

Chapter 179 Someone Who Could Make Him Fall In Love

Tyson had been standing at the door of the operating room, waiting for more than half an hour now. During this period, he kept looking at his watch again and again.

"My goodness! Will you please stop looking at your watch? The operation won't be done so soon."

Tyson glared at Wayne and asked coldly, "How long will this operation take?"

Wayne thought for a while and said, "If nothing goes wrong, it will take about three or four hours."

He put away his phone, stood up from the bench, and patted Tyson on the shoulder. "Don't worry, buddy. I've asked my uncle to arrange the best specialist for Flavia. This doctor has done countless kidney transplant operations. He is absolutely authoritative.

Besides, this kind of operation is just a piece of cake for him. So she will be fine, and Cece won't have to worry about anything."

Tyson just said lightly, "It better be."

"Hey, don't you trust me?" Wayne started chattering again. "By the way, why didn't you bring Cece here today? She doesn't know about Flavia's surgery, right?"

Tyson said, "Cece is busy at work today. And yes, she doesn't know about this yet. But I plan to tell her after the operation is over. I want to surprise her."

Wayne teased, "You've really changed a lot after you got married. You even made so many twists and turns for Flavia's surgery for the sake of your wife.

As far as I can remember, you used to focus on only your career. Now, because of Cece, I feel like I don't recognize you anymore. People who don't know the truth may think you are possessed."

"I like doing this for her." Tyson's face was cold as usual, but his eyes were full of joy.

"After meeting Cece, I feel that I am living like a human."

"A man trapped in love is so strange. Good thing I'm not like you. I won't fall in love with a woman all my life," Wayne said, as the corners of his mouth twitched.

He shrugged and complained, "Women are simply creatures linked to trouble. I just want to make money. I don't want to be bound by any woman. Mr. CEO, you are screwed. You are doomed this time."

Tyson looked at him and smiled, which was rare to see. "You just haven't met someone you like. If you meet her one day, maybe you won't say that."

Wayne just rolled his eyes.

"I don't believe in true love. And even if there is, I can't possibly come across it."

As he spoke, he looked like a poor boy who had been hurt by love.

Tyson didn't say anything more about it. He just said, "I have something to deal with in the company, so I have to go back now. Remember to inform me when Flavia's surgery ends. Please take care of everything here."

Wayne patted his chest. "You can count on me."

After Tyson left, Wayne also left after arranging everything and asking his people to keep an eye on the operating room.

He had to go to a hotel to discuss cooperation with a client now.

As soon as he got into his newly bought sports car, he inexplicably remembered what Tyson said just now.

Instead of starting the car, Wayne lit a cigarette and leaned against the window, lost in thought.

As a young member of the Evans family and a good-looking man, he never lacked women's pursuit since he was young.

Outsiders thought he was a playboy who changed girlfriends more often than he changed cars. But actually, he just had a few romantic relationships back in school. Never had he played with any woman's affections.

Wealthy families were full of schemes. And the marriage lives of his parents and relatives had already made him lose interest in love. Moreover, women around him had only approached him for one purpose since he was young, and that was money. He realized long ago that if he didn't have money, he might be nothing in their eyes.

Over the years, he only had Tyson as a friend. Because the purpose of others in making friends with him was always not so simple.

Recently, his father often persuaded him to find a woman, settle down, and have children. However, Wayne still didn't know where that woman was.

He once thought that it was good to live a life without love for a lifetime.

But Tyson's words just now caused ripples in his calm heart.

Would he really meet someone who could make him fall in love one day?

