

Chapter 739 Your Daughter

Tyson nodded in response to Hobson's beseeching look.

He had, after all, previously given Mack a lesson in the prison. Mack would endure a lot of suffering and spend the rest of his life behind bars. This was also a form of retaliation.

Additionally, Mack was Hobson's only biological grandson. The Shaw family would not have a descendant if he passed away.

In that case, Hobson couldn't enjoy a peaceful old age.

Outside the ward.

Celia sat in the chair and texted Brea.

"Brea, have you spoken to Nora? Did you explain things to her on my behalf?" As she awaited Brea's response, she heard a recognizable voice.

"Cece, what are you doing here?"

Celia looked up and saw Alec.

Smiling at him, she replied, "Tyson's grandpa is inside speaking to Tyson. I'm just taking a breather here and giving them privacy. Mr. Wagner, are you feeling better?"

Alec smiled and said, "My condition is good. I'll be discharged today. I came to see Mr. Hobson Shaw soon after hearing he is in the hospital."

Celia said, "Well, Mr. Wagner, would you mind joining me for a little while? Tyson and Hobson are conversing inside. I know they will take their time."

Alec nodded and sat next to her. After a brief pause, he asked, "Cece, how are things between you and Tyson? Do you think he is a qualified husband?"

His question caught Celia off guard. However, she nodded and replied, "Tyson treats me incredibly well. We've had a lot of shared experiences. I currently lead a content life with him."

Her face was beaming with bliss as she spoke of Tyson.

Alec, however, believed Tyson was fortunate to wed his daughter.

He couldn't help but belittle Tyson. "You are absolutely stunning, but he is disfigured. Don't you think you should look for a more attractive husband?"

Celia was a little peeved. She defended her husband. "Looking attractive is not important. I do not love Tyson for his face. I will still love him even if he is ugly and poor."

After realizing how much she loved Tyson, Alec didn't want to anger her, so he added, "You're correct. There are very few men in the world who love their wives the way he does."

Celia believed Alec was particularly kind to her and sensed his special feelings towards her.

Thinking of Tyson's remarks that she might be Alec's daughter, she couldn't help but ask him, "Mr. Wagner, have you ever gotten along with your daughter?"

Alec wanted to tell Celia she was his priceless daughter as he gave her a loving look. It was his goal to get along with her.

However, he lacked the courage. He feared that he would lose her forever if he revealed the truth to his daughter.

Thus he replied, "No, but I believe that I will. When I do, I'll do everything I can to make up for the past. I will give her whatever she asks for."

He spoke with a lot of regret and love for his lost daughter.

His words touched Celia deeply. "Mr. Wagner, I believe you will find your daughter," she reassured him.

"To be honest, I already found her," Alec said, looking into her firm eyes.

Celia was taken aback when she heard this. After all, the last time she talked to Alec about his daughter, he said he hadn't found her yet. But he now said he had already found her.

When Alec noticed Celia's shock, he quickly stated, "I just found her, but I haven't told her she's my daughter yet."

Alec was worried that Celia would hate him, so he explained, "It was my fault that I lost my daughter. I am afraid she would hate me and ignore me after I tell her. But even so, I deserve it."

Celia felt sad for Alec when she saw how worried he was. She immediately comforted him. "Please, Mr. Wagner, do not overthink it. As long as you didn't abandon your daughter on purpose, you can talk to her about it. I think she'll forgive you."

Alec's eyes glistened with anticipation as he heard this. He took advantage of the situation to inquire, "Cece, if... if it were you, would you forgive me?"

Celia was astounded. "I'm sorry, Mr. Wagner, I'm afraid I can't answer this question. I haven't encountered something like this, so I can't answer this question. Yet when I think of my biological father, who abandoned my mother and me, I can't forgive him."

When Alec heard this, he was disappointed.

Tyson's voice sounded from behind just then.

"Honey, we can leave now."

Tyson had been listening in on their chat. He gave Alec a meaningful look, walked over, held Celia's hand, and was going to leave.

Surprised, Celia asked, "Shouldn't I say goodbye to Hobson?"

Tyson remarked, shaking his head, "There is no need for that. I've already said goodbye."

Celia then waved goodbye to Alec before leaving the hospital.

Only after Celia had entered the elevator did Alec turn around and enter the ward.

Hobson was shocked to see Alec. "I wasn't expecting you to come to see me."

Alec sighed, trying to forget what had happened. He said with a smile, "We are in the same hospital. How can I not visit you?"

He sat on the side of the bed and continued talking to Hobson.

Celia was sitting in the car, checking her phone for a message from Brea. Tyson leaned forward and smiled. "Looking attractive is not important. I do not love Tyson for his face. I will still love him even if he is ugly and poor."

Celia had said these words to Alec.

Celia flushed when she realized Tyson had been eavesdropping at the door and remarked, "You are so bad! Why did you listen in on us? You shouldn't have done that!"

Tyson kissed Celia on the cheek and replied, "If I didn't eavesdrop, how could I have known that I am this special to you? You rarely say nice things to me. I'm surprised that you think so highly of me."

Celia, shy, replied firmly, "I was not lying. You're an incredible person. Otherwise, why should I be with you?"

Tyson thought that Celia would shyly change the subject, but he didn't expect her to praise him like that. His heart was suddenly overflowing with love.
