Chapter 1431

James and Helen were so excited. Here in Eastshire, it is not easy to own a house. Now, President Ramsey is going to give us a building? That is beyond our dreams!

James and Helen were so excited. Here in Eastshire, it is not easy to own a house. Now, President Ramsey is going to give us a building? That is beyond our dreams!

As for Lynn, her mouth was agape and she couldn't return to her senses.

For her, it was an extravagant wish to buy a small apartment of thirty square meters in Eastshire.

However, one had to give James and Helen a building as compensation after scolding them a little.

The gap between humans was simply unimaginable for her.

James and Helen immediately looked at Matthew, wishing he would agree to it quickly.

They were willing to get beaten into pulp if it meant getting a whole building in Eastshire.

However, Matthew's expression never changed. He didn't even look at Tommy.

They were anxious, but there was nothing they could do.

They didn't dare to go overboard and make decisions for Matthew now.

Seeing that Matthew didn't speak, Tommy hurriedly replied, "Mr. Larson, the building is located in Southland, the southern district of the Eastshire. This is a pretty good town here, and the land costs at least 50,000 per square meter in Southland. The building he bought is a low-rise house, which is more valuable. The building costs around 500 million."

James and Helen's hands were shaking with excitement when they heard this.

James and Helen's hands were shaking with excitement when they heard this.

Lynn was also stunned and she was at a loss for words.

James and Helen had just arrived in Eastshire, so they didn't know the actual cost of the building.

However, Lynn knew the situation in Eastshire best.

Southland was a high-end residential area in Eastshire.

Not long after the opening, all the houses were booked almost instantly. Now, not even money could get one a place in Southland.

However, President Ramsey was willing to give them an entire building, which was unimaginable.

She couldn't help but glance at Matthew. I don't understand. What influence does this young man have on them to make President Ramsey willing to pay such a price as compensation? Although President Ramsey has billions of net worth, it is still difficult for him to give them such a building. Everyone will immediately agree to the compensation.

However, Matthew never spoke as he drank tea.

James and Helen were sweating profusely.

Helen even gave Seshe a wink, signaling her to urge Matthew to agree to the compensation.

She didn't even care for her dignity anymore. They don't care if someone scolded them badly if it means getting this building.

Sasha did not speak. Although she was moved by the deal, she always believed in Matthew and respected his decision.

When Tommy saw that Matthew hadn't spoken yet, his expression changed.

He took a deep breath and gritted his teeth. "Mr. Lerson, I know that this building is nothing to you. However, Ramsey is my relative and I can't just leave him be. Mr. Lerson, can you do me a favor and take this building to forgive him?"

Hearing this, Matthew slowly raised his head.

He glanced at Tommy and said slowly, "Mr. Marshall, since you said so, I will accept this building. However, please make sure that this incident will never happen again. Listen carefully—if you disrespect my family, you better pray that I never see you again. Understand?"

Tommy broke out in a cold sweat and nodded quickly. "Understood! Yes, sir! Thank you for your kindness!"

Matthew waved his hand. "Alright, That's all, so scram! Don't stay here to be an eyesore!"

He said that as if he was shooing a fly away.

President Ramsey didn't dare to say a word. He even kowtowed to Matthew a few times before getting up and leaving in embarrassment.

Chapter 1432

The next day after breakfast, James and Helen excitedly suggested that they visit the building given by President Ramsey.

The next day after breakfast, James and Helen excitedly suggested that they visit the building given by President Ramsey.

At the same time, Helen invited Lynn too.

During the dinner the day before, Helen found that Lynn's mother was her classmate in middle school and they were friends back then.

Therefore, Helen liked Lynn even more and regarded Lynn as her junior.

Half an hour later, they arrived at Northland.

As a relatively high-end residential area in Eastshire, Northland was a luxurious city.

Although it was not as good as the Lakeside Garden and the Grand Garden in Eastcliff, it was still a high-end residential area.

James and Helen repeatedly nodded as they were satisfied with the area.

As for Lynn, she was getting envious.

Any house in this area was a mansion to her.

When the group was driving into the community, a security guard stopped them.

This was a gated community, so non-resident vehicles could not enter.

However, after Matthew took out the real estate certificates that President Ramsey gave him, the security guard immediately let them into the community respectfully.

After parking in the underground parking lot, they walked into the community and took a look at the surrounding environment.

The community area was vast and the percentage of the urban green space was high too, which made James and Helen happier.

One would definitely feel relaxed in this community.

One would definitely feel relaxed in this community.

