Love Change Of Heart Chapter 41– It Only Makes One Feel Disgusted

His long legs carried him away after the sentence. Georgina froze for a long time before she responded. Did he mean to compare her to Anna?

Georgina's face turned pale as she bit into her lower lip. He was the one who didn't want to marry Leanna three years ago.

What was the difference between Leanna, who coerced him into marrying despite the fact that she was expecting, and Anna, who coerced Zayn into marrying her by means of an alliance? Why should they be compared to her?

Leanna finally found a decent room, but the landlord said the contract couldn't be signed until the next day, so she had to stay another night in the hotel.

She had to return to Zoe's place to grab a change of clothes, wash her clothes, and pack her suitcase at the same time.

Zoe was hesitant as Leanna pulled her luggage behind her. "Why don't you continue to live here, Nana? There is an additional room. I've already talked to Anthony about it, and he is not against it."

Leanna replied with a smile, "What are you thinking about? You are both so loving with one another, and I don't want to be an eyesore for the two of you."

"But you're alone and pregnant—"

"Don't worry, I still have Louis. I'll be fine."

Knowing that Leanna already made up her mind, Zoe sighed and said, "I'll send you to the hotel, then. You have so much stuff and it's difficult to carry them alone."

Leanna nodded. "Okay."

When they arrived at the hotel, Zoe plopped into the bed and rolled around while hugging the blanket. "It's so comfy. I should just stay a night here with you."

While unpacking, Leanna said, "If you stay for the night, Anthony will probably come and pick you up."

Her words made Zoe blush a little. "After his return this time, it's as though he's a changed man, and he's very clingy to me, just like a sticky candy."

“Well, you haven’t seen each other for almost a year.” Pausing, Leanna then asked, “You guys are probably going to get registered now that he’s back, right?”

A shy Zoe nodded. “I’ve been looking at wedding dresses and venues today, and I’m just waiting for his proposal.”

After saying that, it suddenly struck her that she seemed to have said something inappropriate.

Back when Leanna married that jerk, they only signed the registration papers without any other formalities; there was not even an exchange of wedding rings.

However, Leanna didn’t have much reaction to that and merely chuckled as she said, “At that time when you’re getting married, I’ll design all your jewelry for you.”

Throwing herself at her, Zoe hugged her tightly. “My dear Nana, I love you so much!”

“Alright, alright. Go home quickly, or Anthony will be worried if he can’t find you at home.”

“Okay, you take care, then. Don’t forget to lock the doors properly before going to bed at night.”

“Alright, be safe on your way home.”

After getting out of the hotel, Zoe received a text from Anthony just a few seconds after she got into the car. ‘I’m sorry, baby, but I can’t be home tonight to accompany you because of a business dinner. Rest early for the night, alright?’

‘Okay. Don’t drink too much.’

As Anthony had just returned from abroad, there were many things at work that he needed to catch up on, and he also needed to build up a lot of connections. Without giving it any more thoughts, Zoe set her cell phone aside and drove home.

Even though she told him to drink less, she reckoned that it would be hard to control the intake over the dinner table.

So, she had to return home to prepare some hangover cure for him when he came home, otherwise she could have stayed behind with Leanna tonight.

After Zoe was gone, Leanna went to the pharmacy to buy folic acid and then some snacks from the grocery. On the way back to the hotel, she passed by a street stall selling some snacks, and she bought some, too.

When she arrived at the hotel, she noticed a black Rolls-Royce parked outside the front door. It was that jerk's car!

What was he doing here? She felt her goosebumps because he didn't come all the way to ask her to repay the money, right? Surely, she thought, they had already agreed for her to return the money via installment!

Furious, she marched forward and gave the back of the car a hard kick before running away in a hurry.

Meanwhile, Aidan, who was in the car, was speechless as his hand was halfway ready to open the car door.

Literally fleeing back to her own room, Leanna then locked the door carefully and spent ten minutes to calm herself. When she was sure that Aidan didn't give chase, only then did she open up her snacks from the street stall.

Who would have thought that the doorbell would ring after she had taken a bite and greeted by the sound of a girl speaking, "Miss McKinney, someone has claimed that he picked up something belonging to you and I would want to check with you."

Leanna observed the hotel staff waiting outside her door through the peephole and debated whether or not to open it.

