

Chapter 556 The Auction Was About To Start

Tyson and Celia made their way through the crowd and finally found their seats. They then sat down and waited patiently for the auction to start.

It seemed that many people didn't want their identities to be known as they wore masks to hide their faces. Some of the masks looked strange, while others looked beautiful.

It suddenly occurred to Celia that Tyson was wearing a mask too. She tugged his sleeve and asked cheekily, "These people seem like they're trying to hide their identities with their masks. Are you also trying to hide yours?"

Tyson was slightly stunned at Celia's comment. He became a little nervous and averted his eyes sideways while trying to come up with an excuse. However, just as he was about to explain, the lights in the hall suddenly dimmed.

A bright spotlight was then instantaneously cast on the stage.

The host in a well-tailored suit stepped onto the stage with a microphone under the spotlight. With a deep and magnetic voice, he welcomed the guests. "Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. Welcome to the auction. We will be bringing out the items on auction very shortly. So please, don't take your eyes off the stage!"

As soon as he finished, one by one, many rare and precious collectibles were taken out onto the stage.

There were beautiful jewelry, priceless antiques, rare paintings, and calligraphies.

Despite having multiple gorgeous items flashing in front of her, Celia had no interest in them. No matter how stunning and rare these collections were, they had nothing to do with her.

She was only looking forward to the last item of the auction, the memento her mother left her.

Her hands were trembling with anxiety as she fixed her eyes on the last box. Her mother's ring should be there.

She was really curious to know who would buy the ring and crossed her fingers in hopes that the buyer had a good personality.

"Honey, don't be nervous. You need to calm down," comforted Tyson as he noticed Celia trembling. He squeezed her hand and assured her that everything would be fine.

Celia nodded absent-mindedly and continued staring at the box.

"Calling once... Calling twice... And sold! Congratulations to Mr. Shaw who won this beautiful pink diamond necklace with eighty-nine million dollars!"

After the pink diamond necklace of great value and weight was sold and collected by Mack, the last item for auction finally made its official appearance.

The staff opened the box and carefully brought out a delicate glass box wrapped in a white veil.

Although the item hadn't been completely revealed, Celia could still recognize the silhouette of the familiar sapphire ring under the veil.

She felt overwhelmed with tears welling up in her eyes as she looked at the item onstage.

Especially when the host uncovered the veil to reveal the ring, she felt her heart in her mouth.

"To all our precious guests, sapphire is not very precious. However, we chose this sapphire ring as the last auction item today for a very special reason. This ring is entirely handmade. The technique used to inlay the sapphire is ingenious. You will never find a second ring like this even if you search the entire Earth! Furthermore, the sapphire used for this ring is not any ordinary sapphire. Experts have already identified that this is definitely one of the top five gemstones in the world."

Under the spotlight, the sapphire ring looked very perfect, mysterious, and elegant. Its color was as deep as the deep ocean.

The crowd started murmuring and the atmosphere became tense even before the bidding officially started.

Celia understood why the crowd was excited about the ring.

While it was true that sapphire wasn't the best among all the gemstones, Jenifer's ring was indeed very unique due to its size and unparalleled crafting techniques. In terms of design alone, there would never be another ring that could mimic its appearance. Furthermore, the ring suited anyone who wore it, even if the person was just an average Joe. The ring could highlight its wearer's personality and it matched well with any clothing style.

As expected, many women looked at the ring with desire, unable to shift their gaze away. They whispered to their

Chapter 556 The Auction Was About  +120 Points at most ring under the veil.

She felt overwhelmed with tears welling up in her eyes as she looked at the item onstage.

Especially when the host uncovered the veil to reveal the ring, she felt her heart in her mouth.

"To all our precious guests, sapphire is not very precious. However, we chose this sapphire ring as the last auction item today for a very special reason. This ring is entirely handmade. The technique used to inlay the sapphire is ingenious. You will never find a second ring like this even if you search the entire Earth! Furthermore, the sapphire used for this ring is not any ordinary sapphire. Experts have already identified that this is definitely one of the top five gemstones in the world."

Under the spotlight, the sapphire ring looked very perfect, mysterious, and elegant. Its color was as deep as the deep ocean.

The crowd started murmuring and the atmosphere became tense even before the bidding officially started.

Celia understood why the crowd was excited about the ring.

While it was true that sapphire wasn't the best among all the gemstones, Jennifer's ring was indeed very unique due to its size and unparalleled crafting techniques. In terms of design alone, there would never be another ring that could mimic its appearance. Furthermore, the ring suited anyone who wore it, even if the person was just an average Joe. The ring could highlight its wearer's personality and it matched well with any clothing style.

As expected, many women looked at the ring with desire, unable to shift their gaze away. They whispered to their

Chapter 556 The Auction Was About 🎁 +120 Points at most male companions hoping that their male companions could buy the ring for them.

Even Doreen, who had just received the expensive pink diamond necklace from Mack, was interested in the ring.

Celia felt conflicted as she saw so many people eyeing the ring.

With the ring being so popular, it would be tougher for her to get her ring back in the future.

A sense of animosity started brewing in the auction hall as everyone seemed to want the ring. While Celia was still lost in thought, the host announced, "Get ready everybody.
Because the bidding begins... Now!"