However, since the community was too huge, they couldn't find their building after wandering around for a long time.

A girl covered from head to toe in designer brands suddenly came toward them when they were looking for the building.

The girl was pretty beautiful and had heavy makeup with an arrogant expression.

Lynn was startled when she saw the girl.

She recognized the girl as her college roommate, Adele Deen.

During her college days, Adele was a popular girl.

Adele was beautiful and fashionable, which was why she was popular among the guys in school.

When Lynn first enrolled in college, she had a crush on a talented guy.

After Adele knew about that, she confessed to the guy the next day.

Soon, she brought the guy to meet Lynn as a trophy and mocked Lynn.

Since then, Lynn developed a severe inferiority complex and did not fall in love even after graduation.

As for Adele, she broke up with the guy after three days.

She then hooked up with various guys in the college quickly.

During her sophomore year, she was no longer satisfied with the inexperienced college boys, so she started to lure the big shots in society.

Then, she met many big shots outside college and didn't care about her attendance anymore.

Then, she met many big shots outside college and didn't care about her attendance anymore.

She was the only one in college that had been to the Cameron Hotel.

She followed a big shot to the Cameron Hotel for a party at that time. After that, she boasted about it for a long time in college.

Two years after graduation, Lynn never saw Adele again.

Hence, the former didn't expect to meet Adele in such a situation.

Looking at Adele, Lynn believed that the woman had a great life after graduation.

Adele was wearing branded clothes, and Lynn couldn't help but feel ashamed as she tried to turn her head and leave.

However, Adele recognized her in an instant.

Adele was startled, but she soon put a disdainful sneer on her lips. "Hey, Lynn! Long time no see. Why are you here?"

Saying that, she walked to Lynn and grabbed her arm to prevent her from leaving.

Lynn wasn't fond of her, but she still gave Adele the respect she deserved as a schoolmate.

"Y-Yeah, long time no see. I have things to do here. S-So, bye!"

Before Lynn could leave, Adele tightly grabbed onto her arm.

"You have something to do here? Are you kidding me? What do you have to do in Southland?" Adele asked with a half-smile.

Chapter 1433

Lynn's face flushed when she heard Adele's words.

Lynn's face flushed when she heard Adele's words.

Adele was clearly making fun of her, implying that she wasn't qualified to enter Southland.

"I...Can't I have something on here?" Lynn retorted indignantly.

To that, Adele simply laughed. "You mean here, in Southland? This is a high-end residential area with only Eastshire's wealthiest families, and you said you have something on here? Either you live here, or do you know any of the residents here?"

That stumped Lynn. "I-I..."

Adele had always been an arrogant and conceited person. Looking at Lynn's embarrassed manner, she was immensely proud of what she had said.

However, she pretended to be concerned and said, "Lynn, we're classmates. You don't need to pretend to be someone else to impress me. You're from a small town, and I'm well aware of your family's condition. In fact, whether you are wealthy or not is unimportant at all. The most important thing is to know who you are and be realistic. Do you understand?"

Though she appeared to be educating Lynn, she was actually mocking her.

After hearing Adele's words, Lynn was so enraged that she began trembling and couldn't think of anything to say.

At the same time, Helen, who was standing nearby, was furious as well.

She treated Lynn as her junior, so she couldn't stand the younger woman being humiliated in front of her.

In fact, she wanted to head straight to them and defend Lynn. However, she hesitated.

In fact, she wanted to head straight to them and defend Lynn. However, she hesitated.

Matthew saw through her intentions. Hence, he said softly, "Mom, this entire building belongs to you and Dad now. This is my way of compensating you both. You are free to deal with it however you want; you don't need to seek my permission."

Helen was surprised with what he said. With such an assurance, she walked right up to Lynn.

Reaching Lynn's side, she said loudly, "Who is pretending? Of course Lynn can be in Southland; she lives here!"

However, Lynn was shocked to hear that. Since when did I start living here?

Adele was stunned as well. Looking dubiously at Helen, she asked, "Who are you?"

To that, Helen replied arrogantly. "You are not qualified to know who I am. Lynn is now the property owner in Southland, so she will be coming in and out here often. You'd better not be surprised!"

Upon hearing that, Adele furrowed her brows and stared at Helen. "You said she is the one of the property owners here? Well, which unit is she living in?"

She then sneered coldly and continued, "If you can't answer my question, it means you're sneaking into Southland. I'll have you know that the security here is very strict. Do you know what would happen if I informed the security guards?"