When the hotel staff didn't hear a reply, she became worried that there could be an accident and pressed the doorbell again. "Miss McKinney, are you inside?"

Letting out a sigh, Leanna pulled the door open. "I'm here."

Forget it, I can't hide even if I try, she thought. If Aidan was really here to ask for the money back, she couldn't hide from him forever.

Handing her a small bag, the hotel staff asked, "Miss McKinney, please check if this belongs to you."

Leanna opened the bag and took out a bottle with the words 'folic acid' written clearly on it.

After a couple of seconds, she muttered rather reluctantly, "It's mine."

My guess was wrong, she thought. Aidan isn't here for the money but he purposely came here with this to humiliate me.

"Didn't you say that it's gastric pills last night?" A stoic voice belonging to a man echoed from the side, and Leanna turned her head stiffly to the source only to see Aidan leaning against the wall next to them. His dark eyes were cold and deep as they stared at her emotionlessly, and she chuckled dryly a couple of times.

The hotel staff glanced between both of them. "Miss McKinney..."

"We know each other. Thank you so much."

"Okay, I'm going, then. If you need anything, just give a call to the receptionist, Miss McKinney."

In reply, Leanna gave her a nod, and her heart sank to the bottom of her stomach. Lonely and powerless, she wondered if she should tell him the truth.

However, even without saying it, she already knew what the outcome would be.

As the father of the child in her womb, Aidan had the right to decide the fate of it, but she was really incredibly reluctant.

Just when she had slipped into a huge struggle, Aidan frowned, brushed past her and went into her room. "Get me a glass of water."

Closing her eyes, she took a deep breath, and when she was out with a glass of water, he was already seated on the couch, and looking exhausted.

After she placed the glass on the coffee table in front of him, she asked cautiously, "President Pearson, please speak your mind if you have anything to say."

Aidan picked up the glass, raised his head and drank the water. Running his slender finger around the rim of the glass absent-mindedly, he spoke in such a cold voice that there wasn't a single shard of emotion, "Isn't Zayn Barnett with you tonight?"

A confused Leanna asked, "Why should he be with me?"

He smirked. "That's true. He's busy with another woman and doesn't have the time to be bothered about you."

"What exactly are you trying to say, President Pearson?"

Looking at her, he asked, "Leanna McKinney, people from the Barnett Family went to visit the Pearson Family today. Do you know why?"

"I don't know."

"I'll tell you, then." Getting up, he paced toward her step by step. "The person whom Zayn Barnett wants to marry is Anna. Even if you're pregnant with his child as you wish, it will only be an illegitimate child. Don't you know that it only makes others feel disgusted if you use the same trick twice?"

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 42– Do My Words Make You Sick?

Sensing danger approaching, Leanna couldn't help but step backward until she had no more room to retreat and the cold wall was pressed against her back.

The word 'disgusted' snapped her back to her senses completely, and her voice was calm as she spoke, "You've got it wrong. There's nothing going on between me and Zayn."

Clearly unconvinced, Aidan held her chin and narrowed his eyes as he said coldly, "Why are you taking folic acid, then? Aren't you preparing for pregnancy?"

Speechless, Leanna finally understood why he had such a reaction when he saw her taking folic acid.

A few times, she wanted to refute him by telling him that nobody had set the rule saying that folic acid was only meant for pregnancy preparation. However, she thought that it wasn't bad if that was what he thought. At least, he wouldn't suspect that the baby was his.

Seeing that she was silent, he squeezed her chin tightly. "At which stage are you with Zayn Barnett now? Or should I ask, how many times have you done it with him already?"

Never before had Leanna felt this offended, and she was annoyed and frustrated as she snapped, "Do you think everyone acts like an animal in heat like you? There's nothing going on between me and Zayn. No... It's all thanks to you. If it wasn't because of you, I would have been with him a long time ago, and maybe, our children would be running around now!"

"So, you're really missing him," Aidan said sarcastically.

"Should I be missing you instead, then? Don't you forget this, President Pearson. We're already divorced, so even if I meet up with Zayn and do whatever, it's none of your business. I—Uh!"

Lowering his head, he covered her lips completely with his, pushing back all the words she wanted to say. Leanna lifted her hands and wanted to push him away, but he pinned her against the wall instead.

