

Lusting For Ralph Chapter 31 - Tips

0 5 minutes read

Ralph was just back from his meeting with Walter and Shani, it has been a while for him and though he hasn't experienced anything that would be of concern, he always likes to check in with the group every couple of weeks.

He would still see Suzy and talk to her every now and then, but she had visited him less because Madison has been coming to his place more often and the teenage ghost didn't like their steamy sessions.

In some ways, Suzy has been like the little sister that he never had. And like a true annoying little sister she would pout and being a ghost, she stormed through the kitchen walls every time Madison walks into his apartment.

And that night Suzy was not gone the second Madison walked into his apartment.

"She did? what did you tell her?" he asked while he was already boiling on the inside. Madison was telling him about meeting her mom unexpectedly at Silvio's.

He was about to reach for his phone when Madison shook her head telling him no.

"She's still your mom, Ralph. But you can still choose your path. She just wants what's best for you. I didn't say anything to upset her, she already hated my relationship with you."

Ralph took another beer and drink it down as if the golden liquid could calm him down. When in reality he was still fuming, thinking that he'd call his mom and told her that he won't be coming home for the holidays.

"Ralph, baby, please..." she sat next to him and wrapped her hand to his body.

"She's not even my real mom."

"I know, but she raises you. And they're your parents' best friends. Think about your real parents then?" she rests her head to his chest and he pulled her in and kissed her hair.

“Madison, why are you so nice?”

“Because I love you? because you’re so cute and cuddly? because you build my bookshelves? because...” she straddled him and gave him her sweet little kisses in between her words.

He chuckled and they ended up n.aked and sated, tangled in bed hours later.

“I’m liking our talk.” He pulled her n.aked body on top of his.

She smiled, she was sleepy and falls asleep in his arms within seconds. Only to wake up screaming that night from the scariest and most vivid dream she had ever had.

Madison was deep in the woods. She was walking, calling out trying to find Ralph. Her throat was sore, and she was tired and sweaty from the long walk.

But then she stopped when she found a big abandoned-looking house. Madison could see traces of footsteps so she silently followed them, while her heart was pounding so fast.

The surrounding was eerily quiet, she could feel a trickle of sweat trailing down the back of her spine. Her eyes scanned the area, she was putting one step in front of the other.

She was scared sh!tless. But her adrenaline kicked in when she saw a man lying on the floor and she could see the Breitling watch that Ralph love adored for years.

“Ralph...” Madison whispered, trying to wake him the moment she reached his side.

“Ralph, please!” She shook his body trying to get him up, but he was heavy, and he’s not opening his eyes.

She was panicking when she could feel something dark was approaching them.

“...wake up, please...please...you gotta wake up,”

Her boyfriend was not waking up, he was too heavy and she would never leave him behind. Ralph's eyes were still closed and she was struggling not to scream in fear as Madison felt the dark figure was coming closer to her.

"Give him to me,"

His deep throaty voice made her look back at the dark entity, and that was when she saw it.

The big black hairy figure was so tall that she could only see him from the waist down. The monster reached out his hairy hand and grabbed Ralph's legs and that was when without thinking she grabbed her lover.

What Madison didn't expect was his blood seeping through her white dress. Then she looked at her dress thinking she never owns a white long sleeves dress to which she thought looked more like a nightgown.

But her mind was quick to go back to Ralph who was unconscious. Her hand reached to the end of his t-shirt and she gasped when she saw his abdomen was sliced open and his blood was seeping through.

She was crying in her panic state, and at the same time, Ralph's body was being dragged away. She was hugging him, trying to hold him down, but the monster was more powerful and she was dragged away with him at the same time.

Madison was crying and screaming for Ralph and she didn't even feel the rough texture of the floor when it scrapes her knees as she was trying to hold onto her Ralph.

"Maddie! Maddie! wake up!"

He tugged her awake she was screaming out his name in sheer shock.

"Ralph!"

She opened her eyes and hugged him so tight that he was worried about her life. But then he quickly thought it was a nightmare and relaxed back while taking her back into his arms, comforting her and soothing her sobs.

"It's okay baby, I'm here. I'm not going anywhere."