Well, do you know that the purchase of the properties in Eastshire is limited, with people fighting for just one unit? And you said you have a lot? How many do you actually have? Just two or three? You're hilarious!"

But Helen remained unmoved. Arrogantly, she replied, "You know nothing! Two or three is insignificant. I have an entire building here!"

Adele burst out laughing when she heard what Helen said. "Oh my goodness, you're hilarious! An entire building? Madam, are you in your right mind or have you just escaped from an asylum? Your condition is serious!"

"Adele, don't speak nonsense. Whatever Mrs. Cunningham is saying is true," Lynn anxiously cut in.

In response, Adele simply laughed again. "Why are you going crazy with her, Lynn? Oh my, that was amusing! Come on, tell me—which building is yours?"

Chapter 1434

Adele had a mocking expression on her face, as if she was making fun of Helen and Lynn.
Adele had a mocking expression on her face, as if she was making fun of Helen and Lynn.

After all, it was difficult enough to live in Southland, let alone own an entire building. Hence, she deduced they must be boasting.

Eastshire had always limited each one's purchase of units. Furthermore, Southland was also the most popular neighborhood in the entire district. How was it possible for someone to own an entire building here?

Hence, she completely treated Helen and Lynn as if they were insane.

Helen, however, responded leisurely, "Building No.1 is ours!"

Hearing that, Adele was stunned at first, but she quickly regained her composure and laughed yet again. "Building No. 1? You're so amusing, Madam! Do you have any idea how much Building No. 1 costs? Do you know that this is the most expensive building in Southland? And now you're saying that the building is yours? You're so funny and I just can't stop laughing!"

Adele laughed so hard that her whole body trembled.

At this moment, a bald man, wearing a gold necklace and sunglasses, headed toward them.

When he reached Adele, he wrapped his arms around her waist and asked, "What happened? Why are you laughing so hard?"

Upon seeing the bald man, Adele immediately acted coquettishly. "Hubby, there you are. I ran into an old classmate who told me that she owns the entire Building No. 1! I'm so terrified, darling. I never knew that I had such a prominent figure among my classmates!"

Hearing that, Adele looked at Helen with a mocking smile on her face and said, "Did you hear that, Madam? Building No. 1 is owned by a friend of my husband's. What do you have to say now?"

"That's impossible! Building No. 1 is indeed ours. We have the title deed in our hands!" Helen replied with a frown.

Her words, however, enraged the bald man. "How dare you keep lying, old lady? Did I not make myself clear? Let me repeat myself—the building belongs to my buddy! How dare you lie to my face? Have you had enough of living? Do you think I would not dare to slap you right away?"

While speaking, the bald man raised his arms. Helen was terrified by his anger that she reflexively took a few steps back.

At this moment, Matthew walked over.

He stood in front of Helen and glared coldly at the bald man. "What are you doing?"

Initially, the bald man just wanted to scare Helen. However, upon seeing Mathew, he immediately flung his arm out to give Matthew a firm slap.

"What are you doing?"

"What are you doing?"

"Slapping you!"

However, Mathew, with his brows furrowed, immediately laid his arm on the bald man's first and slapped his face so hard that his mouth bled.

That stunned the bald man. He was a fitness trainer with a fiery temper. It was always him who bullied the others, never the other way around.

Unexpectedly, he was slapped first by this thin and frail young man in front of him.

"How dare you hit me? I'm going to kill you!" the bald man roared. He then charged toward Mathew in a boxing stance and flung his fist for a punch.

Seeing this, Mathew did not avoid but instead, he punched the bald man too.

When their fists collided, the bald man felt as if he had been hit by an iron block that nearly broke his bones.

That was so painful that he screamed and took a few steps back, clutching his fist and staring frightfully at Matthew.

He finally realized Matthew was not someone to be trifled with.

"Well, it seems like you're trained! But who cares? I'll tell Robbie that you intend to take over his property! Let me warn you—Robbie has a temper worse than mine. When he knows about it, you'll all be dead meat!

In response, Matthew merely waved his hand and said, "As you wish!"

The bald man then walked to the side to call his buddy. After several attempts, the call was finally answered.

The bald man then walked to the side to call his buddy. After several attempts, the call was finally answered.

The moment the call was picked up, he immediately repeated the entire incident to the person on the other end of the line.

When he finished speaking, there was a dead silence over the phone.

The bald man had no idea what was going on, so he continued, "These scumbags are definitely swindlers, Robbie! Perhaps they're using your building as a deception! Do you want to come here and have a look? They may get you in trouble in the future if they use your building in their deceptive acts!"

