

Chapter 160 Beg us

Chapter-160

AMALTHEA'S POV

"Luna Jade! They took him away! He must be in Cane's secret base. It's located in the western regions of the red sea," Sophia shouted as a few men held her back, and I looked at Caleb, Blake, Charles, and Nathaniel being held back, the fear of something wrong happening settling in my heart.

Where are Antonio and Justin? What were they doing when they were taking away my Augustus? Augustus is a Lycan king and can protect himself. What the hell did they do to take him away like this? Did he feed him something? That's the only way to kidnap such a powerful Lycan.

Turning my head to look at the men who were holding the people I care about, I looked into their eyes one by one before concentrating my powers just like Antonio had taught me.

"Leave them alone," I said before closing my eyes, and I am sure my eyes must've turned a little purple as I opened them again.

"Leave them alone and come to me," I said, and just like how I had expected, the twelve men started walking towards me, making me smile as I snapped their necks one by one.

"No one should mess with me when I am angry," I said before looking up.

"Western regions of the red sea. Are you sure it's exactly where he took him?" I asked Sophia, who was looking at me in shock before she nodded her head vigorously, and I looked at Charles and Blake, who were equally shocked about what I did just now.

"Amalthea, wha-what did you just-" Blake started, not even knowing what to say, and I sighed.

"I don't have time to explain everything just yet. Your fake father has already run away. Please do me the favour of filling everyone in about Alpha Cane because they won't be able to do anything until they know the whole truth.

Charles, call Jake and tell him what's the condition here. I'll call the council chambers and ask them to send Harry and his team along with Joseph," I sighed.

"Amalthea, are you okay?" Charles asked me, and I smiled at him.

"My mate has just been kidnapped by the person who has already snatched away my parents from me. Does it look like I am okay?" I sighed.

"Of course, I am not okay. But it's not the time to sit around and mop. If I don't act right now, it will be too late and there is no way I am losing him. I promised him that I won't ever let my revenge come to him or risk any of our lives," I said before turning around to call the council chambers as a rogue tear fell from my eyes.

'Amalthea, don't worry. Everything will be alright. I'll protect our mate. Let's not wait for others. The red sea is around two hours away from the council chambers and we are at an equal distance. If Augustus was taken away as soon as we started talking, then it has only been one hour . We can't wait here. We should leave,' Crystal said, and I nodded my head as I called Harry and told him everything.

"Don't worry, Amalthea. Everyone will be there as soon as possible. We are already leaving the chambers," Harry said, and I ended the call.

Looking at the picture of Augustus and me sitting on the beach, I rubbed my thumb on his face.

"I will not let anything happen to you, Augustus," I promised myself before wiping away my tears and taking a deep breath as a whimper left my mouth, feeling a sudden ache in my heart, making me fall on the ground.

"Amalthea!" I heard collected voices.

"It's not me. Someone is hurting Augustus," I said before standing again, clenching my fists as I felt another wave of pain through my abdomen.

"I am sorry, Amalthea. If I hadn't sided you, nothing like this-"

"I don't have time for that, Blake. I can't dwell on what would've happened or what wouldn't," I said before taking a deep breath to control another whimper.

"Have this place guarded properly. The people from the council chambers will be there soon. I am leaving," I said, and Blake gave me his car keys.

"Take my sports car," Blake said, and I nodded my head before sitting inside and accelerating the car, remembering Augustus's and I's talk from a few days back.

'What will you do if something happens to me someday?'

'I am going to come for you and make sure I save you, no matter what. Even if it will cost my life,' Augustus had said when I asked him what he would do in a situation like this, and I smiled at him.

'However, if a situation arises with me, then I don't want you to come for me. Rather, I want you to inform the Lycans and let them solve the problem. I wouldn't want you to ever get in trouble, even if it's because of me,' Augustus had added, and I couldn't help but scoff.

Now, who is going to explain to him that I love him as much as he loves me?

I will just bear his anger later.

Feeling another tear roll from my eyes as I felt a sudden pain in my abdomen, I gritted my teeth before accelerating the car again.

Riding the car at 190km/hr crazily, I sped again since this was just a highway anyway.

After forty minutes of the ride, I parked the car in the bushes roughly before walking inside the forest.

I just hope I haven't trusted Sophia uselessly because I will kill her with my bare hands if her information is wrong.

Walking towards what looked like a base, I hid behind the tree as I saw a few rogues coming out of the base, chuckling together.

"Well, who would've thought the boss would catch such a big fish? A Lycan king? I am sure we will get around 100 billion dollars for his life. I can't wait to see that much money in front of me," one of the rogues' said, and I sighed.

So Augustus was indeed brought here.

"Are you stupid? He hasn't been brought here because the boss wants money in exchange for his life. He is brought here as bait for someone," the other rogue said before continuing.

"Once we get our hands on that Callisto pack, we will get ownership over those red gems Caves that are even more precious than the real diamonds. We can build an entire Empire with the number of gems there are, not to mention we will be the strongest with all the latest ammunition," he said, and I gritted my teeth.

Just for greed. He took away my parents and is threatening Augustus all for money. He had hidden Boston in his pack for the money. All he ever does is for money only.

I haven't met such a greedy man in a really long time.

Feeling my anger increasing with each passing second as I stood behind the tree, I looked at my phone before messaging Harry.

"How far are you guys?" I asked.

"Just twenty more minutes," Harry said, and I sighed before going towards the back of the base, hiding behind the tree as I almost got caught.

"Where are you going?" One of the rogues asked the other.

