she was starving. As she picked up a piece of cake, she realized that the man was staring fixedly at her with his dark gaze. She decided to stuff a piece of sushi into his mouth.

What surprised her was that before she could retract her hand, the man gently bit her fingers.

Instantly, Leanna felt a numbing sensation all over her hand. With a blushing face, she protested, "What are you doing?"

After gulping down the sushi, Aidan replied, "It's my response to you."

Leanna was rendered speechless.

What kind of response is that?

Then, she decided to ignore him and had her own food.

While enjoying her meal, she looked at the view around her.

In the darkness, the ocean didn't look as clear as it was in the morning. However, with the lighthouse casting its light on the ocean, it looked somewhat different from what they'd usually see.

She lifted her head and saw that the sky was filled with stars.

It seemed that the weather would be lovely the next day.

She poked the man with her elbow with a joyful expression. "Look, President Pearson. There are so many stars in the sky. They're beautiful!"

Aidan took a glance at her and said slowly, "The star beside me is more beautiful."

Leanna was engrossed in observing the stars, so she didn't clearly hear what he said. She subconsciously said, "Come again?"

"Nothing." Aidan passed her the glass of wine. "You didn't have enough wine last night. We'll drink together now."

Leanna retracted her gaze. "When did I say I didn't have enough wine? I just didn't get drunk."

With his lips curling up, Aidan asked, "Doesn't that mean you didn't have enough wine since you were not drunk?"

Leanna was stupefied. What kind of nonsense is that