Finally, there was a response from the other end of the phone. In a bone-chilling cold voice, the person said, "Wait for me. I'll be there soon!"

The bald man was overjoyed to hear that. After hanging up the phone, he arrogantly spoke to Matthew. "Hey, you! Robbie will be here soon, so you can just wait to meet your doom!"

Matthew, however, couldn't care less about that.

Adele was also beaming with pride. Taking a sidelong glance at Lynn, she sneered and said, "Why did you get involved with these swindlers, Lynn? We're classmates; you can always tell me if you've faced some difficulties! How can you engage in cheating? I never expected you to be so degraded as to commit such a lowly act. I'm so disappointed in you!"

Adele appeared to be regretful of how Lynn was now by saying these, but she was actually mocking Lynn.

Adele appeared to be regretful of how Lynn was now by saying these, but she was actually mocking Lynn.

Gritting her teeth, Lynn yelled angrily, "Stop being so cynical, Adele. We are not swindlers and we did not defraud anyone!"

Adele smiled coldly at that. "You just don't know when to stop, huh? I know nothing about the other buildings, but Building No. 1 is definitely Robbie's. He had just invited us there three days before to discuss the upcoming opening of a clubhouse in that building! Are you treating us like morons by saying the building is yours?"

Hearing that, Lynn was dumbfounded. She lowered her head, not knowing what to say.

Helen, too, was worried. She approached Matthew and asked softly, "Matthew, why is this building now owned by his friend? Is President Ramsey playing a fool of us? Or perhaps we came to the wrong place? Is it not Southland?"

Matthew simply shook his head in response to her words. "Simply ignore him. It will become clearer later."

But Helen couldn't rest assured. It would be so awkward if they really had gotten the wrong place!

After about ten minutes, they heard footsteps approaching them.

All of them then turned their heads around and saw a guy trotting toward them.

Seeing that guy, the bald men immediately dashed toward him. "Robbie, over here!"

When the guy was near to them, the bald man noticed that he was drenched in sweat and struggling to catch his breath, as if he had been running for a long time.

The bald man was shocked to see that. "Robbie, you don't need to be so anxious. They can't escape; I'm here watching over them. You can take your time..."

While saying, he extended his hand trying to assist the guy in front of him.

However, the guy named Robbie immediately shoved the bald man's hand away without even looking at him.

Then, the guy ran straight to Matthew and bowed to him, much to the surprise of the bald man.

That stumped the bald man so much that he widened his eyes. What is going on?

The guy then bowed to Seshe, James and Helen before saying, "Mr. Lerson and President Cunningham, I apologize for what happened earlier. I had no idea the four of you would be here. Please accept my apologies."

It was only now that James and Helen saw the appearance of this guy.

Surprised, they exclaimed, "President Ramsey? It's you?"

This guy was none other than President Ramsey, whom they had met previously.

Chapter 1436

President Ramsey bowed and smiled respectfully as he said, "Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, I actually live close by. I rushed over here as soon as I realized the four of you were here. I apologize for not being more attentive."

President Ramsey bowed and smiled respectfully as he said, "Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, I actually live close by. I rushed over here as soon as I realized the four of you were here. I apologize for not being more attentive."

He was now extremely polite to them.

He would be dead right now if Tommy hadn't personally pleaded for him yesterday.

Despite learning of Matthew and the crown prince's identities, President Ramsey harbored no ill will toward them. Instead, he was grateful that his life had been saved.

When he answered the phone and was told that someone had arrived at his Building No. 1, he assumed right away that it was Matthew and the others.

As a result, he dared not delay any longer and dashed here.

A curious Helen asked, "But the bald man mentioned a 'Robbie'? Who is that?"

"Robbie is my nickname, Mrs. Cunningham," President Ramsey replied with a smile. "A lot of people here call me that."

Helen finally understood everything. "I see! So, you're the Robbie that he mentioned. I almost thought you were deceiving us by giving us someone else's property."

Hearing that, he anxiously replied, "That's a misunderstanding, Mrs. Cunningham. How could I possibly do such a thing to you? You are the last people I will ever deceive! I will never, ever lie to you all, no matter how brave I am!"

On the other hand, the bald man and Adele, who were standing behind, were completely stunned.

On the other hand, the bald men and Adele, who were standing behind, were completely stunned.

They were already shocked when they saw President Ramsey bow to Matthew and his group earlier. Now, they were even more taken aback by President Ramsey's reverent attitude.