Tightening his grip on her chin, he forced her mouth open and the tip of his tongue pried her lips apart easily.

Instantly, her eyes turned red. Forget the fact that this jerk gave her a hard time when they were married, now that they were divorced, he was still acting so brazenly, and she had really had enough!

Struggling with all her might, she then tasted the taste of iron that was spreading between their mouths.

Slowly, Aidan got away from her, but his hands were still in control of her as he spoke in a husky voice, "Is it not pleasurable how I'm serving you? Why are you biting me so hard?"

Controlling herself from shaking, Leanna said emotionlessly, "President Pearson, I think you should look for someone to let off your steam if you're doing something so inhumane because you've been abstinent for too long and your energy is building up."

"I'm here to look for you, aren't I?" he answered.

It had been almost three months since she brought up the divorce, and he hadn't touched her for a long time, so of course he had the urge.

Meanwhile, she took a deep breath and thought, This jerk really sounds so justified!

While she was on the edge of passing out from fury, she said, "President Pearson, I hope you can keep your beastly behavior under control. We're already divorced, and I have no obligations to you as your wife. If you continue this, I'll sue you for sexual abuse."

Aidan grimaced glumly, "Don't mention the word 'divorce' to me."

"We've already terminated the legal relationship established by the equalities and volitionality between a man and a woman."

Using his thumb, he wiped off the blood that was smudged on the corner of his lips. "Why didn't I realize before this that you have such a sharp tongue?"

"That's because you didn't understand me in the past."

"Marrying me obstructed you from developing?"

Silently, Leanna thought, Is there a problem with this jerk? Just a second ago, he was fierce and mean to me, and now, he's telling me a stupid joke which isn't funny at all.

Before she could say anything, Aidan added, "Leanna McKinney, someone said that I like you." He paused and asked, "Do you believe this?" While she remained speechless, he said, "I don't even believe this myself. Or perhaps, do you think this is possible?"

Look for the person who said something so ridiculous! she thought furiously. Why are you here acting so sarcastic with me? Unable to tolerate him anymore, she was about to lash out at him when she smelled the faint scent of tobacco and alcohol on him.

During their three years of marriage, she could count the times when he smoked on one hand, unless he encountered something frustrating. However, this had nothing to do with her, and just because he was in a foul mood, it didn't mean that he could humiliate her brazenly.

Not hearing an answer from her for a long while, Aidan released her hand. "I'll give you a chance to explain the folic acid."

Leanna pursed her lips; she should really thank the heavens that he was giving her this chance, and he said again, "Leanna McKinney, I'll believe you if you answer me this time. So, you better think carefully before giving me an answer."

Thinking of her debt of ten million, she conceded in the end and lied with a straight face, "That's not mine; it's Zoe's. She's going to get married to her boyfriend soon, and they're preparing for a baby."

"Why is her stuff in your bag?"

"I'm living with her and we're working at the same place together. She forgot to bring it when she left the house in a hurry. Is there a problem if I bring it to her?"

Aidan was quiet, and Leanna didn't know whether he believed it or not. After a couple of seconds, he asked, "Aren't you living with her? Why are you in a hotel now?"

Annoyed, she snapped, "Can't you think with your brains? Do you think it's appropriate for me to live there when she's preparing to have a baby with her boyfriend?"

Her answer got him speechless, and she continued, "If there's nothing else, President Pearson, may you just leave now? People will gossip if a single man and woman share a room... I don't want someone to label me as disgusting for no reason again."

"As long as people have mouths, gossip can be spread no matter how."

And isn't this all your f*cking fault?! she thought furiously.

He stated casually, "If you don't want others to gossip about us, I'm willing to put up with some annoyance and agree to have our marriage again. Nobody has the right to criticize as long as we are in an equal and legal relationship."

After the words left his lips, Leanna couldn't help but retch.

Immediately, Aidan's face turned sour and he tightened his jaw as he growled, "Leanna McKinney!"

With little time to waste, she pushed him aside, ran to the bathroom, and puked furiously while grasping the toilet. She emerged from the bathroom after a long time to find him still standing in the same location, his gorgeous features buried by a coating of icy mist.

"Why? Do my words make you sick?" he asked with a stony face.

