

Chapter 176 Coveting The Woman Of The CEO

Briar stood outside the design department, looking at Celia and thinking for a long time. He didn't know how to explain this to his boss when he went back.

The CEO had asked him to come outside the design department to see how Celia was doing.

However, he was so unlucky. What he saw was Celia was pricked by a needle and Derek held her hand worriedly and wiped the blood on her wound.

Briar pondered for a long time. Finally, he glanced at Celia, who was busy working and returned to the CEO's office to report to Tyson.

As soon as he entered the office, Tyson, who was reading some documents, raised his head and asked, "How is it?"

At first, Briar answered smoothly.

"Celia is doing fine in the design department. I heard that Brea took her to the performing arts department this morning, and she is now sewing Brea's dress. Just now, she was surrounded by her colleagues because of her excellent embroidery skills. But..."

Briar's voice trailed off. He didn't dare to go on because he hadn't figured out how to say it without triggering Tyson's anger.

But Tyson didn't give him time to think about it. He asked with a cold face, "But what?"

Since Tyson had asked, Briar had to tell the truth.

"Celia was accidentally pricked by a needle and hurt her finger. Derek seemed to be very worried about her. He held her hand to check her wound and asked why she was being so careless. He said that for designers, hands were very important.

However, Celia quickly withdrew her hand and kept a distance from him. But it seemed that some colleagues misunderstood their relationship. But I saw that Derek was unilaterally good to Celia. She didn't respond and deliberately kept a distance from him."

Although Briar had chosen what he thought was the most objective and gentle wordings to relate what had happened, Tyson's face still got darker and darker.

"Derek held Celia's hand?" Tyson asked through gritted teeth.

"Send someone to keep an eye on Derek. If your man finds out that he has an ulterior motive for getting close to Celia, fire him directly."

Briar was stunned for a moment. Then he said in a somewhat weak tone, "But Derek is the manager of the design department. Is it appropriate to fire him just like that? And his contract with our company hasn't expired yet."

Tyson's eyes were full of anger and as sharp as a knife. He glared at Briar.

"Is it inappropriate to fire him if he dares to covet my woman?"

Briar immediately lowered his head and agreed, "Yes, sir, you are right."

He couldn't help but sigh inwardly. His boss could do crazy things for Celia's sake.

No woman had made Tyson lose the distinction between private and public affairs like this before.

Briar didn't dare to stay any longer. Afraid that his words might offend Tyson, he made an excuse and left.

As soon as Briar closed the door, Tyson picked up his phone and sent Celia a message.

"Honey, what are you doing right now? How are your injuries? Are you feeling better now?"

His careless girl had been hurt a lot recently. First, her hand was scalded by coffee. Then she was kidnapped and injured by Abbott. And now, she was hurt while doing hand embroidery.

He was afraid that she would get hurt somewhere else again if she wasn't careful enough. This would really make him feel sad.

When Celia heard her phone vibrate, she glanced at it and found it was a message from Tyson. She immediately put her work down, picked it up, and read the message.

She replied, "I'm busy with work. Don't worry. Those are minor injuries. I'm in good health, and I don't feel anything for a long time." After a while, Tyson replied, "That's good. How's your work today? Have you experienced any sexual harassment in the workplace? If a male boss is harassing you, you must tell me and let me deal with it." After reading this message, Celia was confused.

Why was he asking this question all of a sudden? Did he know what happened here just now?

Celia subconsciously thought of what Derek did today.

Derek was her male boss. Although he didn't really harass her, he still caused her some trouble.

Did Tyson have a telepathic connection with her and know what happened to her?