After all, he was counted as a powerful figure in Eastshire.

Even with another prominent figure like Tommy, he was always laughing and chatting casually. He had never been this humble before, not even once.

But now, in front of these people, President Ramsey was so humble that he almost knelt in front of them. Why?

At this moment, Matthew asked, "So, Building No. 1 does indeed belong to you?"

"That was previously mine, Mr. Lerson, but it isn't now. As I have already transferred the property to you, you are the current owner!" President Ramsey quickly explained.

Matthew nodded to that. Then, he turned around and looked at both Adele and the bald men. "Do you have any doubts now?"

They both turned pale immediately. They had clearly heard President Ramsey saying that he had transferred Building No. 1 to Matthew.

That stunned them thoroughly. Despite not knowing the identities of Matthew and the people around him, both the bald men and Adele knew that they had to be someone extraordinary for President Ramsey to act in such a way.

How could they have offended such a powerful person? Were they tired of living?

How could they have offended such a powerful person? Were they tired of living?

Looking at their expressions, President Ramsey immediately asked, "Mr. Larson, was this bastard offensive to you? Tell me what he did and I'll teach him a lesson!"

"You'll teach him a lesson?" Matthew asked, casting a glance at President Ramsey. "But I heard he's your buddy!"

However, President Ramsey simply pursed his lips in disdain. "That's a misunderstanding, Mr. Larson. He's just a small hooligan who wants to follow me, but I've been ignoring him all this while. We've only seen each other a few times. We're not even friends, let alone buddies! Furthermore, even if he is a friend of mine, I would not let him off either if he offended you!"

Matthew smiled when he heard that. Petting President Ramsey's shoulder, he then said, "You are indeed a straightforward person, President Ramsey. Well, it's not a big deal, but he just humiliated my mother-in-law and even attacked me. Since this is your territory, I'll let you handle him!"

"Certainly, Mr. Larson!" President Ramsey responded immediately, a bright light flashing in his eyes.

"Certainly, Mr. Larson!" President Ramsey responded immediately, a bright light flashing in his eyes.

He then turned to face the bald man. "How dare you enrage Mr. Larson, you bastard? You're tired of living, aren't you?"

Hearing that, the bald man turned pale and with his mouth trembling, he muttered, "Robbie, I... I don't know who Mr. Larson is. I'm not sure who Mr. Larson is. I wouldn't have done that if I hadn't known he was your friend! It's true! Please give me a second chance. I'll never do the same thing again."

As he spoke, he almost fell to his knees.

But that didn't appeal to President Ramsey at all. He motioned with his hand and said, "Come on. Take this b*stard away."

A few strong men then appeared and took the bald man away without saying anything.

Adele, on the other hand, was trembling as she stood off to one side. She didn't even dare to open her mouth.

Helen immediately pointed to her and said, "This sharp-tongued lady, too! She just scolded me as well, saying that we are all shameless swindlers."

To that, President Ramsey immediately responded, "Oh my, there's even such a thing? Don't worry, Mrs. Cunningham. I'll provide you with a satisfactory explanation!"

He then motioned with his hand again for his men to drag Adele away.

"Certainly, Mr. Lorson!" President Ramsey responded immediately, a bright light flashing in his eyes.

Everyone ignored Adele no matter how much she yelled and cried.

Both the bold mon ond Adele were brought to the security office, which wos under President Romsey's control.

And os soon os they wolked in, they were pushed to the floor, not even given o chonce to stond comfortobly.

The bold mon knew o few of the men here. As o result, he ottempted to persuode them. With o pitiful expression, he soid, "Why do we need to be like this since we oll know eech other? Con oll of you pleod to President Romsey on my behalf? I'll owe you oll big time, olright?"

One of the men shook his heed in response. "You'd better give up on thot. We could, perhaps, help you if it's regording other motters. But this time, not even President Romsey hos o soy. If he doesn't teoch you o lesson, he won't be oble to justify himself in front of Mr. Lorson!"

The bold mon's eyes widened in shock upon heering thot. He wos completely depressed ot this moment.

Who exoctly is this Motthwe Lorson thot even President Romsey hos to justify himself?

After o brief moment of silence, the bold mon gritted through clenched teeth "Who is this Mr. Lorson? Please tell me! At leost let me rest in peece!"

Everyone ignored Adele no matter how much she yelled and cried.

Her beauty, which she was always proud of, was now completely useless.

Both the bald man and Adele were brought to the security office, which was under President Ramsey's control.

