

Lucky Collision (Evans and Martin Robinson) Chapter 20

Lucky Collision (Evans and Martin Robinson) Chapter 20

Chapter 20 Mackenzie Realty Group

“Scu mbag!” Angelina said in a disdainful tone.

“He is such a jerk. How long have you two been together? You’re already bringing her to the hotel.”

For some reason, Angelina ordered her staff to pay close attention to Evans after Evans left.

If I’m not wrong, Evans should be heading to a pharmacy.

The staff member approached Angelina shortly to give her the latest update.

Evans bought the remedy for menstrual cramps and fetched it to Zoe.

Angelina had second thoughts about Evans.

“I can’t believe the scu mbag to be a committed partner.”

Angelina decided to stay overnight instead of returning to school. After half an hour, she called another staff member over.

“Send a fruit basket to Room 8916. Tell me the situation inside the room.”

After the staff member left, Angelina sat in her office, fidgeting with her pen.

Not many people Angelina’s age could reach her level. She was simultaneously studying while gaining practical management experience.

Angelina had made achievements beyond most people.

Angelina looked outside the window, waiting for the updates from the staff member.

After a while, the staff member returned.

“Ms. Angelina, I have delivered the fruit basket.”

“A couple is staying in the room. It seems the lady has fallen asleep.”

“Got it!”

“Listen to me. Knock on his door every half an hour... No, make it every ten minutes.”

“What?”

The staff member was puzzled, and she looked at Angelina, “That will lead to guest complaints.”

“Do as I say. Don’t worry about any complaints.”

1/6

“More doing, less talking.”

“Alright!”

The staff member had to follow Angelina’s instructions even though she had no idea why.

Another door knock sounded ten minutes later!

“Would you like us to change the bed sheets?”

Evans opened the door. A staff member peered in before asking.

What’s happening? Why do I want to change the bed sheets?

“No, it’s fine!”

Evans closed the door.

Yet another door knocking sounded ten minutes later!

“Do you need anything to eat? Our hotel provides a free buffet.”

Then, there came another door knock ten minutes later!

“May I ask...”.

Evans could not take it anymore, “Shut up. What is going on?”

“What kind of hotel is this? I have already asked you to stop bothering me. Did you not hear me?”

The staff member blushed, apologizing repeatedly.

“We wanted to make sure that our service is up to par and provide you with a good experience.”

“After all, we’re a five-star hotel. How about I stand right at the door? Feel free to call me anytime if you need anything.”

Evans was speechless.

Why do you have to stand by the door?

“Fine. I will checkout. Are you happy now?”

“Congratulations. You have driven away one customer.”

The noise awakened Zoe, and she asked, “What’s wrong?”

2/6

“I have no idea. she KIIOCKS UII VUI UUUI

“Are you feeling better now? Let’s head back to campus.”

23. IL 3 30 yz.

Zoe looked at the staff member with a perplexed expression. She had never encountered a hotel where a staff member was required to stand by the door.

I have not encountered this in my travel with my parents. This hotel has excellent services!

Evans and Zoe took the elevator to grab a meal together. Then, Evans suggested, "Shall we head back to campus."

"Why?"

"Aren't you the one pestering me about visiting a hotel?"

"There's something important I need to attend to. I have to go back immediately."

Zoe looked at Evans with a skeptical expression as if she could hardly believe it.

Fine! You're the one asking for us to head back to campus. Don't blame me for that.

Zoe and Evans checked out of the room. They hailed a taxi to return to the campus.

When Zoe and Evans left the hotel, the staff member reported to Angelina, "Ms. Angelina, they have checked out of their room."

"Alright!"

Angelina got herself ready before driving back to campus.

"Amelia, can you check if Evans has returned to the dormitory?"

Amelia glared, "How would I know?"

"Don't you have a binocular?"

"I knew about it long ago."

Fine!

Amelia reluctantly took out the binoculars she had hidden somewhere.

"Hey, they're bathing!"

Amelia put on a weird expression.

3/6

"Wait a minute. I found Evans."

"Oh, right. Why do you care about Evans so much?"

"It's nothing! Let's get ready to sleep!"

Angelina took her clothes before entering the bathroom.

On the other hand, Amelia was puzzled, "What happened to you, Angelina?"

"Something is not right. Why do you pay close attention to Evans?"

"Oh my go d! Could it be..."

Amelia covered her mouth in surprise, seemingly discovering shocking news.

Evans lay on the bed after taking a bath, reflecting on the events of the day.

Could it be Angelina's doing? That's unlikely. She is a busy person. Forget it. It doesn't concern me, either.

The next morning, Evans put his attention back on the stock market.

Ruby Pharmaceutical stock had stopped rising. Evans's total wealth had reached 4.198 million dollars.

Evans was ready to proceed with the second phase of his plan.

Evans wanted to secure additional financing to multiply his fund by ten folds.

Evans had accumulated 1.9 million dollars as his fund.

By raising a fund ten times the initial amount, Evans would have 19 million dollars as his fund.

The magnitude of the number left Evan surprised.

However, with such a large amount of capital, Evans couldn't place a single buy order with all his money at once like before.

Even institutional investors wouldn't spend 19 million dollars in one buy order.

A larger amount of capital would challenge the trader's technique.

The influx of such a large amount of capital would alert the other traders.

My trading technique will soon be put to the test. I should buy a laptop and set up my trading room. Even renting a separate apartment outside would be more conducive to carrying out my work effectively. Hey?

116

When Evans accidentally tapped on the candlestick chart on Mackenzie Realty Group's stock performance, he unexpectedly discovered something delightful.

To his surprise, Evans was able to see the future trend of this stock for the next week.

Oh my goodness! This is incredible!

The stock price of the Mackenzie Realty Group was suppressed. However, the stock price was expected to rise, with a projected increase of 46.99% in the next five trading days.

It turned out that the immense fall in stock price for two consecutive days was a deliberate move made by the issuing company. They wanted to eliminate investors who were not confident about holding their stocks.

Evans was thrilled with the information!

There was a long upper wick on the candlestick chart analysis of the Mackenzie Realty Group stock.

It showed that the trading volume increased, and the turnover rate rose.

The stock price was suppressed, dropping more than 8%.

Seeing this would happen, there was no reason for Evans to wait.

Evans was determined to profit from the Mackenzie Realty Group stock.

Without hesitation, Evans placed small to medium-sized buy orders.

Mackenzie Realty Group had a total market capitalization of over 50 billion dollars, and the trading volume in the past few days fluctuated between two to three hundred million dollars.

With only 19 million dollars, Evans would attract little attention.

Seeing his buy orders getting executed continuously, Evans felt a sense of satisfaction in his heart.

Even the issuing company would not know how many people had bought the stock while the price was low.

However, the issuing company would not take the small investors seriously because the stock price was about to hit the limit down.

20 minutes later, Mackenzie Realty Group stock had reached the limit down.

Evans had spent all of the 19 million dollars fund. His overall loss was 0.63%.

With the trades completed, Evans turned off his phone. He patiently awaited the Mackenzie

5/6

Realty Group stock to take off.

After that, Evans's next task was to find a house to rent.

The senior management of the Mackenzie Group had a meeting. The Chairman decided to leverage the market trend to increase the company's market capitalization further.

Then, they would find an appropriate time to sell shares and cash out, freeing up funds for new projects.

Of course, they did not expect a small investor to grow in this market trend...