"Something is wrong with my gun. I am just going to change it. Since the boss has brought such an important person here, I am sure people who would want to protect him would be here soon. I don't want to get killed just because my gun didn't work," the rogue answered, and the other one nodded.

"Don't touch the explosives. The boss will inform us about how to spread them according to the plan so that we don't end up stepping on our mines," the rogue said, and I gulped.

"They are using mines here," I send the message to Harry.

"What do you mean? Are you already there? Amalthea! Don't you dare go inside alone. I repeat, don't you dare!!" Harry's message came, and I sighed before stuffing my phone in my pocket.

With my heart beating against my ribcage, I entered what looked like the storeroom of their ammunition.

'Crystal, give me your night vision,' I said before twisting the neck of the person who just entered to change his gun.

Wearing his clothes and hiding my face with the cap, I took the gun before stuffing some wall timer bombs in my pocket.

'Amalthea! Are you stupid? We will be fighting the rogues now. What if one of the bombs goes off?' Crystal asked, and I sighed.

"It will go off once it's activated. This is the only way to destroy this base, and I'll have to take this much risk if I want to protect my mate," I said to Crystal before hiding behind the large barricades stepping towards the exit, and then running inside the corridor, slicing the neck of one of the rogues as I placed one of the bombs on the wall with thirty minutes timer.

"The base will explode in thirty minutes. Be careful," I send the message to Harry before stuffing the phone back, not wanting to see his other messages.

I guess thirty minutes would be enough to find Augustus, no?

Closing my eyes, and taking a deep breath, I took out four daggers in my hand before throwing them at the rogues who were coming to attack me. Taking out the daggers from their bodies, I placed another bomb right above them.

Opening a random slowly, I huffed when I didn't find Augustus anywhere.

Grabbing another rogue before placing the dagger on his neck, I threw another dagger at the rogue who was running towards me.

"Where is the Lycan king who is brought here?" I asked before pressing the dagger further into his neck.

"Please don't kill me. He is in the basement," the rogue said, and I nodded before hitting the back of his neck, rendering him unconscious.

Walking towards the basement slowly, trying to find its entrance, I felt like growling in anguish as I couldn't find the entrance even after roaming around the corridor in a circle and killing 16 rogues.

"Where is the entrance to the basement?" I asked as I grabbed another rogue, and he gulped as he looked at me in fear.

"It's inside the second room from here," the rogue said, and I slit his neck before rushing towards the second room, pausing in my actions when I saw my eyes a dark shade of purple.

No wonder these rogues are scared of me.

Entering the basement, I barely dodged the dagger as it sliced the side of my neck, making me touch it as I saw blood.

It looks like people already know that someone is attacking rogues on the ground floor.

Taking a deep breath, I took a table before placing it in front of me as I jumped down and threw the table, hitting the three rogues who fell, giving me enough time to throw my daggers at them and kill them.

Entering the first room where I saw Augustus bound to a chair, I felt my blood boiling as I quickly untied his ropes before slapping him as hard as I could.

Come on, wake up. We don't have that much time.

Damn it! There was no water here. How can I wake him up? I can't delay for longer, and I don't think I'll be able to carry him outside with so many rogues on my tail.

Looking at the dead rogue, I looked at Augustus before closing my eyes at the nasty thing that I was going to do next.

Gathering some of the blood in my hand I sprinkled it on Augustus, sighing in relief when I saw him gaining consciousness slightly.

"Amalthea, where are -" he started, but I shook my head before untying the ropes around his body.

"Well, didn't you do a good job coming all the way here without getting hurt?" I heard a cold voice, and soon a few rogues stepped forward from the corner of the room, which I definitely missed when I entered the room.

"Look, I don't want any more bloodshed. I am just here to take my mate. I'll leave silently after that," I said carefully, and they chuckled.

"Let you leave with the person who is going to help us win a lottery? Do we look like a joke to you?" One of the rogues said as he kicked me away and stepped forward, placed his knife on Augustus's neck.

"The look on your face says you love him a lot. What is the reason? Is he your true mate?" He asked me, and I gritted my teeth.

"Look, please let him go. I know that he is worth a billion dollars, but I assure you that I'll give you that kind of money. In fact, I am the person that your boss wants to kill. I am the true alpha of the Callisto pack," I said, and I noticed the emotion in their eyes shifting, giving me a slight hope that they might listen to my pleading.

"Amalthea, what are you doing revealing your identity like this?! You don't need to do that! Just get the hell out of here. My people will save me," Augustus groaned half-consciously, and I snarled at him.

"I am your people! Damn it!" I shouted before looking at the rogue with a pleading expression as he pressed the tip of his knife further into Augustus's neck, making the spot bleed a little, and my heart started to pound harder with fear.

"No! Don't do it," I extended my hands to show them I was dropping my weapons.

"Please, don't do anything to him," I said again as I looked around sneakily, trying to find a way to deal with them.

Because of using my Siren powers earlier on 12 men altogether, my Siren powers were feeling weak, and I wasn't able to control them.

"The infamous Amalthea Jade? The bloodline that never bowed to anyone?" The rogue, who looked like he was their head, said, and I looked at him before nodding eagerly.

"Get on your knees," he said next, and I looked at him, not understanding what he meant.

"Didn't you hear him, b*tch? Beg us. Beg us if you want to save your love," another rogue said, and Crystal growled inside me while I just looked at those rogues with a troubled expression.

Chapter Comments

 Watch Ads to Get 8 Vouchers