And as soon as they walked in, they were pushed to the floor, not even given a chance to stand comfortably.

The bald man knew a few of the men here. As a result, he attempted to persuade them. With a pitiful expression, he said, "Why do we need to be like this since we all know each other? Can all of you plead to President Ramsey on my behalf? I'll owe you all big time, alright?"

One of the men shook his head in response. "You'd better give up on that. We could, perhaps, help you if it's regarding other matters. But this time, not even President Ramsey has a say. If he doesn't teach you a lesson, he won't be able to justify himself in front of Mr. Larson!"

The bald man's eyes widened in shock upon hearing that. He was completely depressed at this moment.

Who exactly is this Matthew Larson that even President Ramsey has to justify himself?

After a brief moment of silence, the bald man gritted through clenched teeth "Who is this Mr. Larson? Please tell me! At least let me rest in peace!"

All of the men around him exchanged glances, and one of them opened his mouth. "Mr. Larson's identity is also unknown to us. But I can tell you that last night, President Ramsey knelt beside Mr. Larson while he ate dinner, simply because President Ramsey had offended Mr. Larson's wife and parents-in-law."

But I can tell you that last night, President Ramsey knelt beside Mr. Larson while he ate dinner, simply because President Ramsey had offended Mr. Larson's wife and parents-in-law."

That nearly caused the bald man's jaw to drop. President Ramsey is such a prominent figure, yet he knelt for the entire night?

Who exactly is this Matthew Larson?

Another man quickly chimed in, "Not only that, that matter might not have been resolved if Mester Mershell had not personally pleaded for President Ramsey!"

The bald man was completely taken aback. "Mester... Mester Mershell knows Mr. Larson as well?" he asked in a trembling voice.

The men beside him sneered at that. "What's more, even Mester Mershell has to be respectful to Mr. Larson. Hey, you've picked a terrible target to bully. I heard that even the masters of the Ten Greatest Families have to be respectful and polite to Mr. Larson. Who are you to challenge him? And you even laid your hands on him? You must be tired of living!"

Chapter 1438

When the bald man heard that, he immediately collapsed to the floor.

When the bald man heard that, he immediately collapsed to the floor.

He did not even dare to provoke President Ramsey, let alone Master Marshall or the Ten Great Families.

He totally could not comprehend how great the figure that he had offended was!

Even President Ramsey had to kneel for the entire night, so he dared not think about his future.

Adele, on the other hand, was utterly pale at this point.

The entire incident was caused by her, who mocked Lynn in order to show off her superiority to her classmate.

But she had never expected the people beside Lynn to be such powerful figures.

When Adele saw them with Lynn, she didn't take them seriously because she assumed they were merely Lynn's relatives.

However, it turned out that she had offended such a big shot. She really brought all this upon herself!

If she had known about the situation earlier, she would have tried to get close to Lynn. Goodness knows that she might even have gotten something out of it.

But it was too late now.

The most important thing now was to deal with the situation at hand.

Thinking about the fact that she would meet her doom when President Ramsey returned, she trembled in fear.

Meanwhile, President Ramsey had brought Matthew and the others to Building No. 1.

When they arrived at the building, they finally realized why said building had the highest value.

Though it was only a low-leveled bungalow, it had the best location in the entire neighborhood.

In front of it was a massive man-made lake, which provided the most beautiful scenery in the area.

In front of it was a massive man-made lake, which provided the most beautiful scenery in the area.

Whereas beneath it was a large garden, which was attached exclusively to Building No. 1.

Everything about it was top-notch, including the lighting, exterior architecture and interior design.

Everyone was drawn to its surroundings even before they entered the door.

"The surroundings are excellent. It is comparable to The Grand Garden," Helen said.

James nodded in agreement. It was uncommon for the surroundings of a small neighborhood to be comparable to those of a villa.

President Ramsey also smiled patronizingly. He then introduced the surroundings and facilities in the surrounding area before leading them into Building No. 1.

When they entered, they noticed that the building had been renovated. All of the immovable decorations had been completed, leaving only the furniture and electrical appliances to be moved in.

That surprised Helen. "Did someone live here previously? Why is the interior all done?"

In response, President Ramsey waved his hand and explained, "You've misunderstood, Mrs. Cunningham. This is a new place with no previous residents. I purchased this building with the intention of establishing a clubhouse to host gatherings of friends. As a result, I've renovated it. However, it was never used."

"That's great." Satisfied, Helen nodded.

"That's great." Satisfied, Helen nodded.