"I'm just feeling a little unwell, but if that's what you think, I have nothing to —"

A loud sound of the door closing reverberated before she finished her sentence.

Sniggering sheepishly, Leanna then returned to the couch, but the food in front of her had already turned cold, and she lost her appetite. Sighing, she cleared up the things simply and went to bed.

This had been an exhausting evening for her.

Feeling her the edge of her lips which was chafed, she suddenly felt mad. That jerk must be acting out because he had too much to drink tonight, and she blocked him on all possible contact methods. The further she stayed away from Aidan, the better it was for her, but she was still unable to avoid him venting out his frustration on her.

Just what kind of person have I offended? she wondered to herself, tossing around with her hand on her abdomen. Fortunately, he had believed the story about the folic acid, at least. Even if he didn't, it didn't even occur to him that she was taking it because she was pregnant.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 43– It's... Him?

The next day after getting her house, Leanna moved into her rented place with whatever little belongings she had. Zoe and Louis didn't allow her to do the cleaning, as they told her to sit and take a rest. Plopped on the couch, she ordered some afternoon snacks for them while thinking that she was actually kind...

With such a kind godmother and uncle, the baby will receive very good care once it's born. With that thought in mind, she lowered her head and placed her hand softly on her abdomen. She wasn't sure if she had gained weight recently or the baby was growing, but her belly was slightly swollen.

As Zoe still had a shoot in the afternoon, she could only ask for a few hours away from work for the day. Before leaving, she bought a bunch of daily necessities for Leanna. “Nana, I can’t take care of you after this, so you must take good care of yourself. Don’t you ever starve yourself.”

Coming out of the kitchen, Louis said, “I’ll take care of my sister.” With a giggle, Leanna said, “That’s enough, both of you. I’m not a child, so don’t worry about me.”

“You’re not a child, but you have a baby inside,” Zoe said, going closer to her belly. “Little baby, be good and don’t give your mommy a hard time. Otherwise, I’ll smack your little butt once you’re born.”

Soon after she had left, Leanna said to Louis, “You should get going as well. I’ll take care of the rest myself.” “No,” he answered. “I’ll stay with you for a few days and will leave after you’ve familiarized yourself with the surroundings.”

A chuckle escaped her lips. “Did you really take me for a child? I’m your sister.”

His face was very earnest when he answered, “I’m only staying for a few days so that the others are aware that there’s a man in your house and won’t bully you because you’re a girl living alone.”

The smile on her face stiffened, and she didn’t turn him down anymore. “I’ll buy a single bed for you, then. It’s more convenient for your visits afterward.”

“It’s okay. I’ll just sleep on the couch,” he said, taking out a bag of trash. “I’m going home to pack some clothes. What would you like to eat? I’ll buy it on the way back.”

A month later. “I’m so sorry to trouble you, Gina since I’m asking you to accompany me every time.”

Holding Carly’s arm, Georgina smiled softly and said, “Carly, you don’t need to be courteous with me. I have nothing to do at home, anyway, and I can take a breather outside when I’m out with you.”

Carly sighed. “Because of the marriage with the Pearsons, Zayn has been in an argument with the rest of the family recently. If I had known this would happen, I wouldn’t have agreed to this marriage at that time. Look at the situation now, the Pearsons despise us and Zayn is unhappy as well. Neither side is happy.”

“You’ve got it wrong, Carly. Aidan doesn’t have anything against you guys; he’s just—”

Speaking about Aidan, Carly lowered her voice and posed the following question. “I’ve been wanting to ask you something, Gina. I’ve heard rumors that Aidan Pearson is not

Mrs. Pearson's child, but rather the illegitimate son of Gordon Pearson and an outsider. Since you frequently visited Pearson Family Estate when you were younger, is this true?"

Aidan was seven when he was brought back to the Pearson Family, and they told others that Aidan had been recuperating abroad because he was unhealthy since he was born. In addition, Gordon had used some of his influence, and nobody spoke about this anymore after that.

At the same time, when Aidan was brought back to the Pearson Family, Justin was involved in a car accident that left him crippled on both legs. As a result, Justin was unable to be the successor to the Pearson Group. All this happened within two months.

If everything before this was just groundless accusations, then Carly had all the reason to have doubts after witnessing the brutal situation at the Pearsons' the last time.