"It was the most... you're...I can't...the monster..." Madison was not letting him go, her hold on him was tight and she couldn't even form her sentences.

"Baby, I'm here...calm down." He was feeling her damp t-shirt.

"You're sweating, let me get you a fresh t-shirt then we can get back to sleep."

She was not letting him go, so he took her hand and both walked to his drawers so Madison could change to his fresh t-shirt.

But he was not ready when he saw the scr.apes on her knees and her shins and saw the sole of her feet were all dirty as if she has been walking on a very dirty floor.

He was silent while she was looking at him with her tears rolling down her cheeks.

"What is happening to me? I thought I was dreaming?"

"We need to go to Walter, no... wait, we're going directly to Shani, I'm calling Walter to meet us there."

Ralph was going to get his phone but Madison was still not letting him go.

"I'm afraid!"

"I'm so sorry, baby." He hugged her and decided to change her clothes and clean her scr.apes in the bathroom while trying to calm her down.

The water was black from the dirt and the soil from her feet. Twenty minutes later she was dress in his t-shirt, her scr.apes were all treated but she was still not letting him go.

Ralph gave up and called Shani telling her that he had an emergency and was going to her place at that very moment. Then he called Walter, knowing he knew and the fact that they might need his assistance should Shani wanted to do a seance.

Ralph put on his clothes then both went back to her place and wait for her to put on her loose pants and sneakers then they're out of the apartment building just hours before dawn.

Ralph was feeling her fears and she was scared for his life after knowing that it was not a dream.

Or is it?

Lusting For Ralph Chapter 32 - Tips

0 6 minutes read

They spent the whole ride to Shani's in total silence, Madison would still look at him and Ralph would caress her cheek trying to assure her that everything would be okay.

But she hadn't told him what she saw. Was it a premonition? if it was, would he be dead and taken by the monster?

Her brain was still busy trying to process the thoughts when they finally arrived at Shani's.

"You know we could have our holiday here?" Ralph tried to joke referring to their last coastal escape, but she was still remembering about holding him in her arms. Lifeless.

"I couldn't wake you, you're dead...bleeding, your stomach sliced open, I can't...I didn't..."

She was teary, and he took her into his embrace. He didn't know exactly what she meant by her words, so he was trying to calm her down while his hand knocks on Shani's front door.

"Hey, Madison...baby, I'm fine. I'm right here."

And just like on cue, the door opened and Shani greeted them. Her husband Arkael was beside her holding their little boy.

"Madison? come inside...Arkael, would you get Audric back to bed?" Shani was a bit startled with her condition, and swiftly let the couple into their home.

She kissed the sleepy little boy and her husband nodded and smiled at his pregnant wife.

"I'm sorry to bother you, I didn't know..." Ralph started his words, he didn't realize that Shani was pregnant until that day.

"It's my clothes, I don't like people giving me the look for being pregnant, come on..." Shani was hiding her pregnancy, knowing she has a very special baby inside of her.

Shani ushered them to sit in her small yet comfortable living room, Ralph didn't leave Madison's side as her hold on his hand was still strong.

"Ralph, would you go to the kitchen and make her some tea? both of you will be fine, he's here. My house is protected."

"No." Her words her small but she looked into her eyes with determination as Madison took his hand to her lap and keeping him close.

Shani looked at her possessiveness and the burn behind her eyes and suddenly she feels the need to touch their hand.

"May I?" Shani asked the still teary young woman and she nodded showing her trust in the pregnant witch.

Shani closes her eyes and tries to reach beyond Madison's vision but the wall was too thick for her.

"Walter," she murmured the word at the same time as the knock on her door. She opened it and let Walter sit on the one chair sofa beside them.

"Okay, now that you're among friends please tell us about your dream." Shani put Walter's hand on hers and she puts hers on Madison's, then told Ralph quietly to put his hand on Walter's.

Shani was flowing her positive energy into the circle, Madison felt the calmness almost instantly then she started her words.

"I don't know if it was a dream, but I was in a dark forest looking for Ralph. My feet were tired but I kept on walking and calling out his name, then more walking until I found a large abandoned house. That's...I found him on the floor... hurt, I... try to wake him...then...the shadow...monster, big...black, hairy...so tall..." her words were choppy but Shani squeezes her hand, giving her more positive energy and Madison continue with her words.

