

Love Of A Billionaire

Chapter 54

Chapter 54 Caroline's Plan

"Why are you here?" Daniel glanced at her and sat on the sofa, "Didn't I tell you to take care of yourself while you are pregnant?"

Being in a terrible mood, the last thing he wanted was Caroline bringing him more trouble.

"I was worried about you ... Arya's backing out last minute and slandering the company. She didn't care about your past feelings, you must be disappointed."

She smiled and hugged Daniel.

He sighed and said, "I didn't expect Arya to be so ruthless. She completely went against my words. She has never been like this before. Have I ever treated her badly?" Daniel frowned as he recalled what Arya said today.

"It's not your fault. Arya must have wanted to return a long time ago and seized this opportunity to act out. You know better than anyone how good her acting is. She purposely disguised herself to be the victim, to gain the public's sympathy. Think about it, how peaceful your relationship was over the years. How could the breakup be your fault? Anyway, it's not like you were married, so you do not need to feel bad for her."

Daniel nodded.

Caroline took the opportunity and added, "Right now, because everyone is focused on Arya's movements, this will be the best time for us to make our move. The company can issue a statement that Arya schemed all this in order to make a comeback. Pretending to accept the advertisement, then declining it at the last minute. This already constitutes a breach of contract, therefore, the company will pursue her for legal responsibility!"

"Do you really want us to do this?"

Daniel could not bear it anymore. After all, the incident in front of him was still not resolved. If his reputation was not tarnished by Arya, he would not have ...

"Are you still concerned about your past relationship? What Arya did today is obvious she does not care about you anymore. Daniel, the baby and I only have you to rely on. For me, you have to cut off all ties with Arya."

Hearing this Daniel's anger was ignited.

That's right, if it wasn't because of Arya, would he be talked about by others and almost had a lawsuit? He immediately got the PR to draft a statement apologizing to the public and advertisers, saying that the artists under his company did not know the rules and thus their actions affected the industry's atmosphere. He was clearly pushing the blame onto Arya.

He bribed a few networks and used their accounts to release internal information. This was directly accusing Arya had planned to make a comeback long ago. To shoulder the responsibility and not pay for the damages, she had purposely kept the truth concealed and put on an innocent image, deceiving everyone.

He even added Arya had always caused trouble in the company in recent years and had many conflicts with the company's other artists. As long as Daniel gave the word, the other artists would go along with the lies and accuse Arya with the movie queen title to bullying them.

There were even a few audio recording uploaded.

"I had just entered the company and didn't know anything. She made me iron her clothes every day, they were all designer labels. Since she has retired for few years, she would not have had a source of income so someone must have given them to her. I suspect she's been taken of."

"Several times, I had the chance to have big breaks, but she would always try to discourage me from taking the chance. I'm sure she was jealous because we are young ..."

"She hit me a few times in the dance hall. She said she's our CEO's fiancée so there was nothing I can do to her, even if I were to tell someone about it. She's a psychopath."

Overwhelming news started circulating the internet. This information came from the people inside Brilliant Entertainment and was making waves all over the internet. Only those people knew the truth. The statement that Brilliant Entertainment issued in the name of the company together with the vivid and colorful insider news, it was as if a bucket of dirty water was poured onto Arya.