Casting her an apologetic smile, Georgina answered, "I haven't heard about this. You're thinking too much, Carly. Actually, it makes sense why Aidan doesn't agree to the marriage between Zayn and Anna. Think about it, Anna is infamous for being bossy and arrogant. If she doesn't restrain herself after she marries Zayn and becomes more brazen instead, there will be problems for two families and two companies at that time. Aidan has always hated trouble. In addition, Anna is only his cousin, and he definitely doesn't want to take care of her mess for her."

Thinking that she has a point, Carly said helplessly, "I don't like Anna Pearson that much, either, but my dad thinks that it's a good opportunity that our families can be tied by marriage. He was hopping mad with Aidan's attitude previously, so I think this matter will just be forgotten in the end."

Georgina nodded in agreement. "Zayn is an amazing person, and there must be countless girls who like him. He'll definitely find someone more suitable than Anna—"

Before she could finish her sentence, she suddenly caught sight of a familiar figure at the entrance. "What is it?"

Looking away, she uttered, "I think I saw a... friend." "A friend?" Following her gaze, Carly only saw unfamiliar faces, and she asked, "Is your friend here for a maternity check as well?"

"What?" "This place is for maternity checks. How long has your friend been pregnant? Should I introduce my doctor to her?" Shaking her head, Georgina took her arm and led her out. "It's alright. I've probably mistaken someone else for her. Let's go, Carly."

Without a doubt, she had seen it right; the person earlier was Leanna. Even though she had only seen pictures of Leanna before, she could definitely recognize Leanna's face.

After they reached the car, she stopped. “Carly, I suddenly remembered something and won’t be going back with you.” “Okay, but where are you going? I’ll ask my driver to drop you off.”

“It’s fine because it’s just somewhere nearby.” After saying goodbye to Carly, Georgina returned to the hospital, and when she reached the obstetrics department, she happened to see Leanna coming out of the gynecologist’s office.

She had the identical obstetrics report folder in her hands as Carly. As Georgina watched Leanna from the back, she frowned slightly.

In the meantime, Leanna had just left the hospital when she received a call from Harvey. A client went to Lux Jewelry and had specifically asked for her because he wanted a set of custom-designed jewelry. “I’m coming over right now,” she answered.

Following the debut of ‘First Love,’ Lux Jewelry launched a number of new pieces of jewelry, all of which received enormously positive reviews. Many magazine firms, including well-known jewelry brands, approached Leanna at this time period, but she turned them all down.

Harvey was akin to her lucky star; when she had nothing and needed recognition the most, he had signed her up despite the risks. So, she wouldn’t leave Lux Jewelry at this time.

Harvey briefly described the scenario to her upon her arrival at Lux Jewelry as they made their way to the VIP lounge. “Even though we’ve never accepted custom orders before this, we had planned to develop in various ways back then when we decided to set up our independent brand. But don’t worry, we’re only accepting high-quality clients for custom designs.”

To put it simply, the advantage of doing this was that Leanna could open up a market for high-quality clients for herself and the company, and the remuneration could also be very high.

She nodded. “I’ll do a good job.”

At the door of the conference room, Harvey knocked and opened the door. “Mr. Pearson, our designer is here.”

When the person in front of her turned around, the smile on Leanna’s face turned stiff.

What ... It’s him?

“McK, this is Mr. Justin Pearson.” After a simple introduction, Harvey then left the room because of other work. Justin was seated on the wheelchair, and he wore a polite and gentle smile. “Leanna, so you’re the famous designer of Lux Jewelry.”

“Jus—” Tin, she finished in her head and paused. “Hello, Mr. Pearson.” “You don’t have to be so awkward and formal with me. Like Aidan, just call me Justin,” he said.

“I don’t think so because Aidan and I are already divorced.” He chuckled. “You’re right. But it’s just a way of addressing someone, and I’m only a year older than you, so it’s okay if you call me by my name.”

The edges of Leanna’s lips turned up, and she didn’t continue to fuss over this issue with him anymore. “What type of jewelry would you like to custom design, Mr. Pearson?”

“I almost forgot about this.” From the folder which he was always carrying with himself, Justin took out a few pieces of paper and placed them on the table. “My mother’s birthday is next week, and I would like to have a necklace specially designed for her. Previously, I planned to design it myself, but as you can see, none of these are presentable.”

