

Chapter 156 Famous Stylists

Celia felt very embarrassed when she heard what Brea had to say.

However, Celia knew Brea and what Brea did was for Celia's benefit, so she walked forward in humiliation to introduce herself.

"Hello, everyone. Celia here. It's my pleasure to meet you."

She saw that most of the stylists in front of her were well-known in the entertainment industry. As stylists who helped design the appearances of characters in many successful shows and critically acclaimed films, many of them were talented and professional.

She could see right away that these stylists were full of themselves and looked down on her.

Even though they did not hold Celia, a lowly nobody in the circle, in high regard, most of them appeared to welcome her warmly because Brea placed so much value on Celia.

"Hi, I'm Patti Archer. Pleased to meet you. I'm hoping for a good working relationship with you." Celia was approached by a kind stylist at this point, who greeted her and shook her hand.

"It's great to meet you! I also hope it's going to be a pleasure to work with you." Patti received a warm grin from Celia.

No one could criticize Celia since she was so humble and kind. They showed enough respect to Celia in front of Brea.

After that, Patti took the initiative to show Celia the many style ideas Brea had tried on during the trial session.

"I've got the original pictures here. You'll be able to tell if there's an issue. You're free to bring it up. We'll revisit the problem."

Celia was quickly able to identify a flaw in the images.

Those clothes were so exquisite and opulent that they could surpass the jewelry.

The jewelry on Brea's body was luxurious. There was a good chance the audience wouldn't notice her jewelry if her outfit was very extravagant.

Celia arranged her words and spoke confidently, "Brea is filming a jewelry commercial this time, therefore the jewelry she wears should be the focal point, not her cosmetics or attire.

Setting off the costly jewelry with lavish style is, in my opinion, a wrong move. The greatest method to bring out the best in each other is in a complementary fashion. The opulent jewelry should be highlighted by Brea's fashion sense. In the prior styling sets, the jewelry was overshadowed by how beautiful the outfits were. The photographs' impact was poor since no one would notice her jewelry."

Several stylists nodded, and Patti concurred with her, saying, "That couldn't sound more correct."

She commended Celia by saying, "Your point seems to be the solution we might be needing. You are very professional."

The rest of the people agreed. There was just one person who wasn't happy with Celia's statements, and that was Emory Russell.

"You're a newbie here. Do you have any idea what you are saying? This brand's jewelry has always been regarded as magnificent and opulent. How can the quality of the jewelry be shown if Brea's outfit isn't beautiful and noble enough?"

Some of the stylists backed her up on this one.

"Emory is right. The outfit's lack of opulence might cause the brand to believe that we aren't putting enough effort into this endeavor.

Brea, on the other hand, is well-known for her stunning sense of fashion. Suddenly changing her style may not be the best idea."

Emory was more confident when she realized that someone had the same thought as her and added, "Your name is Celia, right? Well, although Brea said we should respect you, I would want to reiterate that you should not act as if you fully comprehend the situation and should not attempt to direct our course of action.

You don't have a lot of prior work experience, which is a concern. What wisdom do you possess?"

Everyone in this room brings a wealth of knowledge to the table. It is not your place to point the finger at us."

"There you go. I have no idea who she is or what she does. How does she know what we should do? Is she deserving of this?" someone said.

"Shut the hell up!" Brea's patience was becoming thin, seeing Emory and a slew of stylists intimidate Celia.

Then she added, "I'm the one who hired her! Come to my lounge if you have any questions or concerns about it. This argument is over. Let Cece pick the clothing and style it according to her concept."

