

Love Of A Billionaire

Chapter 47

Chapter 47 So It’s My Fault My Life Got Better After I Left You?

When Daniel arrived, he was astonished. From the parking lot to entering the hotel lobby, he saw all the people around him were very proud and arrogant. No one thought much of him, a small CEO of an entertainment company.

Enduring the humiliation, he found his seat across the aisle from Arya.

Arya walked over to him. He coughed a bit, worried someone would hear his conversation with Arya, which may affect his future. He wasn’t too happy why Arya was so extravagant and grumbled the thought in his mind.

She is wearing such a grand dress to watch a concert! Looking at her jewellery, how much did the necklace even cost?!?!

He had to admit no one was able to replace Arya’s beauty. But the fact was, Caroline was his first love and was all coquettish towards him, he had to give up on Arya.

Arya seeing through his thoughts with a glance, she said “Don’t worry. These people here have no interest in hearing your gossip.”

Daniel frowned when he heard her tone, degrading him even, “Please remember you’re still an artist under Brilliant Entertainment. Coming to such an event would definitely have people talking!”

“Talk?” Arya pursed her lips and smiled that was not a smile, “So it’s my fault my life got better after I left you?”

Daniel couldn’t say anything, he was speechless.

He was not expecting Arya to not be affected from the break up. She showed no signs of heartache at all.

“I came to see you today to talk about business. The advertisement that the company is assigned to you would be good for you. As for the film ‘The Evening’, you can continue filming it as long as you like. However, there is one condition. That is you have to co-operate with Caroline and you have to accommodate her to whatever she says. I’ll also make an announcement to the media that we have had not been together for a while now. That way, Caroline will not be continued to be labeled as the other woman.”

“You have to accept Director James’s movie offer and convince him to allow Caroline have a role in the movie. This is not an opportunity everyone has so don’t be stupid to fight me over this for the sake of revenge!”

Arya scoffed.

She was very thankful Director James recognized her acting ability, but right now, she couldn’t have Caroline act with her. She wasn’t going to sacrifice her future at their expense, but rather, she didn’t want to be used by them again.

“I’m afraid I can’t, I’ve contacted them already and declined their offer.”

“What? Your schedules are arranged by the company, who gave you the right to decline their offer? When you decided to employ Luna as your assistant back then, I gave you face! Don’t think for a moment I would let you get away with it because we have a history. If you insist on being this way, I will take legal action in accordance with the terms of the contract.”

Arya’s demeanor had not change which made it difficult for Daniel to coerce her.

He thought with the famous directors offering Arya a role in their movie, this was a great opportunity to help Caroline rise on top. After hearing Arya had declined the movie offers, he was annoyed.

“Arya, I suggest you carefully think about it. If you keep this up, it won’t do you any good.”

Arya held her forehead in despair, wanting Daniel to feel he succeed in his threats. She awkwardly turned around, “But I’ve already declined. I can’t go back on my words. There is the advertisement the company arranged for me, so I will do that next week. You can then arrange the reporters to interview me. I’ll do as you say so Caroline’s name can be cleared.”

“You’re really willing to help Caroline?” There was hope in Daniel’s eyes.

Arya confirmed, “I’m still an artist with the company until my contract ends, so isn’t it all part of business?”

“That’s great! I am very relieved to hear you say that!”

Daniel was worried Arya would stand her ground but to his surprise, he never expected her to be so lenient like how she was before.