Once again, Leanna felt that she couldn’t hold the smile on her face. Isn’t his mother also Aidan’s mother?

That aloof and elegant woman, who exuded a regal air around her, was incredibly unapproachable.

Seeing the odd look on her face, Justin apologized, “This is a little difficult for you, isn’t it? I only came here to give it a shot after my friend told me that the new designer Lux Jewelry had signed is very talented and smart. If it’s too much to ask for, then just forget it...”

At the end of his sentence, there was an obvious trace of regret in his voice, and after a couple of seconds, Leanna said, “It’s not too difficult. What kind of style would you prefer, Mr. Pearson?”

Since Leanna was the one who pointed out that she was divorced from Aidan, it would seem as though she was still brooding over it if she turned Justin down because of this. Furthermore, this was work, and she shouldn’t include her personal feelings into it.

After Justin had explained the style he wanted to her, he said again, “Next week is my mother’s birthday, so maybe you’ll have to come up with the draft within the next three days and the final product has to be finished before her birthday. The time is a little rushed, eh? It's my fault for delaying too much time before this. Even though I know that I'm not capable, I insisted on giving it a try."

"I don't have any other work at hand now, so I can make it in three days. Once the design draft is ready, I'll ask Mr. Mancini to contact you, Mr. Pearson."

"Actually, I'm not that familiar with Mr. Mancini. If it's convenient for you, let's leave our contact details with each other."

"Sure," Leanna said.

As this was work, this was a reasonable request from the client.

After they had added each other on WhatsApp, Leanna kept the papers on the table back into the folder and returned it to Justin, saying, "I'll see you out, Mr. Pearson."

"Thank you."

When they were outside of Lux, Justin's driver came to greet them and took over the handles of Justin's wheelchair from Leanna.

"It's alright; you can go. I won't hold you from your work," Justin said.

Smiling, Leanna replied, "Goodbye, Mr. Pearson."

In the elevator going up, Leanna was thinking that if she had to mention someone who was kind to her from the Pearsons, then there was only Justin.

A few years ago at that party when people kept ordering her around and were being mean to her, he was the only one who offered her a glass of water, saying gently, "Take a break for a while. You don't have to be bothered by the things that they said. As long as Aidan regards you as his wife, then nothing anyone else says matters."

Quietly, Leanna thought to herself, The man's precisely the one who denies me the most. Holding the glass, she thanked him meekly instead.

Afterward, Justin was also the one who helped her out when Anna came to humiliate and pick a fight with her. At that time, she couldn't understand why both of them had such different personalities even though they were brothers.

If Aidan was one-tenth as gentle as Justin, Leanna could even smile in her sleep.

Back at Lux, Zoe trotted over and asked in a whisper, "I heard from Mr. Mancini that the client's last name is Pearson. Is the same last name by coincidence, or is it someone related to Aidan Pearson?"

“He’s Aidan’s elder brother,” Leanna answered.

Surprised but confused, she gasped. “Aidan Pearson has a brother?”

In recent years, Justin hadn’t appeared in any public events and would leave home on very rare occasions. Moreover, Aidan was the one completely in charge at the Pearson Group, so it made sense that many people on the outside didn’t know about Justin.

Leanna nodded in response.

“Is he asking for you to design the jewelry just so he can humiliate you on purpose because of Aidan?”

“No, he’s much kinder than Aidan, and he’s more friendly as well. However…”

Then, Leanna told Zoe how Justin wanted her to design a necklace for his mother, and Zoe’s eyes grew large. “Did you turn him down? You must have turned him down, haven’t you?”

“I agreed to it.”

In fact, Leanna had only met Sienna twice.

The first time was before Leanna was married to Aidan and he had brought her home. Standing in front of his parents, she was embarrassed and awkward. At a loss of what to do, she just wanted to find a hole and crawl in.

The second time was at a party at the Pearson’s, and during both times, Sienna’s attitude toward her was aloof beyond words.

Luckily, Leanna only had to submit the design draft because Justin would get others to find the materials and complete the final product.

Presently, Zoe sighed. “That’s right, you don’t have to meet her, anyway. I heard from Mr. Mancini that he quoted a very high price. I should have asked Mr. Mancini to fleece the man off badly if I had known that he’s Aidan’s elder brother.” Then, she asked, “By the way, what did the doctor say when you went for your maternity check today?”

