

Chapter 73 The Rich Were Willful

Tyson clicked on the name and saw Celia's photos and information. This had instantly confirmed his doubts.

Indeed, the woman he married was not Cerissa Kane. Her real name was Celia Kane.

Tyson's lips curved into a smile. He had almost guessed the ins and outs of the whole thing.

Most likely, the real Cerissa was frightened by his terrible reputation and refused to marry him. So the Kane family took the risk of replacing the bride with someone else.

But what he was more curious about now was who on earth Celia Kane was. Why did she willingly accept to be a substitute bride and marry a man she had never met before for Cerissa's sake?

He had to ask Briar later if the latter had found out the secrets of the Kane family.

He couldn't wait to know the entire story.

Seeing Tyson staring at the computer and smiling for a long time without saying a word, Brea felt a little confused and scared.

She had never seen him smile like this before.

Even if he made a one-billion-dollar business deal, he still looked stern. Therefore, even if he was a perfectly handsome man, she was not interested in him at all.

Now, she just wanted to run out of his office.

"Mr. Reyes, is there anything you want to talk to me about?"

Tyson restrained his emotions and returned to his usual cold and indifferent appearance.

"Did you hire a full-time designer?"

Brea nodded. "Yes. I was about to take her in to meet you, but your secretary stopped her."

She turned and glared at Emmitt, then continued, "She was the one who modified the dress that brought me on the top search list this time. Her talents in design are really extraordinary."

Tyson thought to himself, 'Of course, my wife is outstanding.'

"What's her name?" he asked expressionlessly.

"Celia Kane," Brea replied without hesitation. She blurted out, "Her name is beautiful. It's also easy to remember."

Now, Tyson was really sure that his wife's name was Celia Kane.

But he still looked calm and serious as usual. "I saw her information and her design work. I think she is very good. How much salary did you offer to her?"

"Her basic salary will be thirty thousand dollars. I think it's reasonable with her talent," Brea answered.

But she was not so confident when she said this.

She really believed that Celia deserved this salary. However, Celia's work experience was not that rich yet. Moreover, Celia's previous company was small and unknown. She wondered whether Tyson would think that the salary she offered to Celia was too high.

When Brea saw that Tyson remained silent, she thought he was not satisfied with the salary she offered to Celia.

So she said, "If you think the salary I offered her is inappropriate, we can talk about it again. But I think she is good. I really want to hire her. I can pay for part of her salary with my own income."

As soon as she finished her words, Tyson said directly, "Double the thirty thousand dollars."

Brea was stunned for a moment.

Although sixty thousand dollars was not worth mentioning for people like them, she never thought that Tyson would give such a high salary to a new employee who was not even famous in the design circle.

Were rich people really willful?