"You must have spent a bomb on the renovation."

"Not much." President Ramsey waved his hand and answered. "The most important thing is that all of you like it."

James and Helen were satisfied with it. Lynn, however, was stunned. She had never seen such a beautiful house before.

Matthew, on the other hand, couldn't care less about this place. This place, no matter how nicely decorated, would never be as good as Lakeside Garden.

But the most important thing now was to ensure President Ramsey's submission to him.

In the future, President Ramsey and Thomas would be working for Matthew in Eastshire.

President Ramsey followed all of them to each and every corner of the building. From their repeated nodding, it was clear that James and Helen liked this place.

Noticing that, President Ramsey heaved a deep breath of relief. Finally, his life was safe now.

He then accompanied them to the main entrance where he smiled and asked, "Mr. Larson, if there are no modifications to be made to the renovation inside, shall I arrange for my men to move the furniture and electrical appliances in?"

Hearing that, Helen immediately stared at him. As if she found it embarrassing, she said, "I suppose that's a little inappropriate. We are the ones living here, and we should buy the furniture and electrical appliances ourselves..."

Chapter 1439

President Ramsey hurriedly told her, "Please don't hold back, Mrs. Campbell. All these furniture and appliances don't cost a lot, anyway. Just think of them as both a token of my sincerity and a housewarming present from me. You don't have to worry if it would look good at your new place either. I pre-ordered them way earlier, so they will definitely look like one with the interior!"

At that, Helen and James smilingly turned to look at each other. They were well aware that Matthew was the reason why President Ramsey was so thorough and meticulous.

But then again, they were comfortable enough with the arrangement.

The man definitely wouldn't have bought cheap furniture and appliances for a place. As such, it could easily have cost at least tens of millions for the furnishing of the building.

Of course, Helen and James were more than glad to be able to save their money.

President Ramsey then made a phone call, and it didn't take long before several trucks arrived and came to a stop in front of the building. All of them were here to deliver goods.

The trucks were loaded with all kinds of furniture and home appliances. The couple could tell at a glance that all of them carried a hefty price tag.

After all, President Ramsey had initially planned to make this place a club. There was no way he would buy something cheap for the place.

The furniture, which were made of quality solid wood, were worth millions.

The appliances were relatively cheaper but still, he had only bought the best ones.

The appliances were relatively cheaper but still, he had only bought the best ones.

Together, it was the sum that far exceeded Helen and James' expectations. These must be worth more than one million altogether.

After those workers moved in all the things President Ramsey had purchased, the house immediately felt like a completely different one.

Lynn couldn't help but feel admiration bubbling within her as she gazed at the spacious and comfortable place. She couldn't even dream of such a house.

Helen's eyes suddenly fell on Lynn, after which she said, "Right, Lynn. Go ahead and pick a suite for yourself."

Upon hearing that, Lynn waved her hands quickly as her eyes widened. "Mrs. Cunningham, this... this isn't right. I am already blessed to be able to work for you. I-I... How could I live in such a luxurious house? It would be inappropriate..."

Helen only smiled before she replied, "Oh—don't hold back. I will tell you something. Not only will you live here, the other employees of the pharmacy will also live here in the future. I have discussed this with James, and we have decided to make this the dormitory for our pharmacy's staff. It also saves us from having to go to other places to rent a house as a dormitory. We are killing two birds with one stone with this."

"Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, you..." Lynn's voice quivered, her eyes still staring ahead in shock. "You are making this luxurious place the staff dormitory?"

"What's wrong? Is this not alright?" Helen smiled.

"What's wrong? Is this not alright?" Helen smiled.

Lynn hurriedly explained, "No, I... I mean, how can the staff live in such a luxurious house? Mrs. Cunningham, the staff rented shabby houses outside where the monthly rent is only two or three thousand. The rent in a house like this could be at least 10,000 per month if you rented it. It would be such a waste to use such a house as a staff dormitory!"

"What is there to waste by having our employees live in your own house?" James commented. "We will definitely treat you well as you deserve as long as you are hardworking at work! Besides, we are older than you, so of course we have to take care of you." He then added, "Alright now, Lynn. You can choose a suite to stay in. By the way, leave the top floor empty. That way Helen and I will have a place to stay when we come to the capital in the future."

Her eyes had turned moist at this point. Working with the couple had given her a sense of familial warmth that she had never felt before.

Seshe, who had her arms wrapped around Matthew's arm, also felt a gush of emotion as she looked on. In a hushed voice, she whispered to Matthew, "Matthew, Dad and Mom have become much kinder than they were before!"