Ralph was silent throughout Madison's explanation, deep down cursing, thinking how could the same setting and same entity haunted her.

Such a thing should not even be possible.

Walter looked at him and shook his head, silently telling him to wait. Then Shani, let go of her hold the moment Madison finished her story.

"You need to call Suzy, she went with you when you're getting Ralph back from the other realm. This is the same entity, I need to know why he's not letting you go. But for now, I'm making her a protection spell that should be enough until we figure out what's happening."

"Madison, why don't you help me prepare your Amulet. And let the guys find out more from Suzy,"

"But I need to know about..."

"Madison, you can't see and hear her anymore and I need your energy in making this Amulet, it'll be faster this way. I don't want the entity attaching itself to you."

With her last word, Madison left Ralph to continue with Walter and she followed Shani to another room where there were old books, herbs, various candles, and more witchcraft stuff that she wouldn't know what they're called.

Madison was to her side, while Shani was opening her big old spellbook.

"I didn't want to ask you this in front of Ralph, because I didn't want him to start blaming himself..."

Her initial words made Madison wary already but she was silent, patiently waiting for more of her words.

"...are you pregnant?"

The question shocked her and she put her hand on her stomach spontaneously.

"No...I don't know, I don't think so. No..." Madison was teary, her back was to Ralph's who was still busy talking to Walter. Madison kept on looking at Shani while shaking her head.

She hugged her warmly and told her that everything would be okay. Shani wiped her tears then carry on with her task of making the amulet, opening her old-looking book while she explained everything to the younger woman.

“...because it’s Ralph’s baby, it relates inside you that’s why you’re experiencing the real like dream. But in my personal opinion, I think you were taken there that’s why you have the wounds.”

“But I was sleeping, he was right there with me...”

Madison wiped her tears when Shani whispered that Ralph was coming their way.

“Hey, what’s with the tears? is everything okay?”

“She will be fine, we’re going to do another cleanse after I’m done with the amulet. She should be okay, but she has my number just in case.” Shani took her hand and chanted a spell while the amulet is placed on her hand.

The warmth of the bluestone on the antique-looking pendant was felt on Madison’s hands and she relaxes the moment it was placed on her neck.

Walter called out for Ralph, and the man kissed her hair and walked back to the other room.

Ralph was in his seat talking to Walter when Shani said not to take off the amulet until the baby is born.

Madison wiped her tears and took a deep breath to calm herself down.

“Please don’t tell anyone about the baby, I will let him know in time. I just need to let reality sink in.”

“I won’t, but you can call me, you know that right? you don’t have to handle this alone.”

Shani pulled her in for another hug and they both went back to sit with Ralph and Walter. The men had talked to Suzy and noted the details.

“So Suzy describe the same entity as yours, the surrounding, the abandoned mansion, even the footsteps leading to the open window.” Ralph took her hand in his, the moment she sits beside him.

“...and Walter also confirmed the similarities though he was a bit distracted.”
The younger man continue.

“Yeah, looking for you then carrying your weight can be such a distraction,”

“Guys, come on... what’s the conclusion?” Shani asked the question.

“We think it’s the same, don’t know how. Maybe because you two are getting close? and her vision was affected?”

“Well, for now, the amulet will protect you. I’m confident that the entity won’t bother you again.”

The four of them talk about the entity, and Shani kept her word about letting Madison break the news to Ralph.

And it wasn’t long until Walter’s phone buzzed with his beautiful wife’s face on the screen.

“Alright then, that’s my cue...my wife just realized that I left the house. But, I trust my life with Shani and you should too. Whatever you guys are going through, we’re here, call us.”

Walter said his goodbye and Ralph decided that they should go too, Shani reminded Madison to call her again for anything, even if it’s just to talk.

“Thank you, Shani, I really appreciate this.” Madison hugged her for a little while longer.

“There’s something you’re not telling me,” Ralph said the moment he put the car in drive.

“Let’s just get back first.”

