

Chapter 101 Bloody Handsome

Seeing that Brea was looking out curiously, Celia followed her gaze to the door, but she saw no one. Celia couldn't help but say with confusion, "Brea, I didn't see anyone though."

Unwilling to give up, Brea stood up and chased after Tyson, but he had already stepped into the exclusive elevator.

Brea looked at the CEO's exclusive elevator which was slowly rising, which meant that she was right. The CEO had really come to the canteen just now, but he probably didn't want them to know as he just stood at the door for a while before leaving.

She returned to her seat with a thoughtful expression. "I think I was wrong. After all, it's impossible for Mr. Reyes to come to the canteen."

In her mind, she was sure that the CEO had come, but she didn't tell Celia the truth.

Before she knew the relationship between him and Celia, she didn't want to assume anything or expose him.

However, Celia was curious about the CEO who doubled her salary. She turned to Derek and asked, "Derek, how long have you been in the company? Have you ever seen Mr. Reyes before?"

Derek took a sip of coffee and answered seriously, "It's only been a while since I started working here. So, I haven't seen Mr. Reyes."

Then, he glanced at Brea and smiled. "Only the senior executives and Miss Duffy can see Mr. Reyes occasionally in the company, right?"

Brea nodded. "Mr. Reyes's character is strange and mysterious. Only the senior executives and some stars, including me have seen his face. But let me tell you, he's so bloody handsome!"

Her words aroused Celia's curiosity even more. She rubbed her nose and asked in doubt, "Is Mr. Reyes really that handsome?"

Raising her eyebrows, Brea asked, "Don't you believe my taste in beauty?"

Wait, I just remembered I have a picture with Mr. Reyes. Do you want to have a look?"

Celia nodded. "Let me have a look. I'm a little curious."

Brea took out her phone and looked through it for a while. Then, she frowned and said, "I'm sorry, Cece. The photo is not in this phone. But I've printed it and put it at home. I'll show it to you some other day."

"It's okay. Don't bother."

Brea patted her chest and said, "It's not troublesome. I'll bring it over from home some other day. You will see that Mr. Reyes is more handsome than any star in the entertainment circle!"

Celia nodded and smiled, but she thought in her heart, 'No matter how handsome Mr. Reyes is, it has nothing to do with me. In my heart, Tyson is the most handsome man in the world!'

"By the way, Cece, let me invite you for lunch here next time when I'm free. You can't refuse me," Brea said excitedly.

Celia was flattered, but when she thought of the ridiculously expensive price of the food here, she was too embarrassed to accept Brea's invitation. She waved her hand and said, "I appreciate your kindness, but it will be too troublesome for you."

However, Brea insisted, "Don't refuse me. I've already considered you as my good friend. If you refuse, I will take it as you don't consider me as your real friend!"

Hearing this harmless threat, Celia didn't know if she should cry or laugh. She was defeated by Brea's straightforward personality.

"Then, I will accept it happily."

After the meal, Brea directly went back to the performing arts department to continue the shooting of jewelry endorsement, while Celia went back to the design department with Derek.

While they were working, Derek specially came to Celia's seat and asked, "Cece, what's the progress of the party dress you are designing for Brea? I don't mean to tell you what to do. I just want to track the progress."

"I have just finished the draft. You are here just in time. Can you help me check if there is any part that needs to improve?"

Sitting in her chair, Celia showed him her computer. Derek bent over to look at the draft carefully.

"Although it hasn't been colored yet, the design is already amazing. I didn't expect you to improve so much in the past few years while I was away. With your talent, I can say that you can even compete with many famous designers by now."

While Derek was praising Celia, he pressed the desk with one hand to support himself while reaching out with the other to point at the computer screen. He put his slender finger at a corner of the screen and gently tapped it. "Here, you can make some changes..."

During this interaction, Celia happened to be encircled within his arms. This scene gave the illusion of the two hugging each other if others looked from behind.

The smell of his perfume filled Celia's nose, and only then did she notice the ambiguous atmosphere between them.

With a frown, she tried to distance herself from him.