He only nodded with a small smile on his face. He hadn't expected Helen and James to change, but this was an outcome that pleased him nonetheless.

Chapter 1440

Matthew and a few other people had already rushed over to University Town in Eastshire on Saturday morning.

Matthew and a few other people had already rushed over to University Town in Eastshire on Saturday morning.

Lynn had caught wind that there was a job recruitment fair in town that day.

Therefore, James and Helen decided to take the chance to recruit a group of employees here.

Sasha had to go and meet a few suppliers today, while James and Helen were going to the renovation company to discuss the renovation.

The only one available among them was Matthew, so he was the one tasked on this errand to handle the recruitment.

Fortunately, with Lynn's help, the duo managed to finish decorating the place after going at it for more than an hour.

After they were done cleaning up, she hurried to the front to hand out flyers, leaving Matthew to sit here alone for the recruitment.

It was about 10 AM when the other recruiting companies started entering the venue one after another.

Compared with the grand decorations of other companies, the table temporarily set up by Matthew and Lynn definitely couldn't compare.

The difference was especially stark when two big companies that were well-known in Eastshire came and did their set-up beside Matthew. The decoration of their tables was extremely fancy.

Matthew's table only looked more shabby than it already did, sandwiched between the two.

The recruiters of the two companies looked at Matthew, and they couldn't hide the sneer on their faces.

One of them, a man in his thirties who looked like he was the supervisor, even mocked Matthew to his face, "Buddy, did you come here to be made fun of? This is a college student recruitment fair. Those who come here are either big companies or big businesses. Why are you here to join in the fun when you are only a small pharmacy? Let me tell you, the students who have just graduated have standards, alright? They don't care about smaller companies, let alone your small pharmacy! I suggest you have a look at a nursing school. You might end up recruiting a few there!"

Several people immediately started laughing as well.

Several people immediately started laughing as well.

Remain unperturbed by their taunting, Matthew only glanced at him as he shortly said, "Don't let me bother you. We don't plan to recruit fresh graduates anyway."

The supervisor couldn't help but freeze in surprise after hearing that. "Who are you recruiting here, if not college students? Farm workers? You have gone to the wrong place, then!"

Another round of laughter roared out again from the crowd. Their faces were full of ridicule for Matthew.

Matthew's expression remained indifferent. He then said slowly, "I am here this time to recruit students who have their masters or doctorate degree."

After hearing that, everyone around was stunned for a moment before they started to chortle.

The supervisor pointed at Matthew and laughed so hard he was shaking back and forth. "Dude, it is not that I look down on you. It is just that...you really want to recruit masters and doctorate holders for your small pharmacy? Let's not talk about masters and doctors today. How about you win if you can recruit more than three undergraduates, yeah?"

Several people immediately started laughing as well.

Rather unperturbed by their taunting, Matthew only glanced at him as he shortly said, "Don't let me bother you. We don't plan to recruit fresh graduates anyway."

Another round of laughter roared out again from the crowd. Their faces were full of ridicule for Matthew.

Matthew's expression remained indifferent. He then said slowly, "I am here this time to recruit students who have their masters or doctorate degree."

After hearing that, everyone around was stunned for a moment before they started to chortle.

The supervisor pointed at Matthew and laughed so hard he was shaking back and forth. "Dude, it is not that I look down on you. It is just that...you really want to recruit masters and doctorate holders for your small pharmacy? Let's not talk about masters and doctors today. How about you win if you can recruit more than three undergraduates, yeah?"

Several people immediately started laughing as well.

Rather unperturbed by their taunting, Matthew only glanced at him as he shortly said, "Don't let me bother you. We don't plan to recruit fresh graduates anyway."

The supervisor couldn't help but freeze in surprise after hearing that. "Who are you recruiting here, if not college students? Farm workers? You have gone to the wrong place, then!"

The supervisor gritted his teeth and suddenly yelled, "If you want to win, I will call you my father 3 times. If you lose—" He let out a harrumph and growled, "—you can call me your dad 3 times! Do you dare bet with me?"

Matthew threw him a glance at that. "We don't even know each other to have any sort of grudge, right? What is the point of us doing this?"

"What, are you scared?" The supervisor let out a hysterical laugh. "It is not too late to admit defeat now if you are brave enough to make the bet!"

Matthew only sighed in response. "I was just thinking that we don't have to take it this far since we have no grudges with one another. However, since you insist, I can only play the game with you!"