Lusting For Ralph Chapter 33 - Tips

0 6 minutes read

It was morning when they arrived at his place, they didn’t talk much. He had tried to get her to talk but she was shutting herself from him.

Ralph thought maybe she was exhausted because of the nightmare, the drive, and also the stress from the entity itself.

"I'm so tired Ralph, hold me... I'm not feeling very well." Her words were soft and barely audible.

Madison woke up in the middle of the afternoon and felt a little bit feverish, her body was a bit warm as she snuggled in closer to her boyfriend.

"Let me order some soft food and get you some hot milk." He kissed her forehead softly, he didn't like the fact that there was grey mist surrounding her.

His mind wonders when he was preparing the hot milk after ordering her favorite lasagna from Silvio's.

There shouldn't be any bad energy surrounding them, she had been cleansed by Shani already.

He was not focused when night came and her fever was not getting better.

"Suzy! Suze...where are you?!"

The teenage ghost popped up from the floor, head first surprising him.

"The fvck Suze! don't do that! use the walls like you usually do, okay?"

"Okay, I was trying something new. But someone's in a really a bad mood apparently." The teenage ghost hovers to his side trying to sniff the hot coffee in his hand.

But then she backed away when she feels the sudden chill, then looked at her surroundings.

"What... woahhh what is happening here?"

"Shit! you're seeing this too? I'm not imagining this? what is happening Suzy?"

"It's him, oh no...Walter! got to get Walter here. He's draining her."

"What? how can't I see it?"

“Just get him here, and your witch friend tells her to bring her stuff. And you, you need to get away from her.”

“What?! I’m not leaving her!”

“Whatevs, just get your sidekicks here, fast!”

Ralph was about to call them when Suzy was inches from his face, the dirty noose on her neck was clearly visible to him.

“Wait! Ralph, her amulet, why did she takes it off?” being a ghost for so long she learned to recognize a protection charm from afar. Suzy could see the spell that it radiates, and it was not working when it’s not attached to Madison, the ent!ty was too strong.

“She didn’t, I did.”

“You stupid fool! she needs to wear it all the time. Put it back on!”

He was quick to get her amulet from her side table and put it back on her neck, the dark mist was thinning and finally disappear.

“You really think I need to get away from her?” Ralph asked her when Madison was back to sleeping soundly.

“Well, he’s your ghost.”

Suzy kept on hovering, she knows that he’s deeply in love with his woman but she was telling the truth and she was liking his Madison. She has been a good influence on him and Suzy has never seen him as happy before.

She was actually thinking to move on but changed her mind when he joined his friends in the last seance. Suzy still didn’t know about the ent!ty and why he wouldn’t stay away from Ralph.

So she stayed with Ralph when he was back to doubting himself.

“She has the amulet, stop blaming yourself.”

“Right.”

But Ralph was doing exactly that, he was blaming himself and Suzy finally left him as she knows her presence was useless.

Knowing she was safe with her amulet, he decided to go back to Shani and try to figure out more about the entity. He texted her from the small diner telling her that he's taking an early holiday.

Madison didn't realize he left until the morning after when she wakes up alone and feeling the cold side of the bed beside hers.

Then she saw his text.

His favorite duffel bag was gone, his clothes, shoes, even his denim jacket was gone.

"What do you mean you're taking an early holiday?"

"Hey baby, I'm sorry it's so sudden but something happened last night when I took off your amulet. And Suzy said some things, now I'm on my way back to Shani to fix all of this. Just don't take off the amulet."

"So, when are you coming back?"

"I think this might take a while, and the holidays are coming. So, I don't know..."

"Okay,"

"Look baby I love you, please know that."

"I love you too Ralph, thank you for looking out for me."

There was a sad feeling inside her, maybe she was being hormonal but she was teary while her other hand was holding her stomach. She ended the call as she feels the urge to throw up.

Morning sickness.

Moments later she throws up to nothing, just the gagging and nausea feel that made her sick to the point that she couldn't move from the bathroom floor.

That morning she decided to avoid eating and drink some hot milk instead. Madison finally gets out of the apartment just before lunch and decided to buy a test pack although she knows she must be pregnant already.

