

Chapter 152 Killing Boston and Lady Cera

Chapter-152

AMALTHEA'S POV

"JADE," the witch who held my hand, whispered, and I smiled at her.

"Is that enough of a reason why you guys should respect me and my visit?" I asked cockily, and she looked at others as if telling everyone what she saw through telepathy.

"We are sorry for the misbehaviour, Jade. I hope you won't mind it," one of the head witches, who was talking to Blake earlier, said, and I nodded my head.

"We would like to take our leave. And this matter, since I caught you guys talking to an Alpha myself, let's see what the future holds for you," I said before nodding at Throb as we started walking out of the forest.

"Luna Jade, please wait. I apologise on behalf of my witches. We didn't know who you were and I know it's our mistake for not knowing about such an important personality. I apologise if they misbehaved or said anything wrong. Please forgive us," The head witch said, and I nodded my head.

"We'll think about it," I said before walking out of the woods completely.

"Woah, what the hell was that all about? What did they see for them to go from hating and suspecting us to becoming our preachers and respecting us?" Throb asked, and I smiled.

"Maybe they saw who I am? My position, power and pack?" I trailed off, not wanting to say much at the moment.

"Anyway, let's take that bas*ard to the Black Blood pack and get this over with," I said, and Throb nodded his head as we went to his hotel to get Boston from there.

After a tiring journey of around 6 hours, with Boston trying his best to trick us and run, we finally came to the Black village that hides the Black blood pack from the outer world.

"Do you want to have some rest or should we directly go to Alpha Ace," Throb asked me, and I looked at him before sighing.

"Throb, we have talked about this earlier too. I am not taking you to Alpha Ace. He hates rogues with a passion and no matter your intentions, I don't want you to get hurt. There is nothing like fun going there," I said, and Throb sighed.

"Fine. Go, take him to Alpha Ace yourself, but you are ringing my bell the moment anything goes wrong, okay?" Throb said, and I nodded my head as I went towards the driving seat before driving towards the boundaries of the pack.

"What's your purpose?" One of the pack borders security asked me, and I showed them Boston.

"Please tell Alpha Ace and say Luna Jade is here. She has brought the rogue who killed his mother with herself," I said, and the security widened their eyes as they started looking at each other, not sure how to react to the information.

"I'll inform quickly," One of the men behind him said, and I noticed how everyone's eyes were changing colours, indicating they were angry and were trying their best not to shift.

I am sure it's because they want to kill Boston, the man who killed their previous luna and forced such hardships on Alpha Ace at such a young age.

"Alpha Ace said to let her go with the utmost respect," the men behind the security said, and the security nodded their heads before saluting me, making me raise my brows as I drove the car inside the pack, stopping right in front of the house.

I didn't see the details of the house when I was here earlier because of the pressing time and task at hand, but now that I am seeing it, I can't help praising the person who made it.

It was beyond beautiful and enchanting. I have never seen a pack house like this. It looked so ancient yet modern at the same time. The mysterious vibes with the decoration were an added cherry on top.

Shaking my head to get out of my thoughts as these things were important right now, I walked towards the other side of the car before taking out Boston with great difficulty as he was doing his best to not come out of the car.

Glaring at me, he tried to mouth something, and I smiled at him.

"No matter what you say, I am not going to change my opinion about you. I would've thought about giving you one more chance at life if I hadn't seen what kind of scum you still are. The first thing you do after freeing yourself from us was to force yourself on someone? Pathetic," I said as he shook his head, pulling me backwards with force as I pulled him towards the pack house.

Closing my eyes for a second to catch my breath, I felt my hair rising as something passed by me, making me open my eyes as my hands who were holding onto Boston were empty now.

Turning around, I looked in the direction where I felt the person passing before softening my gaze when I saw Alpha Ace beating Boston.

"It was fun when you r*ped my mother and killed her, no? I will show you what fun is," Alpha Ace said as he stomped over Boston's private part, making him scream in agony.

"This is exactly what you deserve. You have no idea how long I have been living in the guilt that I couldn't even protect my mother and even after that, I am not able to find the rogue who destroyed my life. You killed my mother and my father died in sorrow. You practically wiped my whole family. I will show you what pain feels like," Ace said as he raised his hand.

I thought he was about to slap Boston, but out of nowhere someone threw a silver chain in his hand. I noticed how Ace's hands burnt because of the silver, but I guess he was too angry at the moment as he wrapped the silver chain around Boston's body, not caring about his own wounds.

"Does this feel good?" Ace asked as Boston screamed in agony, and not wanting to disrupt Ace's moment with his enemy, I leaned on my car before closing my eyes.

'Crystal, can you feel what my Siren powers are doing right now?' I asked Crystal to keep herself distracted, and Crystal scoffed.

