

Chapter 133 Sophia's secret

133

AMALTHEA'S POV

"How do I look?" I asked Augustus as he entered my room and I saw his eyes immediately turning dark, making me smile at his reaction.

"I am taking that reaction as a good sign," I said and he growled at me, making me raise my brows.

"There is no way you are wearing a bikini at the beach," he said and I pressed my lips into a thin line.

"We are going to enjoy at the beach. What do you mean?" I asked before looking at my phone that started vibration with an incoming call from Brian.

Seriously? I had been trying his phone for more than an hour now and he only gets the time to get back to me when Augustus is in the room.

"Let me take this call," I said and he nodded as he came towards me and placed his hand on my abdomen from behind me, hugging me.

"Brian," I said and Brian sighed.

"Well, I don't know what's going on in your pack anymore. Blake's father recently lashed out at him and insulted him in front of everyone. Did you know that?" He asked me and I took a shaky breath when Augustus said hands traveled up as he placed his lips on my right shoulder.

Tilting my head slightly to stop it from tickling, I cleared my throat before speaking.

"I had no idea regarding that. What was the matter?" I asked and he sighed.

"No one knows the exact reason, but it has something to do with Blake not wanting to mate with Linda until you guys are divorced or things between you are sorted," Brian said and I raised my brows at his words.

Turning around to glare Augustus so that he stops his assault, I was about to mouth to him to stop when he captured my lips, making me widen my eyes.

"And, I don't think Blake has any idea about things happening around him. Nathan said that he has seen Linda and Blake's father talking in secret, quite a number of times. Now you can see that as a good relationship between father-in-law and daughter-in-law, but I smell a conspiracy," Brian said and I hummed.

"What about Sophia? Did you get any news on her?" I asked and he hummed.

"Do you know the reason why your father adopted her?" He asked me and I nodded.

"Because her parents died in a rogue attack?" I asked and Brian scoffed.

"Her parents were traitors. They were found trying to conspire against your parents. Your father pitied the little girl you call your best friend and decided to adopt her. What are the probabilities that the little girl knew about it, and was deliberately with you all this time? That she also wanted to avenge her parents death? They were not killed in a rogue attack. On the contrary, they themselves met with a rogue who killed them after getting inside information about the pack," Brian said and as if Augustus immediately felt the change in my mood, he distanced himself from me before sitting on the bed.

"What do you mean? Are you trying to tell me that the girl I played with and ate together all these years was with me to kill me and plan against me?" I asked and he sighed.

How can this be true? I had expected Sophia to be involved with Blake because she knew he would be in power ultimately and she was the second beta.

I thought that she was doing all of this for the future of her baby who was yet to be born, but I had never thought that there would be such reason behind it.

Does that mean she has always hated my guts? It must've been hard to pretend to be my friend, no? All those times when she said she was just looking out for me started looking like a joke and I felt my eyes brimming with tears.

"What is the source of your knowledge?" I asked, and he sighed.

"I knew you would be asking for this and that's why I have already sent you the document. Apparently your father had also reported this matter to the council. The information about her parents is clearly written. Regarding Sophia, I don't think I need to remind you of the number of times you were in trouble with other packs because of her," Brian said.

"She was my friend and we indeed get in trouble because of our friends. Didn't I used to throw you under the bus for my naughtiness?" I asked and he sighed.

"Look, believing me or not is totally up to you. I am not going to force you for it. Regarding the news about Linda's heat. I think it's true. There were people who were preparing for it. Also, it will be tomorrow. And before you ask me, I indeed checked why Sophia told you a day beforehand and I got the answer. Blake's father was seen going into the Greenwoods," Brian said and I felt my blood running cold at his words.

"Greenwoods? The house of the darkest witches? Just what the hell is this man planning? Brian, I need you to keep a man constantly tailing him. I want to know where he goes, and who he meets. I don't think this man is planning anything good. And if I am not wrong, his actions are going to disrupt the whole nature course," I said and Brian hummed.

"What are you going to do about the mating process?" Brian asked me and I sighed.

"I am going to reject Blake," I said and I could feel Brian gasping through the phone. And he wasn't the only person shocked.

Looking into Augustus's eyes, I sighed before stepping towards him, playing with his hair.

"But what about your pack?" Brian spoke and I sighed.

"This is something bigger than getting back my pack now, Brian. Now I am damn sure that the person behind my father's death is Blake's father. And my only focus will be on killing him from now on. I don't know what this man is planning, but it's nothing good," I said and he hummed.

"Did you find about the rogue who had been involved with the case I told you? The one who killed Alpha Ace's mother?" I asked and Brian nodded.

"Well, you'll be amazed. I am indeed looking for him. He is alive. I have sent my men there. Let's hope for good results," He said and I hummed before taking a deep breath.

"If that's all. I am ending the call," I said before taking a deep breath.

"Are you okay?" Augustus asked me as he looked into my eyes, and I smiled before nodding.

"I will be alright," I said and he nodded.