She has never felt so unsure about her life, she didn't even know how to proceed with her life not when she has a baby inside her. Ralph's.

Madison took a seat at the small cafe and order hot chocolate milk and some honey-dipped french toast. She was sticking to light meals, not wanting to throw up again.

Inside her purse were two packs of pregnancy kit that she bought from the pharmacy next door. She knows Ralph would be responsible, but will they be happy in the long run?

She wiped her tear and look outside of the small cafe window and try her best to finish her brunch. She sighed when she thinks about her parents, then Ralph's mom. And most of all thinking about how she could be too carried away with Ralph.

Two hours later she was back sitting on her bathroom floor, breaking, tears falling as she quietly sobbed when she saw the two pregnancy kits stating that she's pregnant.

Ralph had checked in on her when she reached her apartment, and she was lying telling him that she was fine.

That late afternoon she packed her bags and decided to also take an early vacation to her mom's just because she lives closer and Madison was too tired for the long drive to her dad's.

She needed to get away and clear her mind before she faces him and told him about being pregnant with his child.

Meanwhile, at that same time, Ralph was being scolded by Shani. She was telling him that he shouldn't leave her alone. Not in her condition. Though the double-meaning words were not getting through to Ralph as Shani kept Madison's words and let her pregnancy stay a secret.

"She's like this because of me."

“Can’t argue there,” Shani pursed her lips in annoyance. She was telling Ralph to go back, but he was stubborn as hell and wanted his issue to be resolved soonest.

“Ralph, if she said we wait then I really think you should wait.”

Walter was there already, though Shani said the moon wasn’t in the right position. The summoning could be a mess, and after the last one with Ralph, she was taking things more carefully.

“I’ll stay close, just call me...”

Shani cuts his words and looked at him when she told him to come back tomorrow night.

“Rain is coming here, he has gained more power and knowledge since his time with his king of hell. He should be able to help us.”

“Thank you, I’ll come back tomorrow.” Ralph excused himself, he was tired from the worry and the drive when he decided to rest at a nearby hotel.

“Hey, I missed you, I love you. How are you?” Ralph called Madison as he was getting ready to end the day.

“Hey, miss you and love you too, I’m at my mom’s. I don’t feel like staying alone.”

Ralph cursed on the inside once again blaming himself for being stupid and not just take her with him instead. But he was torn when Suzy told him that he should get away from her.

“I’m sorry, I should’ve...”

“Have you talk to Shani?” Madison interrupted his words and asks about Shani.

“Yes, she’s taking us, helping me with our issue and we’re waiting for her witch friend, Rain, to come and help us tomorrow...”

The young couple talk for a little bit longer before they sleep alone thinking of each other.

Both worry for each other.

Lusting For Ralph Chapter 34 - Tips

0 7 minutes read

“Morning mom...”

“Morning sweetheart, breakfast is on the table. I’m sorry I have to go work today, I’ll see if I can get back earlier and we can spend some time together.”

“It’s okay mom, I’ll be spending the holiday here. We have a lot of time later.” Madison kissed her mom goodbye and made herself a cup of hot chocolate.

She had never been close with her mom and at that moment she decided to spend the whole day reading and forget about her issues. At that time she was just glad that her mom would be busy all day at the office.

Meanwhile, another young pregnant college student had just woken up in the lush comfort bed of a certain rich campus jock. She puts her arm over his body and rests her cheek on his bare chest, the young woman was liking his warmth.

“Morning,” his deep manly voice greeted her, making her smile in her sleep.

“Mmhh...ssh...” she mumbled with her eyes still closed.

He chuckled when she put her legs over his thigh and pulling herself closer to him. The aroused man wrapped her sexy body and kissed her hair.

“I read those pregnancy hormones can make you feel hornier.” He whispered huskily in her ear while his erection was getting harder.

“Maybe, but I need to pee first.” She giggled and sneakily get away from him.

“I’ll go make some decaf.” He let out another chuckle then shook his head and lazily get himself out of the bed.

She found him moments later quietly sipping his coffee, proudly supporting nothing but his shorts which hangs low enough that his trail was visible for her view.