A smile spread across Leanna’s face unwittingly. “The doctor said that everything is normal with the fetus and it’s developing well. I even heard the heartbeat today.”

“Really? Did you really hear it? I want to hear it as well!” Zoe exclaimed and placed her head on Leanna’s belly.

With a laugh, Leanna said, “You can’t hear it like this.”

“It’s more than four months now, right? At the most, there’s another six months and I can meet my little baby. Have you thought about names already?”

“It’s too early for that. I don’t even know if it’s a boy or a girl, and it’s not too late if I think about it once the baby is born.”

“Leave this to me. I’ll think of a few names for boys and girls so you can pick.”

Leanna giggled. “You can think of some names for yourself. Hasn’t Anthony proposed to you yet?”

Zoe’s lips turned into a pout. “Don’t bring this up. I’ve already hinted at him so many times this month. He’s usually romantic and passionate, but at the mention of this, he’ll turn into a block of wood. Moreover, he has to be at a business dinner almost every other day, so he’s quite busy. I can’t keep bothering him because of this.”

“Give it more time, then. Maybe once he’s not so busy anymore after this period, he’ll propose to you.”

“Yeah. Are you going home now? I’m going for an outdoor shoot now. Let me drop you off.”

On the way home after she had reported her work to Harvey, Leanna remembered that she was running out of groceries at home. Hence, she asked the cab to drop her off at a mall nearby.

Soon after she had entered the mall, she saw a baby products store. The tiny clothes and shoes inside were especially adorable, and she couldn’t take her eyes off them.

After she was done buying a few onesies and came out of the store, she was about to buy something else when she saw a couple walking past her as they hugged each other intimately.

The woman held a soft drink in her hand as she lifted her head and flirted with the man, and Leanna jerked her head toward them suddenly.

That guy...

Fishing out a face mask from her handbag, she hurriedly went after them.

Love Change Of Heart Chapter 45– One More Kiss Before Leaving

Soon, both of them stopped at a luxury store, and while the woman was browsing through the clothes and bags, the man was replying to messages on his phone.

Hiding outside the store, Leanna could clearly see the man's face from this angle, and she gritted her teeth. Anthony Lester? In the luxury store, Jeanette Boulogne held a handbag in front of Anthony. "Honey, I like this very much. Will you buy it for me?"

The salesgirl next to them complimented, "You have very good taste, miss. This is the latest design this season and there are only two pieces in the entire Highside. Both of them are in this store."

Hearing that, Jeanette liked it even more, and she tugged on Anthony's arm as she acted like a spoiled child. "I want this. Pretty please?"

Anthony pinched her nose adoringly. "Okay, I'll buy it for you," he said and passed his card to the salesgirl. "Don't you have two of them? I'll buy the other one as well."

With a smile, the salesgirl took the card from him. "Sure. Please wait a moment."

However, Jeanette, who was all smiles earlier, instantly lost her temper and released Anthony's arm. "Are you going to buy it for that woman again? You're always buying a present for her every time you buy me one. If you're thinking about her so much, just stop seeing me, then."

Placing his arm over her shoulders, Anthony hugged her. "Alright baby, don't be mad. I was basically with you the whole month since I'm back, and it's only right that I buy her something as compensation. If there's something else you like in the store, just take it. I'll buy it only for you and not for her this time."

Poking a finger into his chest, Jeanette said flirtingly, "That's better."

After the duo came out of the luxury store, they left the mall. Then, Anthony placed the beautifully wrapped box into the car and went to the hotel next to the mall while holding Jeanette's waist.

The whole time, Leanna was following them quietly, and she realized that this adulterous couple was so engrossed in the exhilaration of having an affair that they didn't even notice her.

At the hotel, while many were using the elevator, she took the chance and followed them in, hiding in a corner. When they went downstairs, she tagged along as well, trailing slowly behind them.

Perhaps Anthony had noticed something, so he turned to look behind his shoulder. The moment he spun his head around, Leanna ducked into a door next to her, but she didn't expect that the door behind her was not closed properly, and it flung open directly when she bumped into it.

At first, she thought that she would have a hard fall or bang right into a wall. However, she fell into a warm embrace instead.

