

Births

Chapter 67

Thankfully the last two months have past with relative ease, there have been no new Alpha challenges, no jealous exes popping up and causing trouble in my life or any of my friends life, so yeah things have been good.

Rhia and Sydney have both had their Alpha ceremonies. They both were much less eventful than my one was, which they were both relieved about. Neither of them invited their father, and they both broke tradition by having their mother walk them down the aisle, which I thought was a lovely touch. Claire was so proud of doing it, I could see how happy she was for both of her girls.

Rhia and her mate Wayne have really turned around their pack, the Beta family actually moved with her father but their daughter asked to stay and Rhia offered her the Beta position which she took after she got over her initial surprise, it worked out well when she found her mate who is a 3rd born Gamma male from a neighbouring pack so he was happy to move and help her in her position.

The Gamma family stayed, and she was happy with the Gamma's son taking up the position as they had grown up as friends, so she knew he did not share the same views as her father.

Sandra has also settled in well in her old pack. She found her second chance, mate. Her brother is the ex Beta in the pack, and one of his closest friends, the ex Gamma, lost his mate 8 years ago in a rogue attack. They turned out to be mates, and she told me she always had a crush in him in school, and she feels like a teenage girl again.

Fiona and his 2 kids have hit it off well, and they are all happy for their parents to have found someone to love them again. I am really happy for her she deserves someone much better than Alpha Jacob as her mate let's hope her youngest son Dan can learn from his father's and brothers mistakes before he loses his fated mate as well.

Julia gave birth to a beautiful baby boy. He is Shawn's double with his dark blonde hair, but he has Julia's clear blue eyes. They named him Justin and asked Lucian and I to be his godparents. Along with Kat, they also agreed to be our little ones' godparents.

She was 2 days over her due date when she gave birth, I only have a week left to go, but with the way I am feeling, I do not think I will last that long. Little Ashley feels like she has already moved into position.

Gina just arrived last night. She wanted to wait a few days after Julia had Justin, so she was closer to my date and could spend time with both the pups. The twins and her mum joined her to visit us, and yes, her heat was very successful, and she is now 10 weeks gone with twins.

Talia has insisted she be told as soon as I am in labour so she can leave straight away.

The twins do not want her travelling as she is so far on herself, and with her having twins, she can go early. Apparently, she did the last time. They should know better by now. No one tells Talia what to do. When she has her mind set on something, there is no talking to her, and with her hormones the way they are, they are best to just agree.

Lucian has went nuts decorating the nursery in a pink and Lilac Unicorn theme, it is absolutely adorable, he has also made sure our offices are connected with a door and that we both have cribs in there for her, so she can be with us all the time.

He talks to her every morning and night so she will know his voice as soon as she is born. I never thought that when I first met him, there would be this soft, sweet side to him. He has turned into the perfect mate, I wasn't sure if I was crazy giving him a chance at first, but I am glad I did now. Luca has always been perfect, I am glad the human side now matches up.

Well, I was right 5 days before my due date. I am woken up at 7 am with sharp pains in my stomach, sh.it that hurts. Lucian is already in the shower, so I just lie there and wait to see what happens. 20 minutes later, as he walks out of the bathroom, another pain hits me. He hears me groan and rushes towards me.

"Are you okay, my love? Is it the baby" he says, panicked.

"I think it is time, but it is still early this is only the second one I have felt, and they were 20 minutes apart, so no rush" I tell him, trying to keep him calm.

"Let's go then" he says, scooping me up.

"Calm down and at least let me put pants on" I say, chuckling.

"Sh.it sorry" he says, helping me into a pair of shorts.

He picks me up again and rushes to the hospital. The doctor quickly gets me settled in a room and checks me out. She confirms I am in the early stages of labour, but I am only 3cm dilated, so we will have a few hours to go.

"Call Talia and then mindlink everyone to let them know" I tell him

He gets on the phone, and Talia let's him know she

< Births

+10 Points >

will be there as soon as possible, then he links all our friends and family to let them know. I make sure he tells them not to rush. We have hours to go yet, and we will keep them informed. I tell him to call Zander next as he is just an hour away from us, I also tell him not to rush and tell him to let Kat know as she wanted to come too and to call Frank so our cousins will know to come, both sets wanted to stay for a couple of days when the pup arrives.

Ad

Ads-free >

Lucian has calmed down a bit by the time he has made the calls and links, but every time I get a contraction, he worries, and Luca whines.

Zander pops his head in to see me and let me know he is here around 2 hour later, I am now at 8 cm so still 2 cm to go they think around another hour and she will be with us, Talia has been texting for updates, she is still 2 hours out so she will miss the birth. Everyone has gathered outside now, Nadia is in the room with me to see her first grandchild being born. She was so emotional when Suzie and I asked her to be at the births. She has been a mother to both of us, and we both wanted her with us.

That reminds me Suzie found out she is also having a little girl, so it will be so nice for our daughters to grow up together. Talia is having one of each, so they definitely will not share a mate, unlike Tyson and Talon. She has asked us to be her son's godparents she wants a good role model for him growing up and someone who can show him that mistakes have consequences, but you can always learn and grow from your mistakes.

After another hour, this little one is still not here, I am totally fed up being in labour now and just want it over and done with. The doctor does another check on me and let's me know that I am finally at 10 cm and I can start pushing.

This is where the real fun begins as the pain ramps up, and Lucian has been called every name under the sun. After 25 minutes of feeling like I am slowly being ripped apart, we hear her first cries, Lucian cuts the cord, and they quickly place her on me.

She has my soft green eyes and chocolate brown hair, Lucian and Nadia have tears in their eyes as they look at her. I give her her first feed as she latches on with no problem, taking to it straight away and drinking greedily from me.

As soon as she is finished, I pass her to Lucian as he is dying to hold his daughter for the first time. He looks totally mesmerised by her. She is so tiny in his massive arms.

"Thank you so much, my love, for giving me this precious gift. She is beautiful, just like her mummy, I love you both so much" he says with tears leaking from his eyes.

"I love you too baby" I say

"Here mum, let me introduce you to Ashley Nadia Grey" Lucian says, handing her to Nadia.

Nadia is a mess. At this point, the tears are streaming down her face as she holds her.

"She is perfect. You both did good. Your mum would be so proud of you, sweetheart. You have picked the perfect name. Thank you for including me in it, and thank you for letting me be here to see her come into the world" she says, full of emotion.

Lucian let's everyone in at this point, Zander and Uncle Frederick also cries when they hear her name. Everyone takes a turn, holding her as Lucian sits on the bed with his arm around me, keeping a watchful eye.

20 minutes later, the door bursts open with an excited Talia and stressed out Tyler and Tristan with their pups.

"Where is my goddaughter" she says, full of energy.

Shawn who is currently holding her walks over and passes her to her while the pups come and give me a hug and ask all about the baby and have a quick look at baby Justin until their mum let's them see Ashley.

"You know she is our goddaughter too. Are we getting to see her at all" Tristan teases her.

"But she is just so adorable" Talia complains before handing her over to Tristan.

"She is beautiful Aurora and Lucian" Tristan says

"You forget how small they are" Tyler says

Talia has already, at this point, taken a hold of Justin as this is her first time seeing him as well. She has him cradled on her massive bump. There is no way she is lasting another month, I give it 3 weeks at most before the pups are here.

< Births

+10 Points >

Tyler finally gets a hold, too, and then we get her back so the pups can all sit on the bed and have a hold of her with Lucian and my support.

6

Comments

562

Vote

Watch videos get points (0/15) >