

MY PERSONAL LYCAN KING

Chapter 175 - Author's Note

Hello, dear readers, this chapter marks the end of the My Personal Lycan King series. I know I made a lot of mistakes and there were lots of grammatical mistakes, and I am sorry for all of them. I am not a native English speaker, but I am always trying to improve myself. If you loved this story even for a few minutes, then please leave a comment and review the story. This was my first story, and I was a bit uneven in updating patterns too, please forgive me for that. Once again, thank you all for continuing this journey along with me. It was the support from readers like you that made this book work, and I hope I will be getting some love in the future too. There were many comments from readers and authors on other platforms that said my story was messed up and I wasn't even sure if I would be completing this story, but support and faith from some of you kept me intact. Especial thanks to all the readers who had been commenting on my story and motivating me. Please leave a review when you are done reading this. It will mean a lot to me.

I have one more story on another platform that is exclusive there, and thus, I can't post it here, but I will surely provide the synopsis of the story.

Also, I will be writing a new story soon. I will start publishing it the first thing I have written a few chapters.

Lots of love and strength to you guys!!

Thankyou for reading this book,