Upon lifting her head, her eyes met the dark eyes of a man. D*mn it, I must have woken up on the wrong side of the bed today!

Holding his cell phone, Aidan stared at her composedly.

Through his emotionless and impassive eyes, she could almost guess what was on his mind.

This *sshole must be thinking that I'm in such a rush to throw myself at him just because we haven't met in a month.

Before her thoughts could mature, she saw his lips moving slightly, as though he wanted to speak his mind. However, all Leanna could think about was that Anthony was still out there, and if she was discovered by him because of a small move, she wouldn't be able to catch hold of the proof that he was cheating.

A second before Aidan opened his mouth, she hurriedly placed her hand over it and closed the door at the same time.

The entire room fell into an eerie silence, and only a rustling voice echoed from Aidan's phone. "President Pearson? Are you still listening?"

Aidan lowered his gaze, and Leanna immediately reacted, anxiously drawing away her hand which was so hot that it was about to burn.

"Yeah," he said into the phone.

"About the development of a resort hotel in Seymora..."

"Send the complete proposal of the project to my office within two days," Aidan instructed and hung up.

All of a sudden, the room fell silent again; he didn't speak and neither did Leanna.

It was the first time they had met in a month since they parted ways unhappily after a heated argument in the hotel.

In the end, it was Leanna who succumbed to the pressure in the air and chuckled dryly. "President Pearson, what a coincidence."

“It is a coincidence for you to run into me in my hotel.”

The sarcasm in his voice was beyond words, and she was speechless.

Could it be that all the jerks in the world had something in common? One jerk owned a hotel while another brought his mistress to have fun in it.

“President Pearson, I didn’t know that this hotel belonged to you. I followed someone else here,” she explained.

“I see,” he uttered.

What the f*ck do you mean by that? Make yourself clear whether you believe me or not! Taking a deep breath, Leanna said calmly, “Just think whatever you want. I’m not here to look for you, anyway.”

Narrowing his dark eyes, Aidan asked, “Tell me, then. Who are you looking for in a hotel?”

She opened her mouth but suddenly, she jerked back to her senses. Initially, she wanted to snap at him, asking why she should tell him this and she was free to look for whoever she wanted, which was something completely unrelated to him.

However, she quickly weighed the severity of this statement in her mind. No matter what, she owed a huge loan to the person in front of her, and it was better to save some face for both of them. In case she ran into any unforeseen circumstances in the future and needed to delay a month of payment, maybe there would still be room for negotiations.

If she was too harsh with her words, she would have more to lose than to gain.

Only an idiot will go head-on with a capitalist, Leanna thought and put on a friendly smile. “I’m here to look for a friend. What about you, President Pearson?”

“This has nothing to do with you.”

Dumbfounded, she told herself, It’s okay. It was just a casual question.

He kept his phone away, looking a little annoyed. “How long do you plan to hold me up here?”

He was here at the hotel this time for a regular meeting, but he received another work-related call at the last moment and had randomly opened a door to a room. However, Leanna had unexpectedly barged in.

There was no way that Aidan would believe in such a coincidence.

It seemed like leaving her alone to fend for herself for a month had worked a little.

Only then did Leanna recall that she wasn't here to argue with him, and Anthony had probably entered the room already. Taking a couple of steps backward, she said, "Sorry, I'll be leaving now."

At the same time, Anthony was feeling a little uneasy today; it was probably because the thief always had a guilty conscience. Even though he didn't see anyone when he looked back earlier, his rationale was nagging at him not to hang around any longer.

But when he mentioned that he wanted to leave, Jeanette hugged him reluctantly. "You can just have a showdown with that woman, at the worst. Then, you can be with me openly."

Chuckling, Anthony didn't answer her directly. Clearly, he wanted to keep both women apart without interfering with each other as he pulled her hand away. "Alright, baby. I'll spend the day with you again tomorrow, but I really need to go back today."

When he was at the door, Jeanette held his waist again. "One more kiss before you go."

Holding her, Anthony kissed her.

When Leanna walked out of the hotel room, she happened to bump into this scene, and she quickly snuck back. In desperation, she had no time to explain to Aidan as she reached out and pushed him back into the room before she quickly felt for her cell phone and took a picture as proof.