It has been more than a week since the day Brian was declared to be the father of the baby. She was relieved and nervous at the same time. But her weariness was not an issue because Brian cherished her. And from that day, they have been living the happy couple lifestyle.

They would go to campus together and she would wait until he finishes with his practice. People talked behind them, but they were living their life without a care in the world. Mostly because Brian told her not to worry and that he will be responsible and raised their kid together.

But the coming holidays were not in her favor, she dreaded the day but it came anyway.

“It’ll be okay,” he kissed her bare shoulder and she rests her back to his naked chest, while she sipped her decaf coffee milk.

Brian saw right through her, being one of the it girls on campus she might seem like one of those pretty party goer types. But once he gets to know her better he was surprised that she enjoys spending time at his place.

And Brian knows those type of woman who needs their daily dose of shopping and clubbing, and shockingly Kendra was careful moneywise. At times her behavior irritates him to the point that he just give the waiter his black card when Kendra insisted on checking out the bill.

“I’m not sure about us spending the holidays with your parents, maybe I should just stay here. Maybe we’re a mistake, I seriously think you should think this through.”

“Hey, Kendra...listen to me. I got this, we’re doing this together. You should let me marry you...so your parents will be okay with all of this.”

“No! Brian, just leave my parents alone. I’m worried about yours.”

Brian put her coffee down and cupped her face. He has been asking her to marry him, he had grown to care for her and he wanted to do what’s right with her.

“Look, don’t worry okay?”

“Okay.” Kendra gave up and leave it to him, thinking she needs to think about the baby and be responsible too.

“Good, now I have an early practice scheduled this morning. Why don’t you just relax and go sleep some more?”

“You’re talking my language.” She smiled at him and pulled him down for a kiss.

“You’re going to make me late,”

“So?” she teased, slithering her hands to his chest making him groan and lift her to the kitchen stool.

That morning he was late for practice, but he had a big smile on his face while she was back to sleeping in his bed still in his oversized t-shirt and her tight shorts.

It was almost lunchtime when Brian called her saying he’ll be late for another hour. And she picked up the house phone thinking it was him again, but she was surprised when it was another woman on the other end of the line.

“Yes, I’ll fix you a late lunch just…”

“Hello? who’s this?”

“Hi, this is Kendra.” She was nervous thinking she was caught answering his landline. She instantly knew it was his mom from the deep calm voice.

“Kendra, where is my son, Brian?”

“He has an early practice,”

“Right, and you’re there alone?”

“Yes.” Her voice was a bit shaky while she cursed on the inside.

“I am fifteen minutes away from his place, tell me, Kendra, I know my son never leaves a woman alone in his place. Are you his girlfriend?”

She was silent for quite a while and his mother was still waiting for her answer.

“Yes.”

“Good, go get ready and meet me at the lobby in ten minutes.” She ended the call and Kendra panicked.

Should she call him, or should she...but then she looked at the time and she only has less than ten minutes to get ready and that's when she picked her best jeans then cursed when it doesn't fit her anymore.

She finally wears her semi-formal dress and matches it with her denim jacket, then she slipped on her flats and put on her lipstick. She had only minutes to spare when she decided to call Brian, but she was connected to his voicemail instead.

Kendra was on her way down when his text came in informing her that he'd call back stating that he's in the middle of practice.

Your mom called your apartment. I picked up. Now on she's picking me up for lunch. Help. (Kendra)

She waited for his text but a sleek black Bentley pulled over at the lobby driveway and the driver opened the door for her.

“Miss Kendra, please...you're expected.”

Kendra awkwardly entered the car and sits down as she greeted the older woman.

“Good afternoon, Mrs. Harrison.”

“Please don't be nervous, please...” his mom patted the seat next to her.

Kendra tried to relax but she couldn't, she could feel sweat trickle down her spine while the AC in the car was cold and comforting.

“I'm sorry for being nosy, but he never brings his dates back home. And then yesterday he called and told me that he was going to bring a woman home...” his mother let out a laughter.

“...his woman, that kid could be such a caveman...”

Kendra started to relax, while his mother was busy babbling, talking about her son until they arrived at the lobby of Markov chain hotel.

She was glad that she didn't wear her jeans. Kendra was talking to his mom when Brian's text came.

