

Luna Lola-The Moon Wolf

Chapter 154

Lola's POV

“Lola, watch out”, Adrian shouted.

I turned and caught a bleeding Fay in my lap. She was struggling to breath and held her shaky fingers to my face. “Yo...you m....made it out alive and w...welll. We're fi....fi....nally go...go...ing t...t...to win this war. I...I'm.....I'm s...s...so ha...hap....py”. She said while tears streamed down her face and I shook my head.

“Why did you do that, Fay?” I said with a shaky voice. We could have won without you losing your life. That was supposed to be my sacrifice, I thought to myself while sobbing.

I looked up when I heard a gasp and Damon stood there with a livid look in his eyes, but there was also fear and panic in them.

He dropped the knife in his hands noisily on the floor and started raking his hands through his hair. “Stupid bitch, I shouldn't have brought her. I should have left her back as planned. Fuck!!” He kept cursing and pacing while everyone looked at him like he had lost his mind.

He suddenly rushed towards us and held me by the collar of my clothes. “You're the cause of all these”, he spat angrily in my face. “If you hadn't been a stuck up bitch that thinks she's better than me, we wouldn't be in this dilemma. This bitch would have died and all ties would have been cut. You ruined everything”, he shouted and started going crazy.

I dropped the shield to see all the creatures on the floor, it was only what was left of the war troop that was standing. Adrian pulled a frantic Damon off me and they started fighting again.

I stood up and two warriors came over to me to help carry Serena and Fay. “To the pack clinic. Now!” I ordered with tears running down my cheeks and they were lifted off the ground and carried towards the pack clinic.

“Adrian”, I called and he gave me a sad smile, “I'll be with you shortly”, he replied and I knew what that meant. Damon wasn't getting out of it alive. Too bad I couldn't stick around to watch him get pulled apart for all he has done.

We got to the pack clinic and the pack doctor was already waiting for us. Serena and Fay were rushed into different rooms but I followed them into the one Fay was rushed into.

Her breathing had slowed down drastically and it was obvious she was barely holding onto life. “Stay with me, Fay. Please”, I pleaded as tears ran down my face.

She was placed on the bed and reached out her hands to me. “There's no point in saving me, Lola”, she whispered but I shook my head.

“Shut your mouth and allow the doctors to do their work. You're the reason I was able to get out of there alive, you had no business giving up your life for me the second time”, I sobbed. “I was meant to die, it was me. Why would you do that?” I asked her.

“There's no hope for me anyway”, she breathed out and coughed violently afterwards. “I can't find another mate after him. No one will want me, Lola. Leaving a life of loneliness and isolation isn't something I wish for”, she struggled to get out as tears streamed down her face.

I hugged her and sobbed on her chest. She just wanted to have her own person but went about it the wrong way. She didn't deserve all she went through.

An idea popped up in my head but Jasmine had other ideas.

“No, no, you can't do that, Lola. It is very dangerous and we might lose our life in the process. We're not sure if you can even do it. What if we both lose our lives in the process? We already won the war without dying, let's just be careful”, she pleaded.

“We can't just allow someone else to die in our stead, Jas. She saved us”, I argued. “She also betrayed us”, she snapped. “And came through for us when we least expected it. Be fucking for real, Jasmine”, I shouted through our mindlink.

I held Fay's hands and closed my eyes after taking a deep breath. I imagined I was in a field that had different flowers. I passed different shades of flowers, which represent different areas of her being and looked around for the one that signifies being joined to another soul.

I found a garden of lotus flowers. There were white lotus flowers but they were being tainted by withered lotus flowers and it was only a matter of time before the remaining lotus flowers wilted away.

I plucked out the wilted flowers and watched them dissipate into thin air. I placed my hands over the lotus flower and watched it become prettier and healthier.

I suddenly felt like my chest was being pricked by a thousand needles and got pulled back into the real world. I took a deep breath and my legs gave out under me, making me fall to floor.

Fay sobbed and tried to reach me but she was held by the doctor. “You are still healing, Fay”, he said but she kept struggling.

I held her hands and managed to stand up. “What did you do, Lola?” She asked. I gave her a weak smile and she shook her head.

“You deserve a second chance, Fay”, I told her while I tried to wipe her tears but she kept on crying. “No, no, I.....”, she tried to speak but I shook my head at her.

I felt my energy depleting and left the room on wobbly legs. I slowly made my way through the clinic hallways with the sole aim of locating Serena.

I smelled them before I could see them. Just when my legs couldn't carry me forward anymore, Adrian caught me before I could fall. Lyla,Avianca and Nathan were also there.

“Lola, baby, what's wrong?” Adrian asked me, concern written all over his face. I cupped his face and tried to smoothen his wrinkle.

“You're going to age fast if you keep frowning like this”, I told him. “What did you do, Lola?” Lyla was the one who asked.

“Come on, not you too, Lyl. It's not good for the baby”, I reached out my hand to her and she knelt beside me, tears already gathering in her eyes.

“I did what I had to do, guys”, I said weakly, slowly feeling myself slipping away. “Adrian, I.....”, and that was when the darkness took over.
