

Chapter 75 A Colleague Made Things Difficult For Her

Brea held Celia's hand, pulled her to the side, and whispered, "Mr. Reyes will double your salary."

Celia was stunned for a moment, unable to restrain the ecstasy in her heart.

"Wow! Really? Mr. Reyes is so nice."

She said this from the bottom of her heart. After all, she was really short of money, and doubling her salary was a big help.

Brea smiled and said, "Mr. Reyes knows how to appreciate talents. He likes your work. There will be many opportunities for you in the future. If you work hard, you will have a bright future here."

Celia was overjoyed. But of course, she didn't forget to thank Brea. "Thanks to you, I can have this opportunity."

Brea chuckled. "You're welcome, Cece. I also need you."

After saying this, she didn't forget to remind Celia, "But remember, don't tell anyone about this."

Celia nodded.

No matter which company she was in, it was taboo to disclose her salary at will. She would never do such a thing even if she was stupid.

But she was still confused. "Brea, do you know why Mr. Reyes decided to double my salary?"

Even if her design was good, how could the CEO notice her so soon and double her salary?

Was she just too lucky?

But actually, Brea was also confused. "I don't know what Mr. Reyes is thinking. But it's a good thing, isn't it?"

Celia thought for a while and agreed with Brea. She didn't bother to think about it anymore.

"You are right. And in return, I will work harder."

Brea took Celia's hand. "I'll take you to the design department, so you'll get familiar with your new working environment."

Brea's movements were so quick that Celia didn't get any chance to respond at all.

Fortunately, Celia had immediately gotten used to her character.

As soon as they stood in front of the elevator, the doors opened, and a man came out.

He was wearing a suit and looked serious. He had the same style as Emmitt.

He politely greeted Brea. And when his eyes fell on Celia's face, he was a little surprised. But he soon calmed down and turned to leave.

Celia also felt a sense of familiarity when she saw the man. It seemed that she had met him somewhere before.

Her eyes unconsciously followed him until he entered the CEO's office.

When she and Brea entered the elevator, Brea explained, "That's Briar, the assistant to the CEO."

Celia really had a strong feeling that she had met him somewhere. It was just that she couldn't remember where.

In a flash, the elevator reached the eighteenth floor.

Still arm in arm, Brea led Celia to the design department and found her a seat. The employees nearby were surprised upon seeing them.

"Hello! My name is Celia Kane. Nice to meet you all."

Celia took the initiative to greet her colleagues graciously and introduced herself.

Most of the employees were very friendly. They even came to her to say hello. Only one female colleague sitting diagonally opposite Celia rolled her eyes in disgust and whispered to a colleague next to her, "Isn't she Brea's friend? I don't think she has anything special about her. I wonder how she befriended Brea."

Celia looked at the woman's name badge. Her name was Kiley Lynch.

Although Kiley's voice was low, Celia still heard what she said. Her tone was strange when she spoke. But Celia just ignored her. After all, she had plenty of opportunities to prove herself in the future. Her capability would speak for her.

However, Kiley didn't stop there. She added, "We are already very busy. Now that someone has joined us by pulling the strings, our schedule will definitely be interrupted. What does Brea think of the design department? Why does she just stuff anyone, even a loser, into our department? I am really devastated."

Such bad luck! This loser has really ruined my mood."

