

Chapter 789 The Truth Came Out

Moses' expression changed instantly. In a panic, he pointed toward Tyson, yelling, "You're slinging mud at me! Your recording is fake. Do you think you can set me up like this? You're dreaming!"

"Is that so?" Tyson sneered and approached Moses with his intimidating aura. "You can hire a professional to determine whether or not the recording is genuine. And do you think this is the only evidence I gathered? If so, then you do underestimate me!"

After making that statement, Tyson took out the USB disk and tossed it to Briar. Briar quickly played the USB disk's footage on the screen, and the crowd fell silent.

Even in the low light, it was clear that the man in the video was Moses. Furthermore, there was also Waylon Dury from Shaw Group who was primarily in charge of this project.

Waylon inquired of Moses. "Should we destroy the base, Mr. Shaw? Once the building collapses, many innocent workers will be killed or injured. The project will have to stop at that time, and we will be forced to compensate the victims. It's not worth it."

Moses was unconcerned about the lives of the construction workers. "Their lives are worth noting. So what if they die? It is not a big deal to pay some money. It does not affect me at all. And who says we have to bear the blame? Of course, we will blame the Semshy Group. Remember to instigate the families of the deceased and injured workers. Given enough money, those fools will guide public opinion. It would be a shame not to take advantage of them..."

The families of the victims began to shout even before the video ended.

"Moses, you must pay back with your life!"

They realized they were being used as pawns by the perpetrator, so they yelled for him to pay with his life, charged at him, and kicked and punched him repeatedly.

Moses along with his bodyguards was overwhelmed by the large crowd, beaten, and pushed to the floor as he screamed for help.

None of the reporters went forward to stop them when they started taking pictures and videos of this scene.

The victims' loved ones continued beating up Moses and his bodyguards until cops arrived to stop them.

Even so, Moses was severely beaten. He lay on the floor and watched the officers approach him.

He had thought that these policemen came to save him.
But one of the police officers suddenly grabbed him by the collar. Next, his hands were handcuffed. The officer stated coldly, "You are suspected of intentional homicide, and anything you say will be recorded and used as testimony in the court of law."

Moses was astonished. He was taken to the police station while one of the police officers stayed at the scene to make a public declaration to the reporters that Tyson was innocent, and that the allegations about him committing suicide were all false rumors.

Even though the press conference ended in a major reversal, the situation was far from over.

Simultaneously, in the Shaw family's house.

Isla fell onto the sofa after losing her balance while watching the press conference on TV.

She couldn't believe Tyson, the bastard, was still alive and had even reversed the situation by getting Moses arrested by the police!

She was terrified!

Moses couldn't possibly go to jail!

No one would help her and Alex once Moses went to jail. Tyson, the bastard, would return at that time to take Shaw Group, which belonged to her son.

Suddenly, there was a loud noise!

Isla turned around and saw Gretchen being helped downstairs by the butler. She seemed to have also watched the news.

Gretchen was both enraged and heartbroken. She hit the floor with her crutch. "How could Moses do such a thing?"

Isla rushed to Gretchen, fearful that Gretchen would abandon Moses, and pleaded, "Gretchen, Moses is your son, a member of the Shaw family. You have to figure out how to get him out of jail!"

Gretchen's chest ached from her rage. "Get him out? How can I get him out of such a serious crime? And how dare he do such a cruel thing? Tyson is his nephew. He acted recklessly just to frame him, ignoring the lives of others. He doesn't deserve to be treated like a human being at all!"

When Isla heard this, she knew that Gretchen had given up on Moses. For the sake of her son's future, she knelt in front of Gretchen and begged again. "That's true, but if the Shaw family doesn't help him, he'll be in prison for the rest of his life. Tyson is just a bastard who was raised outside. He definitely can't be compared to the son you raised!"

As soon as Isla finished speaking, a servant rushed in and exclaimed, "Bad news, Mrs. Shaw. Two people are trying to break in. We can't stop them!"

Gretchen turned to look at the door and saw Tyson and Celia approaching, walking hand in hand.

She was astonished and also had an inexplicable look in her eyes.

Even though it was her first time seeing Tyson, she knew he was her biological grandson thanks to the marvelous bloodline between them.

Isla saw Tyson as well, and her eyes flashed with hatred. A sense of crisis engulfed Isla, especially when she noticed Gretchen's eyes were full of love for Tyson.

She rushed up to them and asked, "What brings you here? You bastard doesn't deserve to enter the Shaw family's house!"

Tyson glared at Isla and remarked condescendingly, "I'm here to seek justice for my mother."

Isla was surprised. She wasn't sure if Tyson had discovered the truth. It had been so many years, and Tyson had just arrived in Captern recently. It was logically impossible for him to find any evidence.

Thinking about this, she composed herself and asked Tyson, "Justice? What are you on about? Your mother was not a member of the Shaw family, and this is not a place where you can act at your will. I advise you to leave here immediately, or I will call the police."

Celia couldn't bear seeing her husband being scolded like this. "You're pleading for Moses to be released from prison. Why can't my husband get justice for the death of his mother? You seem so concerned about Moses. Those who don't know what is going on might assume he is your husband."

Isla quickly remembered the incident in which she and Moses were photographed having an affair at the hotel, and she began to wonder if the person who photographed them was someone sent by Tyson.

So she yelled at Celia, "What are you talking about? Don't think you can frame me! I heard you came from a poor background and that your father kicked you out. You clearly haven't been taught proper etiquettes!"

She then faced Gretchen and said, "Gretchen, you know me. I'm the one you chose to be your son's wife. I've been in the Shaw family for decades. I'm just interceding for Moses because I don't want to see him suffer."

Celia sneered in her heart at Isla's hypocrisy.

She underestimated Isla. She was shocked that Isla was still calm after what happened.

Gretchen was so annoyed by her son's arrest that she didn't care about their bickering. She interrupted Isla. "As their elder, why can't you just show some more tolerance?"

You don't have to take what she said to heart."

She sighed and then turned to face Tyson with a complicated expression in her eyes. "What do you mean when you say you want justice for your mother? I'm the chief culprit behind what happened to your mother. Just come to me directly. I owe you, and so does the Shaw family."
