

Chapter 510 The Best Actor, Ronald

After his chat with Tyson over the phone, Wayne continued to enjoy his candlelit dinner with Brea.

He was a gentleman, pouring the wine and helping Brea cut her steak.

In his past relationships, his girlfriends had always been the ones who did such things to please him.

When he looked a little satisfied at their efforts, these women would then tell him about a handbag they'd spied or a beautiful piece of jewelry they'd seen a friend wearing.

They always said this flippantly, but he knew a hint when he heard one.

He would suggest shopping after dinner to these women.

At that idea, these women would try even harder to please him. Wayne couldn't help feeling bored by it.

Now, roles were reversed and, just like those women, he was trying to please Brea.

He had never considered what benefits he was getting from Brea. To be honest, he felt that serving her was enough.

The candlelight lent a warm glow to their surroundings. The atmosphere was romantic. Everything felt right.

What Wayne was looking forward to most was marrying Brea one day.

While Wayne and Brea were enjoying their meal, Tyson and Celia had just finished theirs.

After dinner, Celia proposed to take Alita home. Before they set out though, Alita unexpectedly received a phone call.

It was from her current boss, Ronald.

"Alita, come over to my house. I have something important to tell you."

Ronald hung up the phone without waiting for her response.

Alita gave a bitter look. "This is so annoying. I asked for leave today but he is still bothering me. I'm so furious!"

Celia asked, "What's wrong?"

Alita explained. Celia frowned and said, "But it's getting late now. Why does he want to see you at this hour? Can't you just go home and ignore him?"

Alita sighed helplessly, "I wouldn't dare. I have no savings. If he fires me, all I can do is cry."

She gave Tyson Ronald's address. "Please take me there."

Tyson nodded in agreement and set off in the direction of Ronald's house.

Along the way, Alita kept up a stream of complaints about Ronald. She said that he didn't consider his employees and she reiterated that she couldn't believe he was asking her to go to his house at night.

She didn't expect that when they arrived at the villa, she would see Ronald standing at the door, seemingly waiting for her.

Even in the dim light, his tall figure caught your eye.

Alita thought it was fortunate that the security for the villa area was so tight. If he stood here like this otherwise, he would definitely cause a sensation. She would then be the one to suffer.

Celia saw Ronald through the car window. She couldn't help commenting, "Ronald looks more handsome than in the videos. Aren't you in love with such a handsome man, Alita?"

Alita looked at Ronald in disdain. "What good is being handsome? No matter how handsome he is, I wouldn't fall in love with such a promiscuous and troublesome capitalist."

Hearing the conversation between the two of them, Tyson looked at Ronald and frowned.

He hadn't expected that Ronald was the important client who'd come to the Semshy Group to negotiate with him today.