Where? (Brian- the baby daddy)

She smiled brightly when she saw his text, and her emotion was seen by his mom.

Markov hotel downtown. (Kendra-the freeloader)

On my way (Brian- The boyfriend)

That was his hint, knowing that he would introduce her as his girlfriend.

"You looked happy?" his mom was surprisingly not scary at all when she was taking her seat and ordering their food.

"Brian is coming to join us."

"Good, I missed him."

They talk about her study and small stuff, Kendra was actually surprised that she didn't ask anything about why she was staying at her son's place and almost half an hour later he came dressed in his designer jeans and crisp white shirt. Kendra looked at him, feeling all the butterflies in her stomach.

"Afternoon mom." He greeted his mom, once she arrived at their table, then he greeted Kendra with a chaste kiss on her lips which made her blush instantly.

His mom smiled at the young couple and he was liking that his mom gets along with Kendra. Though his worry was not with his mom, but with his dad, he would scold the campus jock for being careless and impregnated a woman.

But then he looked at the Sushi plate in front of Kendra, knowing for sure that it was his mom who ordered the meals.

Brian knows that Kendra would probably be too shy to order her lunch.

"...yes, could you get us some cheese sauce?"

“Sir?” the waiter was a bit puzzled with his request looking at the fresh sushi platter in front of him.

But it didn’t take long for the smell to hit her senses and she looked pale and within seconds she excused herself to the ladies.

“Damn!” Brian cursed and hold her arm as she quickens her steps to the restroom. Then he took an empty ice bucket from the recently vacant table. She was quick to throw up in it making few heads turned their way.

Kendra was teary instantly. She felt so embarrassed for herself for throwing up in the posh hotel restaurant, where his mom was clearly noticing.

Brian was holding her hair when she throws up and he held her close when she was done.

“I can’t do this.”

“I got you babe... we’re going to be just fine.”

“Are you carrying my grandchild?” his mom warmly asked when she finds the young woman in her son’s embrace.

“Mom...” Brian started.

“I...we...”

“We had the paternity test, I was going to break the news over the holidays.”

Brian kept her in his arm, while she was wiping her tears away and didn’t expect that his mother would pull her in for a h.ug.

“Come here...” his mom took her into her embrace and Kendra was embarrassed for crying harder.

Lusting For Ralph Chapter 35 - Tips

0 5 minutes read

“Come, why don’t we order another food.” His mom ushered her to the mirror and get Kendra some tissues.

“Brian...tell the waiter to move us to another table, a more private one and why don't you order for her this time?”

Brian nodded to his mom and kissed Kendra on her temple just before he leaves her with her mom.

“I can see that my son loves you very much.”

“I...we're not an actual couple...” Kendra looked at his mom, she couldn't start her baby's life with secrets. She needs his mom to know about their relationship, she didn't want to be judged once his family knows about the truth.

“Kendra, love grows. And I see the moment you look at your phone reading his text message.” His mom tucked in her loose strands back behind her ear.

Kendra didn't believe her luck when his mom hugged her and welcomed her into their family.

Though her new best friend Madison was thinking the opposite when her mom came home.

“Madison, come sit with me...”

Being a single mom after her divorce didn't affect her the least, she remains distant from her only child.

“So I met Ralph's mom today just after I had a business lunch with a client...”

Madison cursed on the inside, she knows where the conversation is going already.

“And she and I had a long talk, but basically she wants you to let go of Ralph, romantically. Look, Maddie...I can't give you any insights on your love life looking at my own failed marriage.”

The marriage that happened because of her. Madison thought sarcastically.

“I know we haven't been close, but I do care about you. And I'm not sure you can handle the Richardson. We are not on the same playing field as they are. I know you're close with their boys, but you should stop dreaming of getting a tap into their wealth. We can seek our own.”

Madison couldn't believe her words. Her own mother saying that she wanted him for his money, thinking that she wanted to climb the social ladder like a true gold-digging b!tch.

"I'm pregnant, with Ralph's baby. I haven't told him, that's why I came early for the holiday. I need to think."

Her mom looked at her in disbelief.

