

LOVE OF A BILLIONAIRE

Chapter 26 You Never Thought of This When You Proposed to Me?

Luna snorted and followed Arya to get in the elevator.

Daniel noticed the change in Arya, but he didn't have time to understand what had happened as he was in a hurry to comfort Caroline. Daniel believed after some time Arya will be back to her usual self and give in.

This was because he always thought Arya was at his back.

What he didn't know was Arya had woken up and has a clearer mind. To cry a river for him? He wasn't worth it!

Being the weak Arya only existed in the memories of the past. She already had Allen's affection so she didn't need anything or anyone else.

“Arya, is everything alright?”

Luna had seen her compromise many times for Daniel and worried that she would fall for his lies again.

“Does not everything look fine?” Arya’s eyes looked very calm, she didn’t take the squabble just not with Daniel seriously, “I am seeing things clearly now. To Daniel, I was just a pawn for him to use as he pleases. I won’t feel sad because of them anymore.”

She has already given her heart to Allen.

“Alright, I’m relieved after hearing you say that. I think Daniel won’t dare to not sign the contract. I will meet with Director Brown tomorrow again to discuss the details.”

“Okay, Luna. I know I can trust you to handle things without any difficulties.”

Arya smiled sweetly. Since her debut, Luna had always been there, she was loyal to her and helped her settle issues countless times.

After they went their own ways, Arya found herself in good spirits. She took a taxi to Dahua Entertainment and stood at the entrance of the building, hesitating. Her marriage with Allen had yet to be made public, so was it a little inappropriate for her to suddenly go to his office?

Not sure how to explain her visit to the reception at the front desk, Arya sighed. She suddenly regretted her decision for going to the office. Turning around, just as she was about to leave, a familiar and domineering voice called out from behind her. “Stop right there!”

An assistant noticed Arya upstairs and informed Allen.

After all, a beautiful woman like Arya would be easily recognized.

While she turned around, he frowned a bit and walked towards her. In his hypnotic voice he asked “Aren’t you here to see me?”

“I am ...” Arya subconsciously opened her mouth, then shyly lowered her head, “I wasn’t sure how to ask to see you. I mean how to ask to see you. I mean, you are the CEO of the Dahua Group and we ...”

She felt lost; she didn’t know what to do.

“You never thought of this when you proposed to me?” He asked without hiding anything, which made Arya embarrassed instantly.

“I ...”

Her reaction was exceptionally cute. Allen dark eyes was attracted to Arya, so he turned to Martin and made a decisive decision. He ordered, “Postpone tonight’s dinner.” He then took Arya’s hand and led her to the car.

“Am I bothering your work?” Arya blinked in surprise, still holding his warmed hand.

“Dummy, of course not ...” Allen let the driver stay behind and he drove the car instead “Besides, I also wanted to see you.”

It seemed they were thinking the same thing.

Arya was bewitched by his words and his side profile, especially when he had a faint smile.

Arya indulged herself at looking at the man beside her, not wanting to miss any expression he gave. After driving for a while, Arya asked, “Where are we going?”

Instead of answering, Allen reached over, held Arya’s hand gently and said, “You’ll know when we arrive there. There's still some distance to go. You should rest a while."

"Hmm" Arya agreed. Being with him, she was absolutely at ease.