'What could they be doing? They are settled peacefully. Do you feel uncomfortable somewhere?' Crystal asked me, and I shook my head slightly.

'No, it's just I feel like singing a song to calm my nerves right now, so I am wondering if this is because of my Siren powers and they are reacting again,' I said, and Crystal shook her head.

'As far as I have studied them, I don't think they are doing anything right now,' Crystal said, and I hummed before closing my eyes as I thought about Augustus to calm my mind.

Smiling at the thought of how he acts so caring, dominantly loving, and possessive.

I still remember how he was so against the idea when he came to know I would be coming here with a rogue.

The way he was torn between letting me go because he knew this is important to me and keeping me by his side or just sending Charles and Jake with me was so epic that I had laughed at his face at that time.

I knew he would be worried all the time, and that's why I shared my live location with him.

'I miss him too,' Crystal suddenly said in a soft voice, and I smiled at her.

'I know, right? It's so hard to not miss someone when you are so much in love. What do you think? Does he miss us more than us?' I asked Crystal, and she was about to reply when I heard another voice.

"Amalthea," Alpha Ace said, and I opened my eyes before turning my head.

However, before I could see the scene in front of me, Alpha Ace blocked my view, making me raise my brows.

"I don't think you should see that and I am sorry I became so angry and acted on impulse like this. It wasn't my intention to disrespect you by taking you hostage and acting like this. I am sorry if -" I held his hand before hugging him and patting his shoulder.

Feeling his body going stiff as others started to look at us, I sighed before patting Alpha Ace's back.

"It's okay. It's alright. Some mistakes can be made, but it's worth it in the end. You don't need to apologise to me. I was worse than this when I killed the Lycan who caused my mother's death. Don't beat yourself for it. It's okay to let out your emotions," I said before taking a step away to create some distance between us, but he placed his hand on my back before pulling me closer and hugging me tightly.

Honestly, I would've felt offended if it would've been someone else, but I knew what he was going through right now. Wasn't it something like this when I also needed support and I had hugged Throb as if my life depended on him?

"Thank you, Amalthea Jade. Thank you for bringing him here and helping me take off this burden on my chest. You indeed kept your promise when you said you'll help me avenge my mother's death if that rogue was still alive. You have no idea how grateful I am to you," Alpha Ace said, and I smiled as we stepped away together this time.

"Well, if you are so impressed by my work, how about you give me Lady Cera and feed me some good food? I am starving again," I said, and Alpha Ace looked at me with a mixture of emotions, confusing me.

What is this? Why is he looking at me like that? Like I am his saviour and he wants to pay me back through himself? Nothing like that has happened. I just brought back the rogue in exchange for Lady Cera. It was a pure barter system for me.

"Blake did a big mistake by letting you go," Alpha Ace said, and I smiled at him.

"Well, what can I say? Not everyone deserves a diamond," I said, and he nodded his head.

"And I am sure whoever will get this diamond would be the luckiest person ever. Not only do you understand the situation and do anything to help your friends, but you are supportive and care like a mother. I am thankful for the day we fought those rogues together because we became friends that day," Alpha Ace said, more like mumbled the last part.

I was about to say that he doesn't need to be so formal when he looked up in the air and howled loudly, his painful cry filled with relief, making the hair on my hand stand as everyone suddenly bowed to me, making me raise my brows.

"Please accept this respect from my pack and me," Alpha Ace said as he got on his knees and bowed to me, making me look at him in shock.

Falling to my knees, I lifted Ace's head.

"Are you doing this because you don't want to feed me?" I asked, and he looked at me as if shocked that I would say something like that in a situation like this before he chuckled out aloud and stood, helping me up as he held my hand and brought me inside the house.

"Prepare some vegetarian dishes for my family-like friend," Alpha Ace said to the maid, and she nodded at me before rushing inside.

"So? Are you ready to give me Lady Cera now?" I asked, and he nodded before clapping his hands.

After a few minutes, Lady Cera was brought to the hall and I looked at her before standing, my eyes brimming with tears as I looked at her condition before looking at Ace.

"Don't blame me. It's because of the internal prisoners' fight. We have been treating her well after I came to know she is important to you," Ace said, and as if it was only now that she heard my voice, she looked up before widening her eyes slightly.

"Little Amal?" She spoke, and I smiled at her.

"The one and only. I am here to take you with me, Lady Cera. We will go home now," I said, and she smiled at me before she waked towards me and hugged me tightly, making me hug her back as I felt the same warmth that I used to feel so many years ago.

"I will ask one of the maid to bathe and get her ready. You can have something to eat till then," Alpha Ace said, and I nodded my head.