"What? are you seriously shocked that I turned out just to be like you?" Madison was in rage listening to her mom talking about her like she's a stupid wh0re.

And that was when she slapped her, then it was her turn to look at her mom in surprise.

"I'm guessing my holiday is over," Madison stomped her feet in anger and headed back to her room to pack up her stuff without even knowing her destination.

"Come, why don't we order another food." His mom ushered her to the mirror and get Kendra some tissues.

It was getting late, but she knew she couldn't stay a minute longer under the same roof as her mom's.

And her mom didn't stop her only daughter from leaving her house late at night, as she was still feeling disappointed at Madison.

That night the pregnant young woman decided to make the five-hour drive to her dad's. She felt confident knowing that her mom hasn't been in contact with her dad, not since their divorce.

"Hi baby," Ralph's voice was calming her down.

She was pulling over to the side of the road to take his call, not wanting him to hear her surrounding. She was lying, telling him that she was at her mom's in bed and was sleepy already.

Ralph sounded different, but Madison has her issues to deal with so she just let it go, and the same feelings were passing through Ralph. He noticed that there was something different in her voice. But she was saying that she was fine when he asked, so he decided to let it go.

They talk for a couple of more minutes before Madison ended the call telling him that she was sleepy already. While in reality, she was feeling the eerie vibe from her surrounding area.

Shani had warned her about the in-depth feel, though the amulet protects her she could still sense them because the baby was giving her the once closed sixth sense ability.

Madison put the car in gear and exhale when she managed to leave the wooded area behind, and her surrounding felt lighter once again.

She felt sleepy when she decided to make a stop at the first diner she encountered. The coffee was bad and the food was worse, so it didn't take her long before she was back on the road.

Looking at her GPS it was another two hours of dark roads before she would reach her dad's suburb town.

But she wasn't far from the diner when she almost ran over a deer, her car swerved and she almost hit a tree. She was fine, the car was fine, but the almost incident had shocked her eyes awake.

"Fvck!" she cursed and swiftly turned switch the engine back on and put the car in gear.

It took her less hand two hours to reach her dad's, but she didn't believe her eyes when she saw him getting out of a car then move to the passenger seat and a woman was quick to k!ss her dad. The couple continues k!ssing until Madie lost sight of them behind her dad's front door.

"Damn!" she cursed knowing that she couldn't stay at her dad's, the awkwardness would be too great and she surely doesn't want to deal with the fakeness of new acquaintances.

I should've called first...stupid! she thought when she turns the car around and headed to the nearest gas station.

Madison was thinking of staying in a motel that she passed earlier, just to sleep and then to think about what she was going to do with her holiday and how to avoid Ralph since she was not ready for him.

Not yet.

Morning came too soon, and she was sleeping it off until the sun hits her in the eyes and she noticed the sleazy motel she was resting in. She washed her face then called her new best friend Kendra.

“...so, yeah...I need a place for the holidays. I was thinking can I hide out at yours?” Madison asked while sitting on the edge of the bed, wanting to get out of there soonest.

“Aww Madie, you should really talk it out with him, I know for sure that he loves you very much. But of course, you can stay at mine. Brian insisted that I move in with him.” Kendra let out a nervous laugh.

Madison congratulated her, she was glad that Kendra was finding her happiness with Brian. And though she still hated him, but she was glad that he was taking responsibility.

It somehow showed her that people can change. Some of them.

“...though the lease would be over next week and I wasn't going to extend the rent...because of my parent, you know...they cut me off, including their financial support.”

Madison sighed at the news. It was perfect, she knows Kendra's place. Modest, quiet, little apartment near campus. It was perfect for her holiday hideout.

“I'll take care of your lease, don't worry about it...”

Madison was not loaded as Ralph but having divorce parents means that she gets double of her allowance and her parents were successful enough that she has her savings. But it was mainly because she spends her money on books, not like other divorce b.rats who shops and travel a lot.

It was almost in the evening when she reached Kendra's apartment, and she looked at her watch knowing that Ralph would check in on her in a couple of more hours.

And like a scheduled appointment she was back to her friendly conversation with her boyfriend. And the couple both were lying telling everything was fine while in reality both were falling apart. Both busy with different issues on their mind.