Tyson kept kissing Celia on the forehead and comforted her, "I trust you. I will always trust you."

After a long time, Celia finally calmed down.

She got up from Tyson's arms and wiped away her tears. She regained her composure and looked lovingly into his eyes. "Tyson, do you have anything else you want to ask me? I'll answer whatever questions you have," said Celia meekly.

Tyson looked at her with tender eyes and shook his head.

He kissed her forehead again to soothe her heart.

Despite Tyson's reassurance, Celia still felt a little uneasy. She shifted her gaze away and asked, "Don't you have any doubts about me after hearing what my father just said?"

Tyson smiled, reached out his hand, and gently touched the tip of her nose. "Not at all. I will never doubt you. I know that Adrien must have been distorting the facts. I saw the way he treated you. He is not worthy of being your father, so I don't believe a single word he says."

Celia was so touched that her tears fell down again, "I won't hide anything from you anymore. I will tell you the whole story."

Tyson nodded.

Although he already figured out the entire truth, he was waiting for the day when Celia would finally open up to him.

The fact that she was finally willing to tell him the truth filled his heart with indescribable happiness.

With her throat dry from all the crying, Celia took a sip of warm water to moisten her throat. She then explained the whole story of her marriage to Tyson from the beginning to the present.

"Do you remember that time when I searched for the information on an auction online? It was actually because the sapphire ring that the auction house is selling was an inheritance from my mother. She wanted me to take it back. In order to fulfill her last wish, I promised to marry you as a substitute bride."

Upon finishing her story, Celia solemnly apologized to Tyson, "I am very sorry, Tyson. I shouldn't have lied to you."

Tyson held her face gently, and she widened her eyes. He then pecked her lips and kissed her deeply.

After the kiss, he gazed into her eyes and said firmly, "I understand where you are coming from. You don't have to apologize to me. You have your own circumstances, and I understand that. Now that you are married to me, we should live our married life happily. That's all that matters."

Tyson held Celia in his arms tightly and continued, "As for your mother's ring, we will find a way to get it back together. Trust me, I won't let it fall into the hands of others."

Although Tyson repeatedly assured her that he didn't care about this matter, Celia was still a little guilty.

"Tyson, thank you for trusting me."

Tyson nodded, "Regardless of what you do, as long as it is you, I will always be understanding and forgive you."

In fact, he was the one who felt guiltier as he had a lot of secrets that he couldn't tell Celia.

If there was really a need for anyone to apologize, it should be him.

Moreover, he already knew that Celia was a substitute bride, but he feigned ignorance of the matter. In that sense, he was also lying to her.

Celia sank herself deeper into his arms and cuddled with him. They continued talking heart to heart.

She had never felt this relieved in her life.

Finally, she could live a life without secrets and fears. She would finally be free from the fear of Tyson finding out the truth and leaving.

When the two of them were deeply emotional and cuddling, Alita appeared by the doorway. She had just come upstairs after dealing with the uninvited guests from the Kane family.
