

Chapter 303 Tyson's Suppor

Tyson didn't immediately answer Hobson's question. He wanted to tell Hobson the truth. But he knew that if he did, Danilo and Mack would hold a grudge against him.

He still had no way to completely bring them down, so it was best not to have any conflict with them for the time being. Besides, he brought Celia back to the Shaw family's house today only to see his grandfather, not to cause hatred.

Tyson thought for a while. Then he looked at Hobson and said, "It was my decision to leave the Shaw family. Dad didn't treat me badly when you were abroad. But I wanted to be independent, so I left the house."

Upon hearing this, Danilo quickly chimed in, "That's right, Dad. At first, I didn't want Tyson to leave. But he said that he didn't want to rely on the Shaw family all the time and wanted to make a living on his own, so I agreed."

He tried to dispel Hobson's doubts.

But Hobson was still skeptical. He squinted his eyes and said, "But I've heard some rumors recently that Tyson was kicked out from the Shaw family. I've already been a little suspicious. Today, I'm even more confused after hearing what Doreen said. Which is true? Your words or the rumors?"

It was Tyson who spoke up. He said flatly, "Grandpa, since you said those were rumors, you should know that rumors can't be trusted."

It was rare for Doreen to side with Tyson. This time, she explained, "Grandpa, forget what I said. I was talking nonsense just now. How could Tyson be kicked out of the Shaw family? We all know how much you dote on him, so who will dare to do that? Anyone who does something like that will surely be beaten to death by you."

Hobson was finally convinced by her words. His expression softened when he looked at Doreen and said, "What are you talking about? You made it sound like I have a bad temper. How can I beat people to death just like that?"

Then he held Tyson's hand and said lovingly, "Although Tyson's mother wasn't married to Danilo, Tyson is a good boy. I have seen that. So, I hope everyone can treat him well and won't have any prejudice against him."

His sharp eyes swept the crowd and he continued, "Tyson is kind-hearted, and he won't say anything even if someone mistreats him. But my eyes are keen. I'm just old, not dead. As long as I'm still alive, no one can bully him."

Tyson was a little moved, so he smiled and said, "Grandpa, don't worry. No one treats me badly."

Tyson's words made Hobson smile again. He nodded and said, "That's good then."

Then he turned to Doreen and glared at her. "Doreen, I know you are the princess of the Welch family, and you have been spoiled since you were a child. No matter how rude you have been since you married into the Shaw family, I have always tolerated you for the sake of your father. But from now on, you'd better behave yourself. I don't want this incident to happen again."

Doreen could tell that Hobson was serious this time. She was afraid that the good relationship between the Welch family and the Shaw family would be affected, so she gave in and said, "You are right, Grandpa. I'm sorry. It won't happen again."

"All right. Everything's settled now." Hobson smiled with satisfaction. "What are you still standing there for? Let's continue eating."

The Shaw family continued their dinner. Rosalie took the lead to ease the atmosphere, and everyone gradually relaxed. Whatever grudges they held against each other, they temporarily put them aside and pretended to be happy for Hobson's sake.

Danilo breathed a sigh of relief. He was glad that he had a good wife, and Tyson was a sensible man.

If Tyson had said something negative about him, he would really teach Tyson a good lesson.

Mack looked at Tyson and feigned a flattering smile. He also couldn't help thinking that Tyson was sensible.

In his eyes now, Tyson was a useless coward who could not be a threat to him. But if Celia got pregnant, it would be a problem.

He didn't know what could happen next.

