

Chapter 230 The Performance Of Wayne

Wayne was amused by Raul's harsh words. He didn't expect that even a nobody would dare to threaten him.

A sneer curled his lips as he fought not to laugh in Raul's face. "I've been living for more than twenty years and I've never been afraid of anyone."

When Raul realized that Wayne had no intention of giving in, he started bluffing in the hopes of frightening him.

"You brat, have you ever heard of Mr. Griffin's name? He is a big shot in the entertainment industry. Few people dare to offend him. If you don't know what's good for you, I'll tell Mr. Griffin and let him punish the two of you together!"

Raul glanced at Brea and said to Wayne, "Let Brea go back with me as soon as possible, or I can't guarantee that you will leave the hotel alive."

Wayne, however, was unmoved by the threat. The only thing he wanted to do was protect Brea. "Do you have any idea who Brea is?" he asked in a low growl.

Disdain dripped from Raul's voice as he replied in a haughty tone, "Of course I do. She is a C-list female star."

His arrogance made Wayne roll his eyes.

"You're very ignorant, aren't you? Brea is from the Duffy family, which is on par with the Shaw family. You do know that the Shaw family is the most powerful family in Hosworth, don't you? And you have the temerity to hurt Brea? You certainly don't value your life, do you?"

Brea was embarrassed by Wayne's proclamation. She grabbed the sleeve of his shirt and pulled it urgently. "You are exaggerating. My family is not that powerful. We only have a small reputation in the upper class of Hosworth, nothing even remotely close to the reach of the Shaw family," she whispered when he moved closer to her.

"Of course I know that!" Wayne glared at her and said in a low voice, "Don't say anything now. Just watch my performance."

The corners of Brea's mouth twitched.

The Duffy family were indeed rich, but their wealth was still a far cry from that of the Shaw family. If Wayne's lies got exposed, then it could be embarrassing for the two of them.

As expected, Raul didn't believe what Wayne said and was not intimidated by him. "Bullshit! How could Duffy family be compared to Shaw family? Even Evans family is just a close second to the Shaw family."

However, Wayne laughed and said, "You are really ignorant! Haven't you heard of it? The reason why Brea still has so many work opportunities even though she is not famous is because the Duffy family has a high status and everyone in the entertainment industry has to respect her."

Brea was embarrassed and unconvinced.

Many people thought that she depended on her family to get those opportunities when the truth was that she had obtained them herself.

Although she was not very popular, she had an outstanding appearance and good acting skills. So she could always get a lot of work opportunities.

Wayne's imposing manner was eventually having the desired effect. Slowly but surely, Raul was beginning to doubt himself and what he thought he knew of Brea.

He had once heard a rumor that Brea seemed to have many resources and had a strong family background.

But when he thought of Mr. Griffin's horrible face and terrible temper, he forced himself to be tough.

After all, no matter how powerful the Duffy family was, it had nothing to do with him. However, Mr. Griffin could decide he had a job or not.

He stared at Wayne and said, "Don't even try to intimidate me. If she were really as powerful as you said, Mr. Griffin wouldn't have dared to try and have sex with her. Besides, she wouldn't have escaped in the manner she did just now if she had a powerful family to protect her. And in any case, no matter how powerful she really is, she is not as powerful as Mr. Griffin." Raul snorted.

With a disdainful smile, Wayne retorted without hesitation, "Who is Mr. Griffin exactly? I haven't even heard of his name. The Duffy family is at least famous in the industry."

"Who do you think you are? You don't deserve to know Mr. Griffin's name!" Raul scolded with a red face.

He was about to scold Wayne again when he heard a sound behind him. He turned around to find the other assistant, Huey, rushing over with two bodyguards!
