

Chapter 11 It's good to be alive

Elena on the other end, handed the phone to Julia Green, "It was Elizabeth who told you to call, right?"

Julia Green was scared by Elena's powerful aura and did not dare to speak. She could only stand in awe until Elena left. Then she patted her chest, "Phew, how scary, but, why is Elena here? Doesn't she always hate this kind of place?"

Walking out of the bar, Elena took a deep breath, "Feels better now."

She felt the beating of her heart and narrowed her eyes, "It's good to be alive."

At that time, she donated her heart to Alston. As everything blurred around her, thinking that her life was over like this, she couldn't help but feel rueful.

She never thought that she could open her eyes again, just feeling the beating of her heart again, she wasn't sure whether it made sense.

After she finally calmed down, she thought that half a month before she once married Alston.

At this time, she was at a cocktail party, and it was at this cocktail party that she made up her mind to marry Alston.

And then, things turned out that way.

She, Elena, boasted that she had everything under control, but she was never able to control the heart of Alston!

Then she directly said goodbye to the organizer of the party and left early, after which there was no news spreading out that she was the only one who could save the day and save the Rivers Group, as she did in her previous life.

Yes, the public opinion in her last life was manipulated by her . It can be said, in order to marry Alston, she really did so much. But unfortunately, in the end, she didn't get what she wanted.

She didn't want to be so scheming, but when her desire became an obsession, she couldn't help but be pushed by this desire and finally fall into the abyss.

In this life, she decided to spare herself and Alston, because she was tired and wanted to stay away from these people.

But this time, Alston actually took the initiative to throw the olive branch to her at the encouragement of others.

She did not feel moved, only horrified. This was completely different from what she had in mind .

No matter what, they should not have crossed paths whatsoever.

Sooner or later, Alston would meet his Elizabeth, get married and have children with each other, while she would only become a nobody.

How ironic, it turned out that she did not even need to take the initiative, and he would suck up to her?

But since he needed her, why was he still behaving like a superior?

She had taken care of him for 14 years. Of course, he would feel granted if something is easy to acquire and despised them.

Thinking of this, Elena laughed self-mockingly, "Now it's different!"

So, she simply refused Alston, and at that moment, she saw the gloom flashing in his eyes. Obviously, she offended him hard.

But since she decided to stay away from him, it didn't matter!
